What? No Ether?
The King Business.
A Sort of Promise.
Going to Harvard.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

PROF. MICHELSON, of Chicago, 76 years old, and a great scientist, has three tasks on hand.

He wants to improve his calculations on the speed of light. His figures, 186,284 miles per second, are known to be correct, within less than one mile. That does not satisfy Michelson.

He plans more accurate measurement of the diameters of stars. And he means to test Einstein's theory, which involves denying existence of the ether.

MICHELSON is not convinced and wants to know. But he probably will not know.

We can no more understand, prove or disprove the existence of the ether than a chip floating on water could prove the water's existence. It would call water "a hypothesis." Many call the ether a mere hypothesis. But chips of wood must float on something. Stars and planets must float in something.

GRAVITY'S power works through space, on objects separated by billions of miles. It could not exercise its force across a void.

There must be some connecting medium, and whatever that is, is ETHER. Man cannot know about it, for the present. The remarkable fact is that he can even think, and TRY to know about it.

BEING a king is no longer "a business." Afghanistan has had three kings within a week. Amanullah resigned when his subjects rebelled against Paris fashions and uncovered faces for women, and handed the throne to his brother, Inayatullah.

NOW a rebel, "Bacha Sakao," outlaw of the hills, seizes power from Inayatullah and is crowned Habibullah Khan. Habibullah means "darling of God." Eastern rulers like such titles. Tamberlane or Timur the Lame, called himself "the earth shake," and that was no exaggeration.

Attila was called the curse of God, and he boasted that where his horse trod the grass never grew again.

LUCKILY for us prosaic white people, these "darlings," "earth shakers," etc., know nothing of machinery, and waste little time in thought. So white men sell them goods and control their destinies in the long run. It is even suggested that Britain is back of Allah's darling, and helped him to his new job.

THE Rev. M. Allen Keith, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Lincoln, Neb., asks: "Why do you, in the Omaha Bee-News, call the peace pact 'a sort of solemn promise?'"

IT IS a sort of promise, because Britain reserves the right to do as Britain chooses, in British zones of influence, spread over half the globe.

"No war" is a nice theory, but you must not expect Britain to apply the pact to 300,000,000 in India, other millions in Africa, etc. You must distinguish between war and "policing inferior races."

IT'S a sort of promise, because France is spending billions of francs on more warships, including huge submarines able to travel round the world. They are not built exclusively for scientific exploration.

AND Germany, obliged to be cautious, for the present, is found preparing secretly for possible war against Poland, much to the indignation of Britain and France.

However, the pact solemnly signed states what is not true, in a way to make sentimentalists happy. That will put a stop to tiresome conversation, for a while.

THANKS to Senators Reed and Moses, this nation expressly exempts the Monroe Doctrine from the peace pact, reserving the right to fight for that doctrine. In various other ways, we took the mainspring out of the watch. If we now proceed to build fast cruisers, submarines and fighting planes, to prepare for peace pact possibilities, no harm will have been done.

LAST year it cost $10,559,000 to run Harvard, money well spent, if only one new and important idea should be born of all the young heads.

The boys paid in tuition fees $2,400,033.09. Football and baseball brought in $998,959.58. Lectures on philosophy do not draw any "gate."

IT'S a fine college, none better perhaps, but every college recalls the French saying about travel: Les voyages forment la jeunesse, quand ils ne la deforment pas. "Travel forms youth, when it does not deform it."

Colleges form youth, if they teach it to think for itself. They deform youth, when, as often happens, they teach it to think in a groove, all the little brains working along the same line.

THAT Edison or Lincoln would still have been Edison or Lincoln after four years at Harvard is improbable.

This is mentioned to comfort those that can not send children to college. Real life and hard work are a good college, with many brilliant graduates.

BUILDING contractors in New York fight the worker's effort to establish a five-day week, with extra pay to make up for the lost day.

Electrical contractors have yielded to the men, giving the workers five days a week, at something over $13 per day, a substantial increase.

IN SOME lines the five-day week appears to be not yet feasible, or practical But not long ago, the eight-hour day seemed preposterous. It is established

HENRY OLIVER REA

RYAN HEIR, MRS. REA ELOPE

Mrs. Margaret Moorhead Rea, of Sewickley, and Thomas Fortune Ryan II, grandson of the late Thomas Fortune Ryan, financier, were on a secret honeymoon today after a surprise marriage yesterday in the New York City Municipal Building.

They visited several New York night clubs last night and were reported to have booked passage on the Majestic, which sails tonight.

SEEN AT NIGHT CLUB

Early this morning the couple was seen in the Club Richman, in West Fifty-sixth street, one of the city's most exclusive resorts. They eluded reporters who sought to interview them upon leaving the club.

The bride is the daughter of the late John Moorhead, Jr., and a member of a prominent Sewickley family. She was divorced last May from Henry Oliver Rea, millionaire clubman, of Sewickley, charging cruelty. They had been married at Watchhill, R. I., in 1921. The divorce was obtained in Pittsburgh. Rockefeller, Jr., in the latter's fight to block re-election of Col. Robert W. Stewart as chairman of the board of directors of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Rockefeller, Sr., is said to be throwing all his influence here against Stewart, whose attitude he is said to regard as an "affront."

RAIN TONIGHT, COLD ON WAY

The official weather bureau thermometer came within one degree of setting a new high mark in local records for this date. At 12:15 o'clock this afternoon the mercury touched 66 degrees. On January 18, 1876, weather bureau records here show a temperature of 67 degrees.

The spring-like weather is not destined to remain long. At 1 o'clock the official temperature was 65½ degrees, a fall of half a degree in three-quarters of an hour. Rain and colder weather are scheduled for tonight with the probability of snow and much colder tomorrow. The rain is not expected to be heavy enough to swell the rivers to a dangerous stage.

FRANKLIN, Pa., Jan. 18.—Light shore ice was running in the Allegheny River here today as a general thaw accompanied rising streams and spring-like temperatures. Nearly an inch of rain fell yesterday and last night, and the river rose from 1.5 feet to 6.5 feet at the local gauge.

DRY LAXITY LAID TO MELLON

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Politics has made a failure of prohibition enforcement, Senator George W. Norris (Rep.) of Nebraska, a dry, charged in the Senate today in debating the dry proposal for a $25,000,000 increase in federal enforcement funds.

The dry fund, contained in the first deficiency appropriation bill, met with the opposition of administration leaders, due to its disapproval by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon. The administration forces countered with an amendment proposing an increase of $1,250,000 in an effort to halt attacks upon Mellon's administration of the dry law.

PUTS BLAME ON POLITICS

"Prohibition enforcement, in my opinion, has fallen down because of partisan politics," said Norris, in pointing out how huge fortunes could be made by violation of the law. "The lure of easy money," he said, "resulted in graft and built up new political powers.

"There never has been a fair attempt to enforce prohibition," said Norris. "I believe such an attempt would result in enforcement and give general satisfaction to the country.

"Before we talk of modification or repeal, speaking as one who believes in prohibition, all of us ought to unite in the proposition that a fair attempt be made to enforce the law.

"If, after a reasonable period, we see that conditions do not improve, then Congress ought to

GOVERNOR REFUSES RESPITE

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 18.—Last-minute efforts to gain a further respite for Paul Jaworski, Allegheny County murderer, who is sentenced to die in the electric chair Monday, will be futile, it was indicated today at the Governor's office.

A letter from Catherine L. Logan, sister of the condemned man, to Gov. Fisher asking another stay of execution be granted so Jaworski's mental condition could be examined arrived today.

CASE CLOSED

The Governor instructed a reply sent the sister saying the case had full consideration before the Pardon Board and that he did not feel warranted in granting a further respite.

Jaworski's plea for commutation of the death sentence was heard by the Pardon Board on Tuesday. His attorney at the time of the argument requested that alienists be named to study his mental condition. The county prosecutor's office in opposing the plea presented affidavits from experts who claimed the man was sane.

PHYSICIAN DIES ON DAY BETROTHAL IS ANNOUNCED

Twenty-four hours after the announcement of his engagement to Miss Sarah A. Crouch, Aberdeen apartments, 4628 Bayard street, Dr. William E. Kuechenmeister, 30, assistant to Dr. Charles J. Barone, staff physician at Elizabeth Steele Magee Hospital, was found dead in bed in Webster Hall Hotel, Fifth avenue, Oakland, last midnight.

Miss Crouch is a nurse employed by the National Biscuit Company, 6401 Penn avenue. She could not be reached today.

The condition of the body indicated that he was probably dead at the time the announcement of his engagement appeared in Wednesday afternoon's newspapers.

A post-morten examination in the county morgue disclosed that the physician had died from pulmonary hemorrhage, caused by tuberculosis, according to morgue officials. The body was found in his room in the hotel by R. S. Curry, night clerk, who went to Dr. Kuechenmeister's room after the physician had not appeared in the lobby for three days. It is believed death occurred early Tuesday.

The reason for the delay in finding Dr. Kuechenmeister's body was explained by Dr. Barone today. Dr. Barone said that at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon he took Dr. Kuechenmeister to Webster Hall. Dr. Kuechenmeister at that time asked permission to go to his home at Blissfield, Mich., for a few days. The request was granted. That evening, according to Dr. Barone, Dr. Kuechenmeister visited, Miss Crouch. He told her he was going home for a few days.

On Monday night Dr. Kuechenmeister had been elected staff physician at St. Francis Hospital.

SUN-TELEGRAPH GAINING THROUGH WIDE TERRITORY

No less notable than the great gain in the Sun-Telegraph's circulation during the last week, as shown by news dealers' reports, is the extent of the territory in which the paper has acquired new readers. The rise in circulation has not been spotty, but thorough, uniform, comprehensive.

It is not just the urban public that has swelled the Sun-Telegraph's sales; rural dwellers as well have contributed to the increase. It is not in Allegheny County alone that the subscribers have been multiplied; the same thing has occurred in Beaver, Butler, Westmoreland, Washington, Greene and other counties.

In Pittsburgh there has not been a bulge in circulation in one or two sections of the city and stagnation elsewhere; on the contrary sales of the paper have swelled in every quarter.

But let the news dealers' statements tell the story. Here are a few that are typical:

In Butler County the Chass News Company of Butler, reports it formerly sold 719 copies of the daily Sun-Telegraph and 292 of the daily Press, a total of 1,011. Now it sells 903 copies of the daily Sun-Telegraph. It formerly sold 3,153 copies of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph and 1,628 of the Sunday Press, a total of 4,781. Last Sunday it sold 3,719 copies of the Sun-Telegraph.

From the extreme southwestern corner of the state, Greene County, comes the report of A. B. Stafford,

U. S. DRY AGENT SPURNS ORDER

DETROIT, Jan. 18.—(INS.)—Sumner C. Sleeper, head of the Detroit customs border patrol, following telegraphic orders to report in Washington at once for assignment to the special treasury agents of the U. S. customs department at Tampa, Fla., said today he would refuse to accept the assignment.

It is believed here that Sleeper's refusal will mean his automatic withdrawal from the customs service.

This follows directly the recent shakeup in the local customs border patrol, which resulted in the arrest and dismissal of 23 agents working under Sleeper. Twenty of his agents were indicted on charges of accepting bribes and three for perjury.

O'ROURKE PLEA "GUILTY"

Justice of the Peace J. M. O'Rourke, of Broughton, today pleaded guilty to a charge of aggravated assault and battery and Judge Josiah Cohen, in Criminal Court, postponed disposition of the case for 10 days.

Walter Huxley, of 139 Birmingham avenue, said he was injured seriously at Brownsville road and Nobles lane April 14 last when struck by an automobile driven by O'Rourke. O'Rourke was driving on the left of a street car, from which Huxley alighted, and ignored a red traffic light, according to the testimony. Attorney Joseph Winslow, representing O'Rourke, stated that his client is in poor financial circumstances, brought about largely through helping striking miners in his district, and has been unable to obtain funds with which to make a settlement.

HOOVER QUIETS REPUBLICAN N. Y. FEUD

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Herbert Hoover, the engineer, tried his hand at political peacemaking today and succeeded, on the surface at least, in winning a temporary truce among the warring Republican factions in New York.

After conferences with leaders it developed that Republican affairs in New York, more particularly patronage, are to be dictated by a triumvirate consisting of H. Edmund Machold, the state chairman; Charles D. Hilles, national committeeman, and William H. Hill, Binghamton publisher, who was the Hoover pre-convention leader in New York in the face of opposition from the state organization.

In the background, and as a possible fourth in this regency, will be J. Ogden Mills, who will continue in his present post as under secretary of the treasury.

Machold, as state chairman, will act as statesman for the New York Republican organization, but it was indicated his function will be that of a liaison officer rather than "boss."

FARRELL BANK SHUT BY STATE

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Secretary of Banking Peter G. Cameron, announced today that the People's Bank of Farrell, Mercer County, has been closed upon his order until the exact financial soundness of the institution has been adjudicated.

Regular examination of the bank, undertaken this week, resulted in heavy withdrawals, Secretary Cameron said, and the examiners found a considerable amount of frozen assets.

The report of the bank made as of December 31, 1928, showed a capital stock of $50,000, a surplus fund of $17,000 and deposit liabilities aggregating $769,000.

Fred S. Fish is president of the bank.

KAUFMANN ENDS STATUE PLAN FOR GOTHAM

Henry Kaufmann, retired merchant and philanthropist, in Pittsburgh today to observe the thirty-fourth anniversary of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement and inspect the new settlement auditorium building, now being erected, denied he had ordered Joachim Costa's fountain, "The Four Seasons," for Central Park, New York. The statue was designed originally for the Bois de Boulogne, Paris. Mr. Kaufmann said:

"When the city authorities in Paris did not take the statue group off the sculptor's hands, on account of its cost, it occurred to me to offer it to New York. It was suggested the fountain be placed in Central Park, but it could not be accepted by the city because no statues of that magnitude are permitted in the park. When I received this answer from the art commissioners in New York I made no overture toward ordering any work upon the design."

It was pointed out by Mr. Kaufmann's friends that there is little probability of Pittsburgh getting the group because Mr. Kaufmann prefers to carry on his philanthropic work here through contributions to welfare work and the support of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement and other philanthropies. The settlement, created as a memorial to his only child, Irene, will have a new auditorium as his latest gift. It will be opened in March.

DRY LAXITY LAID TO MELLON

amend or change the law if conditions show a change is needed."

CALLS MELLON FAILURE

Norris said Secretary Mellon "has been a failure in enforcing the law." He read some testimony given the Couzens committee by Mabel Walker Willebrandt, showing that Mellon, over her opposition, had forced appointment of a special assistant attorney general to prosecute a liquor bribery case in Pennsylvania. Norris cited this case to support his charge that Mellon had used his political influence to interfere in the enforcement of the law.

"It seems to me here was a case were very wealthy men were indicted for prohibition law violations, and when it came to trial the attorneys who repesented the prohibition unit were thrust aside and a man not even a member of the prohibition unit was appointed to try the cases," said Norris.

"Every one of these cases failed. And this man was appointed over the protests of Mrs. Willebrandt and at the suggestion of Secretary Mellon."

USED DRY OFFICERS

The charge also was made that the prohibition enforcement personnel was mobilized to help the Republican party in the last election, Senator Robinson (Dem.), of Arkansas, and candidate of his party for Vice President in the recent campaign, made the charge.

Employes of the prohibition service, he said, were informed as to the course they were to pursue in the campaign, "where to go, how to vote, and what influence to exert."

Robinson contended that politics was the motivating influence in the appointment of prohibition enforcement workers.

Main State Roads Sheeted With Ice

HARRISBURG, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—A warning to motorists not to travel without tire chains because of the icy condition of most of the state highways was issued last night by the Department of Highways.

Pair Arrested For 'Spooning' Get Divorce

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Hamilton, of Oak Park, who were arrested several months ago for "spooning" in their automobile, are divorced. A decree was granted Mrs. Hamilton on grounds of cruelty.

At the time the Hamiltons were arrested for "spooning" they had been estranged and had gone for a drive, hoping for a reconciliation.

The arresting policeman held that, married or not, a public park was not the proper place for "spooning." The case was never pressed in court.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton are socially prominent in Oak Park. They have five children.

TRIO HELD IN DETROIT BLAST

DETROIT, Jan. 18. — (INS.) — Giralamo Pecarado, 32-year-old Italian, was taken into custody by police this afternoon as a suspect in the gasoline explosion that caused $500,000 damage, injured 50 persons, wrecked the Garissi furniture and music store and the Roosevelt Theater and partially demolished a dozen nearby stores here early this morning.

OWNER TO BE QUIZZED

Questioning of John Garrisi, owner of the furniture store where the explosion centered, also was ordered by police.

A formula for mixing explosives was found in the possession of Pecararo, police said. He was on the verge of being released when an officer, able to read Italian, discovered the importance of a note, written in that language, found in the suspect's pockets.

TWO OTHERS HELD

Two other men were also being held in connection with the explosion. They were Phil Gusmano, 25, and Joe Zangaro, 32.

Inspector Bert McPherson, of the "Black Hand" squad, said Garrisi, now reported en route here from Chicago, will be questioned regarding threatening letters he is said to have received from a blackmailing ring.

M. Gibson, Attorney John W. Davis, of New York, Democratic nominee for president in 1924, will return Monday to represent the company at a hearing.

BABY BORN AS WOMAN DIES IN TRIPLE KILLING

STEUBENVILLE, O., Jan. 18.—While relatives were arranging a triple funeral for Vincenzo Giannamore, 63; his wife, Mrs. Michelena Giannamore, 58, and their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Frank Giannamore, 28, victims of a shooting at their home yesterday, doctors and nurses at the Ohio Valley Hospital were watching over a baby boy, born to the younger woman a few minutes before she died.

Although doctors say the case is unique in medical history, the child is apparently normal and from all indications will live, despite the shock suffered when the mother was mortally wounded by a bullet which struck her in the back and perforated her lungs.

The two women were shot by the elder Giannamore, who then shot himself. Relatives say he had been brooding over a family quarrel over his disposition of his property. The women were living when found in their home and were taken to the hospital. The younger woman was dying when she reached the hospital. An operation was performed and the child was born.

Doctors and nurses worked for almost an hour before the infant responded to oxygen and artificial respiration. He then gained in strength rapidly.

Mrs. Giannamore is survived by her husband and five children, including the babe born today.

Officials investigating the tragedy said they learned the aged man, a retired merchant, had deeded his property to his son Frank, with the agreement that the son was to take care of his parents in their declining years, and that this disposition of the property had led to bickering and frequent quarrels between the father, his wife and their other children.

The Rockefeller interests won a signal victory yesterday when Howard Sutherland, alien property custodian, who holds proxies for 12,000 shares taken from German former owners during the war, announced he would assign them to Rockefeller.

SUTHERLAND EXPLAINS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Alien Property Custodian Howard Sutherland, in a statement last night, explained his handing over the proxies for 12,400 shares in the Standard Oil Company of Indiana to the Rockefeller forces.

The statement said:

"The custodian is given full authority to use his discretion about matters relating to the property under his control," Sutherland said.

"I received the Rockefeller request last week. I had not received one from the other side, although I did receive it this morning.

"I was aware before that, of course, that there was something brewing. I felt that Mr. Rockefeller and his associates were responsible for the company. They started it, and they placed Mr. Stewart in his position, probably. I felt that the interests of the property owners would be well taken care of by the Rockefeller group.

"I did not consult the President, the Attorney General or other officials."

EMPLOYMENT GOOD HERE

Activity in the railroad car building and equipment plants in the Pittsburgh district showed a marked increase during December, according to the United States Department of Labor report issued today. Industrial employment in the district was fairly satisfactory, the report states.

Though some recession was noted in iron and steel mill activities, the level of employment held up remarkably well, the department found. The usual year-end inventory taking and plant repair work were responsible for a decrease in employment in certain departments of the steel industry. This, the department feels, is purely stationary, and normal operations will be resumed this month. There was a seasonal decrease in building, with a plentiful supply of building mechanics and construction workers.

FIVE KILLED AS THREE TRAINS COLLIDE

ABERDEEN, Md., Jan. 18.—(INS.)—With five trainmen dead and a sixth in the hospital severely scalded, Pennsylvania Railroad officials today pushed a vigorous investigation into the triple wreck of two express trains and a freight train 1½ miles from here late yesterday.

The first collision occurred at 4:40 p. m., when train No. 412, a combination mail-passenger train with eight coaches, which had left Washington for Philadelphia at 3:05 p. m., crashed into the rear of extra freight No. 1472, pulling 99 cars. The passenger locomotive and the freight caboose were demolished and several freight cars were thrown across the south-bound tracks.

CRACK TRAIN CRASHES

A few minutes later the crack southbound Southern Express, No. 121, carrying passengers to Baltimore, Washington and the South, crashed into the wreckage.

According to railroad officials, not one passenger was injured seriously although many of them were shaken up when several coaches and three sleeping cars were derailed.

Railroad officials blamed the blinding fog for the first crash, but said they could not understand why some member of the train crews of the northbound passenger train or the freight did not flag the Southern Express.

DEAD MAN BLAMED

The trainmen killed were T. J. Kavanaugh, of New York, fireman of the southbound express; A. C. Terhune, of Jersey City, its engineer; B. W. Stewart, of Baltimore, flagman of the freight; K. A. Klein, of Baltimore, freight brakesman, and Leon Sweeting, of Philadelphia, engineer of the northbound mail and passenger express.

J. H. Lee, fireman of the northbound express, was scalded, but is expected to recover.

Responsibility may rest with Sweeting or Stewart, the dead flagman, officials said. They are trying to learn whether either northbound train ran by a signal in the fog.

The passengers included Dr. Henry Van Dyke, a member of Princeton University faculty. He escaped injury.

ITALY WILL PLACE ENVOY IN PROPOSED PAPAL STATE

International News Service.

ROME, Jan. 18.—Although the proposed new papal state will lie within Rome—the seat of the Italian government—Italy will have an ambassador accredited to the Holy See just as though it were a distant power, it was learned today.

This envoy will look after Italy's interests, especially in ecclesiastical affairs. It is expected that Spain, France, England and Germany will be among the countries appointing diplomatic envoys to the new papal state. It is not known if the United States will do so. There is a papal nuncio stationed in Washington.

QUICK ACTION DUE

It is expected that the imminent settlement of the long-standing dispute between the Catholic Church and the Italian state will be followed by an aggressive diplomatic policy. The Catholic Church has been subjected to drastic treatment by Soviet Russia and Mexico. In the former nation there is a movement to stamp out all religion. Mexico passed laws making it impossible to hold public masses.

The problem of customs and excise taxes in the new state has been settled easily. Their collection will be left to the Italian government by the Vatican.

VATICAN TO GAIN

The Vatican is going to benefit in a financial way. Italy will pay into the Vatican coffers about 1,000,000,000 lire, it is understood. This would be about $52,000,000 in United States money. It is spoken of as an "indemnity" and represents the annual payments of 3,225,000 lire which the Italian Parliament voted in 1871 to pay annually to the Pope.

The benefits Italy will get from the settlement are chiefly moral.

Settlement of the dispute, which has kept the Pope a prisoner in the Vatican since 1870, will be a big achievement for the Fascist government of Premier Mussolini.

Dunlevy and Main state that there are several prominent institutions in the Schenley Farms district which are polluting the air with smoke, and the residents are greatly interested in having the nuisance abated.

CARNEGIE MUSEUM OPENS UNIQUE TEXTILE DISPLAY

An interesting display of the principal types of weaving in different countries at various periods will be on exhibition until January 31, in one of the galleries on the third floor of the Carnegie Museum.

CARNEGIE MUSEUM TEXTILE EXHIBITION

BETTY NEELY STUDIES TEXTILE EXHIBIT
This exhibit is not a still-life painting, but a modern printed plain cloth of French manufacture, designed by Robert Bonfils, Lyons, and on exhibit today at Carnegie Museum. Betty Neely, Pittsburgh art student, is studying the color scheme of the piece.

The display was loaned by Mrs. Walter Siple, curator of decorative arts, Worcester Art Museum, and Nancy Andrews Reath, curator of textiles, Pennsylvania Museum.

HISTORICAL VALUES

The exhibition is representative of the best in the weaver's art and includes different cloths, velvets, tapestries, twills, satins, damasks and brocades. It is a colorful set of beautiful tissues, interesting both from the technical and historical aspect.

Ancient Peruvian textiles, pre-Columbian looms and Coptic fabrics are among the noteworthy items of the exhibition.

DIVERSIFIED DISPLAY

Indian, Japanese, Chinese and Persian pieces add color and diversity to the show.

There are also some rich brocades of the Medieval and Renaissance periods.

American fabrics of various epochs are also represented.

One of the most interesting pieces was woven in the Fifth Century. It is a weave of slit tapestry Coptic, made of weft thread of linen and wool on linen warp.

The most colorful piece is a modern printed plain cloth of French manufacture, showing a floral scheme, which was designed by Robert Bonfils, of Lyons.

Wife's Divorce Libel Says Husband Cruel

Marguerite S. Kramer, 1009 Flemington street, has filed a libel in divorce against Harter B. Kramer, charging him with cruel and barbarous treatment. The couple were married in 1925.

MRS. REA, OF SEWICKLEY, ELOPES WITH RYAN HEIR

prised at the news and refused to comment on the wedding.

MOTHERS SURPRISED

Mrs. John Moorhead, mother of the bride, when informed of the wedding refused to believe it.

"It can't be so," she said. "My daughter and Mr. Ryan were only casual acquaintances and I heard from her only three days ago that she was ill. If she contemplated getting married she would have told me, I'm sure."

Mrs. John Barry Ryan, mother of the bridegroom, said she knew nothing of the marriage or the whereabouts of her son.

"If my son is married I don't know anything about it and I have nothing to say," she said.

Mr. Ryan gave his occupation as a rancher. He is a member of an old and prominent family and his father, John Barry Ryan, recently inherited approximately one-fifth of the estate left by Thomas Fortune Ryan, estimated from $100,000,000 to $500,000,000. An uncle, Allan A. Ryan, was cut off with the bequest of a pair of cuff links.

KEEPS INHERITANCE

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Despite reports to the contrary, Young Thomas Fortune Ryan, grandson of the late financier, didn't court disinheritance by eloping yesterday with Mrs. Margaret Moorehead Rea, pretty Pittsburgh divorcee.

Young Ryan is the son of John Barry Ryan, second son of the "great opportunist," and by the terms of his grandfather's will shares with four brothers and three sisters one-fifth of the huge estate left by the famous financier at the death of John Barry Ryan.

Lawyers specializing in Surrogate Court matters, pointed out today that the Ryan will contains a clause clearly stipulating that, upon the death of John Barry Ryan, that part of his estate originating in the fortune of the elder Thomas, shall be divided among his children. This they say erases all possibilities of disinheritance.

TRUE TO RYAN FORM

Thomas, the second, is known to his intimates as somewhat of a firebrand and his elopement with the pretty Pittsburgher was hailed as a true example of Ryan conduct. His illustrious grandfather rode rough shod over accepted convention when in 1917, 12 days after the death of his first wife, he remarried. His uncle, Allan, with like disregard openly criticized the elder Thomas Fortune for his hastily remarriage and earned disinheritance from the estate.

Young Ryan gave his age as 29 and occupation as a rancher. The latter was in earnest for following several ecapades at school, his family bought an Idaho ranch and heeding the recommendation of the moralists sent him West, where "men are men" and too ebullient offsprings of the rich are cured. The "cure" worked to the astonishment of even the moralists. Young Ryan not only mended his ways but competently managed the affairs of the big ranch.

By the ceremony young Ryan becomes the proud daddy of two boys, Oliver 6, and Mickey, 3, who are with their grandmother, Mrs. Henry Oliver Rea, mother of Henry Oliver Rea, Mrs. Ryan's first husband, in Florida.

Their romance smashed on the rocks and last May she secured a divorce on charges of cruel and barbarous treatment.

13 Guests Have Breakfast at White House

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(INS.) President Coolidge evidently doesn't fear any "thirteen" hoodoo.

The President entertained that number of senators at a White House breakfast this morning, eight Democrats and five Republicans.

Present were Blease and Smith, of South Carolina; Stephens, of Mississippi; Trammell, of Florida; Overman, of North Carolina; Walsh, of Massachusetts; Bayard, of Delaware, and Thomas, of Oklahoma, all Democrats; and Gould, of Maine; Burton, of Ohio; Schall, of Minnesota; Hastings, of Delaware, and ex-Senator Butler, of Massachusetts.

EX-GOV. SMITH TO BE BANKER

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(INS.)—With all plans laid for the start of his new career as a banker, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith today began packing up for a vacation trip to Florida preparatory to wrestling with the intricacies of high finance. He will start for the land of sunshine on Sunday.

In confirming the announcement of his election as a director of the County Trust Company of New York, the former Democratic presidential nominee declined to discuss the matter for publication. It is believed, however, that ultimately he may become chairman of the board of the three-year-old institution, in which he was the first depositor.

WHEN RICHMAN OUTDOES RICHMAN

..then you may be sure there is something to talk about.

NOT content to rest upon laurels won in past years, we are celebrating this, our fiftieth anniversary, by making finer clothes than ever before in our history.

Richman's Clothes have won value leadership acknowledged by the entire clothing world—acclaimed by more than a million men who buy them year after year.

And when we tell you that Richman's Clothes for 1929 are better styled, richer in quality of materials, and more beautifully tailored than any that have gone before, you may buy them with assurance that you are getting more clothes quality, more real value, than you ever bought at a price under $50.

Established 1879

EACH of the 3000 highly trained men and women who make Richman's Clothes is individually pledged to uphold Richman traditions—to maintain high quality standards in each of the 232 operations we employ in making a suit. And this pledge means something because these workers own an interest in this company now valued at $7,500,000.

We provide them with materials of the finest quality, procured at low cost because we buy immense quantities for cash. They have at their command, in the great Richman factories, the finest known facilities for making good clothes.

These are some of the reasons why Richman's Clothes are in a quality class far above any other clothes in their price class.

MOTHERS STOP! CHILDS COUGH

Colds, Coughs, Dangerous This Time of Year—Stop It Quick.

KIDS LIKE TO TAKE THIS SIMPLE REMEDY

"My children love to take the cough and cold remedy our old doctor recommended. It banishes a cold, fortifies them all winter, and helps their appetites."

There is no dope, alcohol, chloroform, etc., in it. A barrel of it would do no harm.

Almost like ice cream and tastes so nice kids cry for Lin-O-Nine, which contains wholesome, beneficial Oils of Flaxseed, Eucalyptus, Cassia, Betula, Irish Moss and Glycerine, churned into a cream flavored with Wintergreen. Yum! Yum! It's good, the kiddies say, according to thousands of wise mothers who always have a bottle of Lin-O-Nine in the house. Better than Cod Liver Oil as a tonic—and it tastes nice.

Doctors recommend Lin-O-Nine for grown-ups, too. 50c and $1.00 sizes at druggists, or send dollar bill for large 15-oz. bottle, parcel post return mail. Kerr Chemical Co., Brentwood, Md.

FISHER DOOMS JAWORSKI BY REFUSING RESPITE PLEA

by another machine to offset any possible rescue attempt.

Jaworski was called from his cell unexpectedly last night by Sheriff Robert H. Braun, hurried to the waiting cars and started on his journey without a minute's warning.

MINDFUL OF JAIL BREAK

Braun, mindful of the time in August, 1927, when Jaworski's gang, the "Flathead Mob," framed a delivery from the Allegheny County jail and successfully shot Paul's way to freedom, arranged the transfer to Rockview with utmost secrecy.

It was more than a year after the jail delivery that Jaworski was recaptured in Cleveland, after killing a policeman there.

The party arrived just as the prisoners on the Rockview prison farm were filing across the yard to the dining room for breakfast. Jaworski was kept in the car for a minute. The gray-clad line was spurred to a more rapid stride. There was no other commotion.

In the half-light of dawn they led him into the death house—to his cell—and there they left him. Sheriff Robert H. Braun turned him over to Deputy Warden W. J. McFarland, received a receipt for the prisoner, and the formalities were ended.

The Allegheny County officers stayed to see Paul receive his breakfast, bacon and eggs, coffee and white bread—the same fare the prison officials get on mornings. Then, with Allegheny County no longer his custodian, they left him to the care of the state of Pennsylvania.

PEN FLU DEATHS UNDER PROBE

An inquiry into health conditions at Western Penitentiary will be made by Coroner W. J. McGregor, he announced today, as a result of 19 pneumonia deaths in the institution since December 22.

An open hearing into the death last night of Daniel B. Cain, 52, the nineteenth victim of the disease, will be held at the penitentiary next Friday, McGregor said. Cain was committed from Greene County.

"Some of the relatives of prisoners may be worried, and citizens generally may be curious as to the number of deaths from pneumonia occurring at the penitentiary," said the coroner. "We will throw open the inquest to anyone desiring to attend, and make as thorough an inquiry as possible into health conditions at the prison."

"We have had a bad siege of flu and pneumonia," said Warden Stanley P. Ashe. "We think we have done all that is humanly possible with a well equipped hospital and good staff of physicians. We are willing to receive any suggestions for bettering conditions."

Clarke, P.-O. Edison Vice President, Dies

EAST ORANGE, N. J., Jan. 18.—(INS.)—H. A. Clarke, vice president of the Pennsylvania-Ohio Edison Company and the American Electric Power Company and a director and officer in various other public utility properties, is dead today at his home here.

WIVES OF CONGRESSMEN FACE COLOR LINE IN CLUB

International News service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The Congressional Club, composed of wives of Senators and Congressmen and others in official life, is facing a vexing question, and one that probably will be solved by the club's putting into effect a "black ball" system for the first time in its history.

Mrs. Peter Gerry, wife of the Senator from Rhode Island, who was formerly Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt, is now president of the club.

The perplexity arises out of the fact that in the next Congress Oscar De Priest, of Chicago, a Negro, becomes a member. Under present rules, Mrs. De Priest automatically would become a member of the club with full privileges.

An amendment to be sought to the constitution next month would give a membership committee power to approve or disapprove an applicant for membership. It involves a change in the club's constitution.

Weather Conditions.

The western disturbance is centered over Eastern Kansas this morning, lowest barometer, 29.34, at Wichita, and 29.32, at Kansas City. The low pressure area extends from north of the Great Lakes southwestward to the center in Kansas, thence northwestward to another center over Idaho. It is raining at many places in the low pressure area, and light rains were general during the last 24 hours east of the Rocky Mountains.

A high pressure area overlies Saskatchewan and Manitoba, and projects southward over the northern plains. It is causing much colder weather over that section. Mild temperatures obtain everywhere from the plains eastward.

River Conditions.

There was a considerable rise in the Allegheny at Franklin and at Parkers Landing, due to ice gorges. The river was running full of ice at Franklin, the ice piling up on a gorge at Hillville. Ice conditions in other sections of the river remain unchanged. There is not sufficient water in the Allegheny to bring the ice out, but conditions are favorable for the formation of serious gorges. The weather will continue warm today and most of the night, and more rain is expected.

TEMBLOR TAKES HEAVY TOLL IN VENEZUELA

CARACAS, Venezuela, Jan. 18.—(INS.)—Heavy death toll resulted from the severe earthquake at Cumana yesterday morning, according to advices from the scene today. The dead are unofficially estimated at from 25 to 50, but others are missing and it is believed that search of the ruins will increase the fatality list.

Soldiers are on the scene to aid rescue work.

Scores are injured and thousands are homeless.

The government is distributing food, medical supplies and clothing.

Cumana had a population of about 16,000.

Every building in the city was destroyed the Governor of Cumana informed President Gomez by wireless, adding that there were a great number of victims.

The earthquake severed telegraphic communication with the city and accounts were fragmentary regarding the extent of the disaster.

Cumana is located about a mile above the mouth of the Manzanares River, about 25 miles east of Caracas. The raw products of the region are coffee, tobacco, sugar and lumber, while cotton goods manufacture is one of the chief industries.

BOYS WITH AUTO LOOT HELD

What police say they believe is a cache for stolen automobile accessories was uncovered by Police Lieutenant T. F. Gross early today.

Gross arrested Charles Durst, 19, 1906 Gilbert street, and Fred Dedisch, 19, 5 Cadman street, while, he charges, they were stripping a stolen automobile in Homer street. After being questioned, the youths led Gross to a garage in the rear of the Dedisch home. There, the police say, they found a large quantity of automobile accessories. The boys were held for court trial.

Police say they are anxious to have persons whose machines have been stripped lately attempt to identify the articles they are holding at the Allegheny Station.

GENEVA CHIMES TRIBUTE TO DR. C. E. MACARTNEY

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Jan. 18.—A set of chimes with tower will be erected at Geneva College here in honor of the Rev. Dr. Clarence E. Macartney, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, of Pittsburgh.

Two friends of Dr. Macartney in Philadelphia, where he was a former pastor, have contributed $25,000 for this purpose, it was announced at a meeting of the board of the college trustees by Dr. Robert Clarke, financial secretary.

Dr. Macartney's father was instrumental in moving Geneva College from Northwood, O., to Beaver Falls, and was a trustee and member of the faculty for many years, and his mother raised the fund to purchase the first bell for the college. The chimes will replace this bell.

197TH BRIGADE UNITS WILL BE GROUPED HERE

Steps toward organizing more closely the units of the Officers' Reserve Corps in this area will place the entire One Hundred and Ninety-seventh Brigade in Pittsburgh.

The proposal has been made by Col. Thomas M. Anderson, chief of staff of the Ninety-ninth Division, who recently assumed his duties at the division headquarters in the Westinghouse Building. He recommends that the Three Hundred and Ninety-fourth Infantry be reallocated by officering it within the limits of greater Pittsburgh.

Measures proposed by Col Anderson have increased interest in all the activities of the Officers' Reserve Corps here. The assignment of regular army officers as unit instructors to each regiment has enabled regimental and unit commanders to carry out the functions of command imposed upon them by War Department regulations.

"It is readily apparent to those who have had combat experience that teamwork and unit spirit is one of the greatest essentials in an efficient organization," said Col. Anderson. "It is necessary that the teams be frequently associated, and to make this feasible it becomes apparent that we must organize our units more closely."

Col. Anderson, veteran officer in the regular Army in the Spanish-American War, the Filipino insurrection, the Mexican border patrol and a brigade commander in the A. E. F., has in his headquarters: Col. Robert M. Brambila, assistant chief of staff; Col. Milo C. Corey, adjutant general; Maj. Walter Moore and Maj. P. A. Hernandez. Capt. W. H. Moore, of the quartermaster corps, of Ft. Hays, O., and Capt. Charles W. Walton, of the Twenty-fifth Infantry, Ft. Douglas, Ariz., have lately been appointed to report to the Ninety-ninth Division and have been assigned as unit instructors.

Y. W. C. A. RAISES $66,090.50 IN APPEAL

Pledges totaling $14,715.10, bringing the grand total in the annual budget appeal for $135,000 of the Young Women's Christian Association of Pittsburgh to $66,090.50 were reported by team workers at their fourth report luncheon yesterday in the Central branch building in Chatham street. The reports included $9,150 from the special gifts committee, $190 from the Center avenue branch, and $123 from the business and professional women's groups.

Royal S. Goldsbury addressed the meeting and the Rev. Dr. J. Alvin Orr asked the invocation. The fifth report luncheon, the last scheduled for this week, will be held in the Central branch building today and will be addressed by the Rev. Dr. C. Wallace Petty, pastor of the First Baptist Church. Mrs. A. P. Burchfield, publicity chairman, will ask the invocation.

The campaign is scheduled to close Monday with a dinner in the Central branch building.

Employes to Hear About Postal Bill

Local postal employes will meet tomorrow night in the Federal Building to hear further reports on the Dale-Lehlbach bill which they are sponsoring to bring about optional retirement after 30 years service of civil service employes. The bill would give the retired workers annuities of $1,200 per year, with salary deductions of 3½ per cent. More than 600 Pennsylvania organizations have given their support to the Joint Association of Postal Employes of Western Pennsylvania by indorsing the provisions of the bill.

Helen Morgan Ill; Heartbreak Denied

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—Flu, not heartache, is the reason why Helen Morgan hasn't been singing "Can't Help Lovin' That Man of Mine" in Ziegfeld's "Showboat" since Tuesday. Her mother, Mrs. Lulu Morgan, has put at rest reports that the actress had mysteriously vanished, possibly because of a lovers' quarrel.

Four Years of Illness Ended by New Konjola

Kidney and Liver Troubles That Had Resisted All Else Yield to Modern Medicine.

Scores of those who have suffered long, and have failed to find relief, are visiting the Konjola Man, who is at the McCulloch Drug Store, Penn Ave. and Sixth St., this city, where he is explaining daily the merits of Konjola, the master medicine, for ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and for rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Konjola comes backed by a remarkable record of recoveries in cases of years standing; the new remedy is a medicine of achievement, not mere promises. The speed and thoroughness with which this master remedy goes to the very seat of the ailments is strikingly illustrated in thousands upon thousands of happy endorsements from those to whom Konjola has brought glorious health after hope had been abandoned. Among these grateful statements is one from Mrs. Laura Fulton, 110½ North Liberty street, New Castle, Pa., who, radiant with newly recovered health, says:

MRS. LAURA L. FULTON

"What a blessing . . . and a surprise . . . this wonderful Konjola was to me! For four years I suffered torments with liver and kidney trouble. I tried simply everything, and not a thing helped me. I grew worse steadily, and became so seriously afflicted that my limbs swelled to twice their normal size. A most irritating rash broke out all over my body, and headaches were so severe that I felt that my head would burst. I lost weight and energy; certainly I had no ambition, and my housework was a task. My sleep was broken and my appetite poor, so I had no chance to pick up any strength. At a time when I had about lost hope of ever being helped, Konjola was recommended to me by a number of people who had personal knowledge of its success in most stubborn cases like mine.

"I had little faith in anything, having been disappointed so often, but I finally made up my mind to see if this new medicine was all that it was said to be. And what a delightful surprise was in store! The very first bottle brought so much relief that I was sure that, at last, I was on the right track, on the road to health. With the second bottle came complete freedom from all my ailments. The rash almost disappeared, my head quit aching, and my liver and kidneys are perfectly normal. And how I can eat! Sleep, too, is helping me back to my former strength and weight, and I am feeling so good that I can hardly believe I am the person who suffered so terribly for four years. My great regret is that I did not know Konjola sooner, but I am so happy to be well again that I am willing to forget my years of pain and misery. I make this statement with the hope that it will be read by all who suffer as I did, and who, like myself, despair of being well again. Konjola is entitled to more praise than I have words to express. It is simply wonderful."

Thousands tell the same story of Konjola's marvelous merits. This modern medicine goes to the very seat of the disease, cleansing and stimulating the afflicted organs. It is logical to believe that what this master medicine has done for others it will do for you. To delay is merely to prolong your suffering.

THE KONJOLA MAN

is at the McCULLOCH DRUG STORE, Penn Ave. and Sixth St., Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, explaining the merits of the remarkable Konjola. Free samples given.

PHILA. CLUBMAN SLAYS POLICE OFFICIAL

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18.—W. Griffen Gribbel, socially prominent Philadelphia clubman, who shot and killed Police Inspector John W. Blackburn here last night and fatally wounded the inspector's chauffeur, according to police, was given a chance to recover this morning by physicians, who removed three bullets from the clubman's body.

Gribbel was shot by police who rushed to his mansion in Chestnut Hill following a wild shooting affray there last night.

THOUGHT DEMENTED

Joseph Lawrence, Inspector Blackburn's chauffeur, is dying at Chestnut Hill Hospital. Police said that Gribbel, a shell-shocked war veteran, apparently had become demented.

Gribbel, who is 48 and the father of four children, is the son of John Gribbel, prominent Philadelphia financier and society man. The young Gribbel is manager of the John J. Griffin Company, gas meter manufacturers of Philadelphia. He recently returned here from a New York sanitarium, where he was treated for a nervous disorder from which he had suffered after being gassed in France during the World War.

RUNS AMUCK

Last night he ran amuck when he learned that his wife planned to send him to another sanitarium, police said. Mrs. Gribbel telephoned police that he was firing shots through the walls of his room from a service automatic and a rifle. Inspector Blackburn and Lawrence were shot when they answered the call for help. Other policemen shot Gribbel three times.

After the bullets were removed at Chestnut Hill Hospital at 4 o'clock this morning, physicians announced Gribbel was resting comfortably. Police said he probably would be charged with murder.

TRAVEL FEATURES VIE WITH MUSIC ON RADIO

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

LISTENERS will "go places" in tonight's broadcasts. They will go to the circus, the concert stage, the Riviera, in France; the opera, North Carolina and "other places."

But they don't have to travel if they don't want to. They will find plenty of good entertainment in the regular concert and dance programs.

The Red Arrow Quartet will be heard in Foster melodies from KDKA at 7 o'clock and Wanda Schaffer, soprano, will sing Victor Herbert selections from KQV at 11 o'clock. Jeannette Clasky, soprano, will sing a number of classical and musical comedy numbers from WCAE at 7 p. m.

The chain programs are quite numerous and each one has a different appeal. They are listed in detail in the Sun-Telegraph daily radio schedule.

That well known, long-run play of the American stage, "The Chorus Lady," in which Rose Stahl is starred, will be presented tonight at 9:30 o'clock by the WGY Players through WGY. Lela Sommers will play the title role.

VISIT TO NICE.

Nice, the capital of that coast of pleasure known as the French Riviera, will be visited tonight. The exact locale will be one of the famous Riviera "reserves." Each of the large hotels has its "reserve." It is a restaurant built on the edge of the Mediterranean or overlooking the blue waters.

Appropriately, the musical program opens with a French composition, written in the American idiom, called "Un Soir a Singapour," by the orchestra and mixed quartet. The music is then continuous with a concert orchestra and a jazz band alternating. The vocal numbers include "Le Pourquoi d'Eve," "I'll Give the World to You," "Ariette" and the famous "Chanson Provencale." The orchestra selections include "Jealousie," a French tango of Hungarian influence, "Serenade Lointaine" of Filippucci, two American jazz numbers, "Honey" and "Delirium," and a pounding Argentine tango called "Primavera."

VON STROHEIM CRACKS WHIP AS MR. BYRON PETS WITH GLORIA

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1929, by Premier Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 18.

IT happened in a scene for Gloria Swanson's picture, "'Queen Kelly.'"

Walter Byron—Leading man,

Gloria—The gal herself,

Eric von Stroheim—Director and author of the script.

Mr. Byron glanced at the script. He was called upon to play a love scene with Miss Swanson. The script instructed: "The prince (Mr. Byron) is to love, pet and dally with Queen Kelly.

Erich Von Stroheim.

Mr. Byron cogitated. He went to Von Stroheim. He explained he knew what love and pet meant but dally—ah, dally, there was a puzzler.

Von waved airily. "Dally? Dally? Oh, just dally."

Miss Swanson reclined on the couch. The cameras were ready to grind. Mr. Byron hemmed a mighty hem and prepared to demonstrate the art of cupidity.

The scene developed into a Von Stroheim whizzer.

Finally, Von cried: "Enough. Cut!" The cameras stopped. Mr. Byron failed to hear the directorial orders. Likewise, Miss Swanson. Mr. Von Stroheim cracked his whip. He always carries one on the set. "Stop, I say! Stop, you great big Irishman (to Mr. Byron)!" The whip zoomed playfully through the air and caught the startled Byron around the ankle.

"But the scene," reminisced Walter, "really turned out very good."

Style Hints By Max Ree

Max Ree, Hollywood fashion director, contributes this:

Corinne Griffith has just purchased a charming street ensemble that consists of a golden brown velvet coat-dress with narrow roll collar, uneven hem-line finishing in a point that is lowest on the left side. The coat is held together with a narrow belt finished with a rhinestone buckle. The upper part of the coat forms a blouse that almost covers the belt with its fullness so that only the rhinestone buckle is visible. The sleeves are large and full—Russian effect—finished with narrow cuffs with small rhinestone buckles similar to the belt buckle. She wears two small sables with this ensemble, lending it grace and smartness. The hat is of golden brown soleil felt, close-fitting. It comes deep down over the right side and two brown silk tassels swing from the left side. A charming costume.

Sally Eilers and Ken Hawks, Mary Astor's good-looking brother-in-law, have decided to be married in June. Sally and Mary ambled into a Hollywood parking station yesterday afternoon after a shopping session, and Sally suddenly remembered she had left an indorsed check in her car. It was still there. Which was more luck than you know.

Divorces in the colony get scarcer and scarcer. It's hard on bridge parties.

"Queen Kelly" Half Finished

"Queen Kelly," incidentally, has gone into its fourteenth week of production. It may be another 10 ere Von Stroheim completes the silent version of his love drama. Unlike his previous cinemas, however, this one is not being overshot to excess. The picture is slightly past the half way mark and is in 16 reels. Those who have seen some of the "rushes" vow 'tis Gloria Swanson's finest production. Von, true to Stroheim form, stages a few celluloid orgies. Two more of 'em are still to be shot, and long is the waiting list of those eager to be present when the whoopee commences.

Ronald Colman

Joseph Hergesheimer, W. K. Scribbler, is writing "The River Gambler" for Ronald Colman. Hergesheimer's contract with Producer Sam Goldwyn stipulates when he turns in 'is story he can leave town and never see it again—in printed or celluloid form. Dern clever, these writers.

WITH MOVIE PLAYERS :-: IDLING :-: ON STUDIO LOTS

Lelia Hyams, between camera "shots," pauses to weigh this prize rabbit, which was bred on the government ranch at Fontana, California.

Fay Wray here is seen playing a unique instrument known as an African piano.

And Maurice Chevalier, French actor, amuses fellow players in idle moments with a toy poodle dog. Maurice is appearing in sound photoplays.

Violinist

Priscilla Long, youthful Canadian violinist, will give a recital tonight in the International Institute.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Pittsburgh's Migration To Sunny Southland Well Under Way

WHILE we in Pittsburgh are trying dazedly to adapt ourselves to violent weather changes, down at Palm Beach society folk do not have to wonder if on the morrow they'll wake to find a vengeful blizzard or a gay winter rain. Just thinking of the balmy breezes of Palm Beach, the mellowing sunshine and the splash of seductively warm water makes one feel deliciously langorous—for a minute. And then there's the reality of the greyest of the grey days Pittsburgh can offer.

No matter how appealing Palm Beach is to the imagination, some folks will delay their departures for that society resort until the end of the month and even until next month.

The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Maitland Alexander, of Ridge avenue, expect to leave on January 31 for the magnetic South. The William Christopher Robinsons, of Ridge avenue and Sewickley, will not join them until February. As usual the Alexanders and Robinsons will be the guests of their mother, Mrs. Alexander Laughlin, whose winter home, needless to mention, is on Everglades avenue and Ocean boulevard, Palm Beach.

CALIFORNIA is fast becoming a rival of Palm Beach. Another prominent member of society, who has decided to winter in the West, is Mrs. George Greer Coolidge, who'll be accompanied by her daughter, Elizabeth. The middle of next month they'll leave for Los Angeles. Before returning home in the spring they'll be in Arizona for some time, too. The Leslie M. Johnstons, of Bennington avenue, will visit Los Angeles, as well, I hear.

THE Ambrose Nevin Diehls, of Hobart street, who've been in Florida the greater part of the month, will be back very early in February, I understand.

WHILE I was talking about Palm Beach, I forgot to mention that two Pittsburgh society women were patronesses at the exhibition of paintings by Miss Rachel Hartley and etchings by Miss Zella de Milhau, which opened Wednesday under the auspices of the Palm Beach Artists' Association. You've probably guessed I'm referring to Mrs. Henry B. Rea and Mrs. Alfred G. Kay, who are always interested in supporting the arts.

THE Harry Darlingtons will be away for the remainder of the winter as usual. They'll sail, I've just heard, on January 30 for a cruise of the West Indies. Later they'll go to Panama and finish the season in California. They'll be accompanied by Mrs. Darlington's sister, Anita Shields, daughter of the Peter Shields, of the Wellington, Philadelphia.

Anita is just about as well known in Pittsburgh as if she had made her debut here. She came out, don't you remember, last year in Philadelphia and New York?

Anita was the guest of her brother-in-law and sister, too, during the holiday season and shared honors with Virginia Willock, debutante daughter of the Frank Scott Willocks, at a dinner the Darlingtons gave at the Pittsburgh Club December 27, preceding the last of the famous charity balls.

Anita is now in St. Louis, where she'll be a bridesmaid tomorrow at the wedding of Mary Brooke Holmes, daughter of the John Howard Holmses, of St. Louis, and Francis Boyer, son of the Henry C. Boyers, of Philadelphia.

THE senior class of Seton Hill College will hold its annual ball Friday night, January 25, at the school, with Miss Margaret Mohr, of Braddock, president of the class, as general chairman. Miss Kathleen Mullen, of Pittsburgh, is in charge of the decorations; Miss Lillian Callistri, of Charleroi, refreshments; Miss Hilda Gleason, of this city, programs and favors; Miss Anne Silverman, of Pittsburgh, orchestra; Miss Elizabeth Skeehan, of Ambridge, budget; Miss Margaret Gallagher, of Harrisburg, reception, and Miss Anna Mary Rocks, of Masontown, publicity.

JOHN H. COHEN, of Pittsburgh, was one of the ushers last night at the wedding of Miss Betty Newburger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester M. Newburger, of New York, and Herbert J. Kaufmann, son of Dr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Kaufmann, of Park avenue, New York, which took place in the Ambassador Hotel, New York, with the Rev. Dr. John Lovejoy Elliott, of the Ethical Culture Church, officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Kaufmann will spend their honeymoon in Florida and upon their return will live in New York.

Wolfe Lays Marital Woes to Ignorance

IGNORANCE, competition and romantic infantilism were given as the three great causes of failure in marriage by Dr. W. Beran Wolfe, when he addressed the Rodef Shalom Sisterhood yesterday afternoon on "A Psychiatrist's View of Love and Marriage." Dr. Wolfe stated that ignorance is the greatest cause, ignorance of the technique of love, ignorance of the needs of men and women, ignorance of the simplest and most fundamental relations that are a part and parcel of the marital relationship. "We spend years," he said, "learning how to use a fork, or write a letter, or to shake hands, yet we ask young people to marry with no more knowledge of what they are doing than if they were to try to build a bridge."

Competition is the most important single characteristic of civilization today; it may be the life of business, but it is the death of love and is one of the most preponderant factors in the causation of failure in marriage, the speaker went on, pointing out that women are beginning to realize the falsity and injustice of the alleged superiority of men and with might and main are attempting to show that they are equals. This, naturally, finds its crassest expression in marriage.

Those individuals who are still juveniles, emotionaly, find great difficulty in solving their marriage problems; they fail to realize that marriage means constant adjustment, co-operation and concession.

As a constructive plan, Dr. Wolfe suggested clinics for children as well as young people about to marry, where these may be educated for the "great co-operative social task of marriage," where "facts, technique and information and not romantic, sentimental poppycock, nor high sounding religion," will be taught.

Dr. Wolfe is psychiatrist in the mental hygiene clinic of Mount Sinai Hospital, director of the child guidance clinic of the Beth Israel Hospital and volunteer psychiatrist in the Children's Court of New York City.

Mrs. Kirk made a charming address of welcome, and there was a distinctly enjoyable program presented by Miss Susan Globbe, piano; Miss Constance Globbe, violin; Mrs. Tracy M. Morrison, soprano, with Miss Willia Cunningham as her accompanist. Hostesses for the tea hour were Mrs. A. H. Candee, Mrs. E. R. Sampson, Mrs. Russell Fritchman, Mrs. Homer Fritchman, Mrs. C. E. Skinner and Mrs. Norman Allen. Mrs. A. C. Streamer, chairman of program, was assisted by Mrs. W. W. Reddie and Mrs. M. F. Packard.

Slocum read extracts relative to the day's topic when the Epoch Club met yesterday morning. Mrs. Frank H. Rea, of South Negley avenue, was hostess for the meeting.

JUSTICES SEEK METRO AID

The Metropolitan Plan Commission was asked to help obtain higher fee rates for aldermen and justices of the peace of this county by a committee of aldermen and justices who met with the commission yesterday. The committee did not offer any suggestion as to what plans they had for the metropolitan charter. A bill is to be brought before the Legislature soon asking higher rates for the group.

The aldermen and justices are preparing to fight any move of the commission that might regulate their number and salaries, according to Alderman Sol Goldstein, of the Fourteenth Ward. The committee consisted of Goldstein, Justices of the Peace Margaret Morgan, of Sewickley; J. C. Cummings, of Cheswick; C. P. Burns, of Imperial, and C. H. Paschold, of Edgewood.

Joseph T. Miller, chairman of the Metropolitan Commission, asked the justices for thir plan under the metropolitan program and was told that no definite plan had been arranged. A general discussion of the work of aldermen and justices followed.

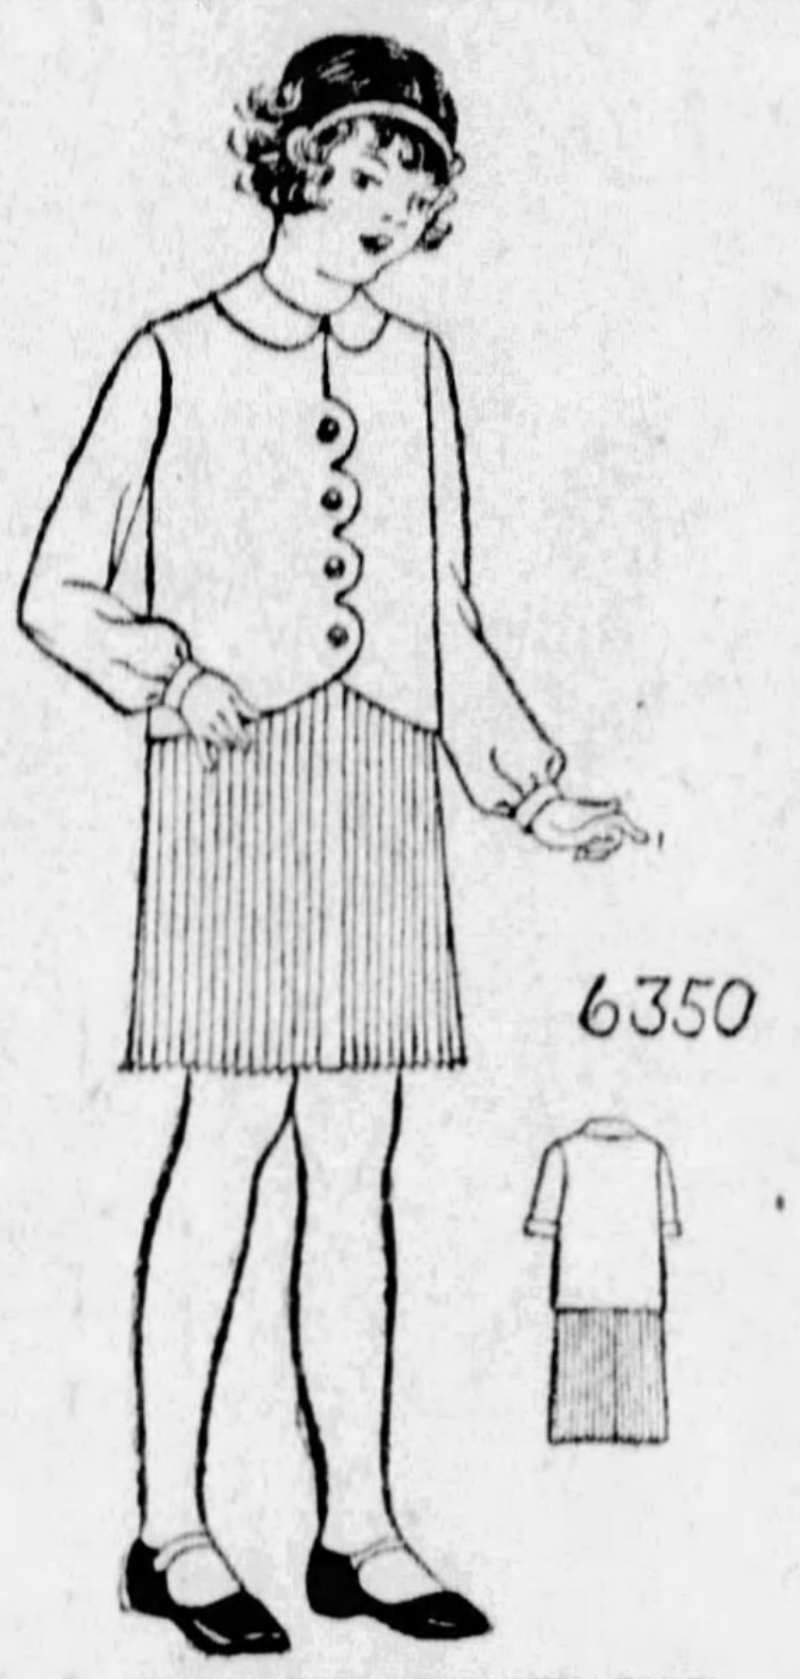
The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern



A PRETTY FROCK FOR A SMALL GIRL.

Charming and becoming is the dress here pictured. It was developed in crepe de chine in a soft shade of blue. One could use pongee in a natural shade with binding or piping of a contrasting color. Cotton prints, challie and crepe are also excellent materials for this style; or the skirt could be made of plaid or checked suiting and the jacket of plain woolen or of velvet. The skirt is mounted on an underbody that may be of lining.

The pattern for this style is cut in 4 sizes: 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. To make the dress for a 6 year size will require ¾ yard of 27 inch lining for the underbody and 2⅞ yards of 39 inch material. The jacket of contrasting material made with long sleeves will require 1¼ yard 39 inches wide, with short sleeves 1 yard.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

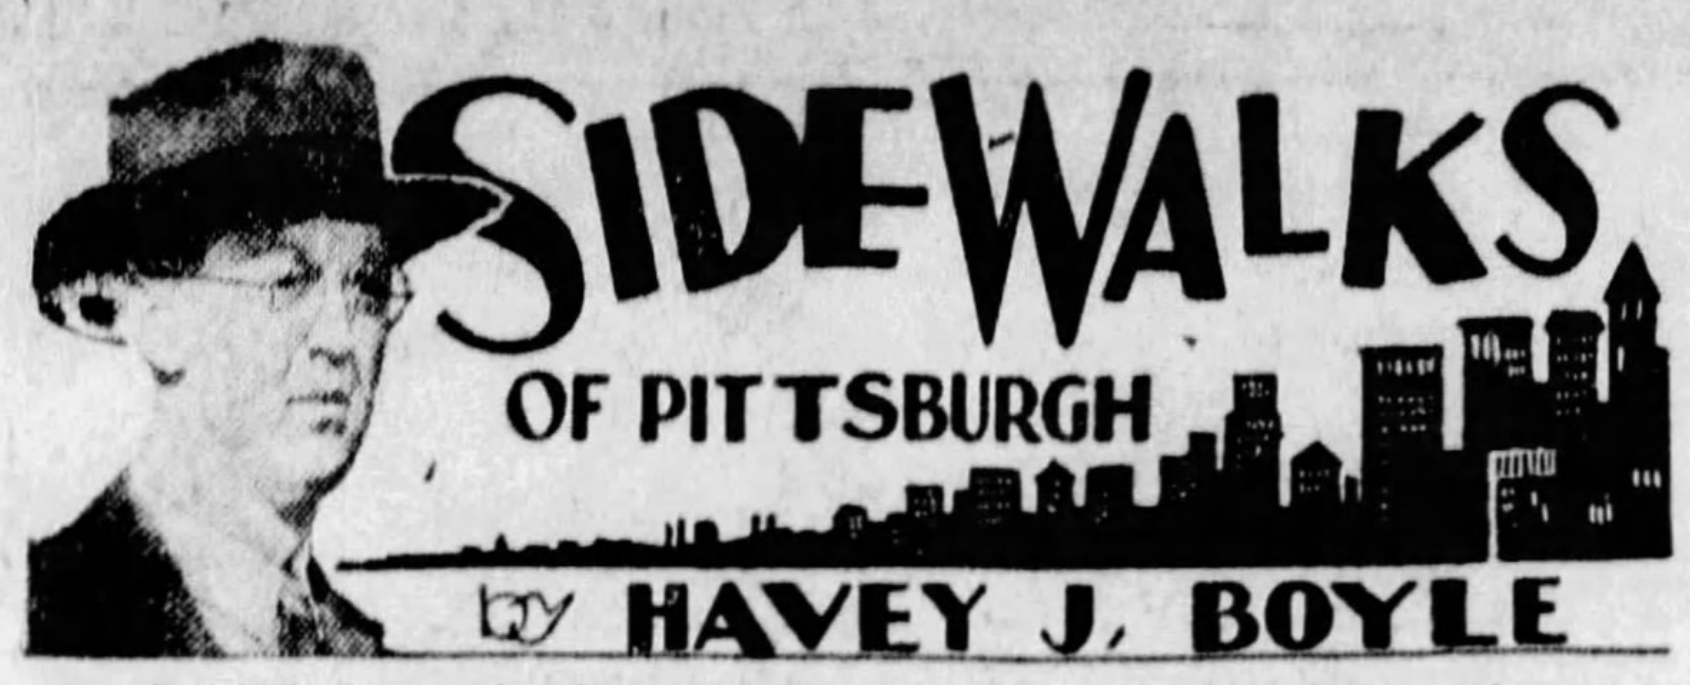
METROPOLITAN DISTRICT NEWS



SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

A PART of a suburban menage is a dog of some distinction as to pedigree. Its purchaser was sold on the idea that the dog would prove to be a great watchdog. (No, this isn't the one about the kennel that had a burglar alarm in it). A burglar got past the watchdog in question and rifled those things burglars usually go after—the husband's trousers, drawers (that is to say dresser drawers) and the family pocketbook. The dog slept through all this. By some good fortune the burglar some days later was nabbed. Handcuffed to a detective the suspect was taken to the home he burglarized for identification. As the detective and the burglar walked up the porch steps the dog sprang from a door and bit the detective. County Detective Bill Black will substantiate the story.

A group of men were discussing masculinity. Nominations were made as to the well-known men in the Pittsburgh district who rate high in masculinity. Nominations follow: Edward Vose Babcock, John K. Tener, James F. Malone. The texture of the voice has something to do with it. Carriage is another part. A third is the attitude. There are, of course, many others in the district. These three, however, come readily to mind. It is an essential trait in the field of politics.

DIRECTOR CLARK, of the Public Safety Department, was discussing the other day the need of a police school in Pittsburgh. At the present time a recruit cop is put on the job, knowing little of the essentials of his duties. He must learn by experience, a system that promotes considerable discord among the citizenry and reacts unfavorably against the young policeman. The firemen have a school, but there is no classroom for police.

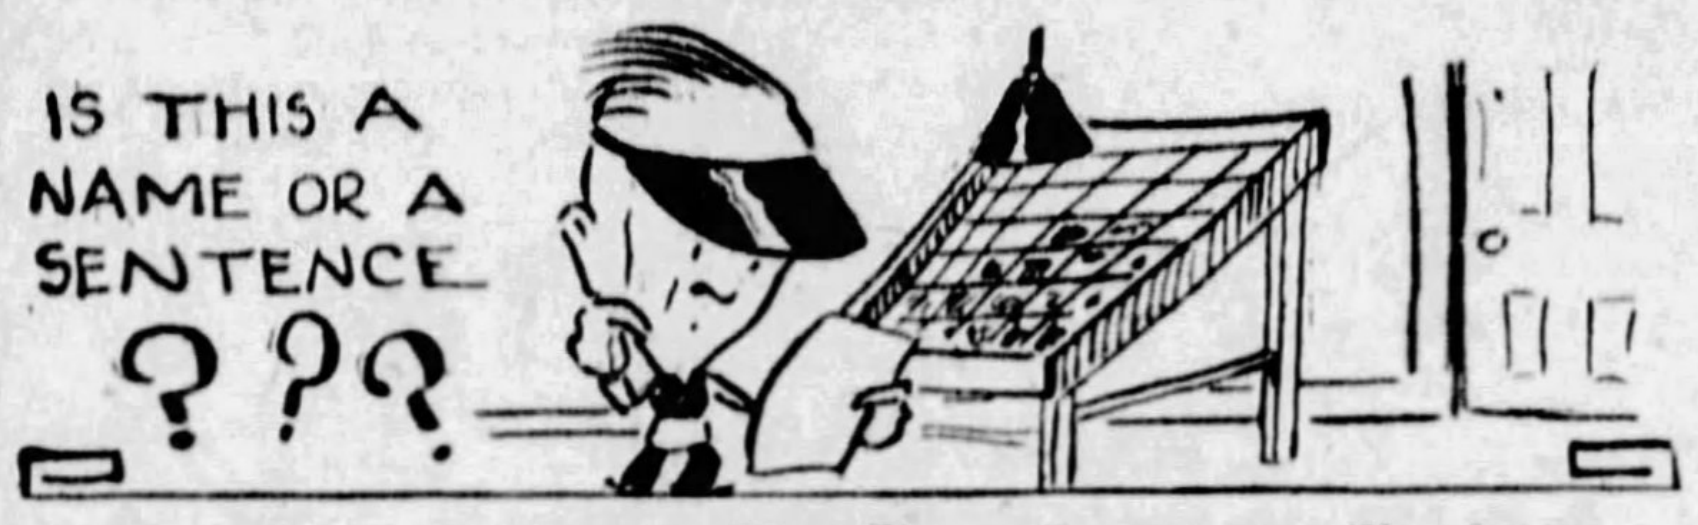
At present, somewhat in this connection, there is a move on foot to institute a policewomen's bureau in Pittsburgh. It would start out with a corps of six or eight women, to be developed gradually into a larger force. Other cities have such bureaus. In Berlin, for instance, a paragrapher informs, the policewomen are called "Polizeigefaengnisshauptwachtmeisterin." (That's all right, Mr. Printer, just do the best you can with that one.) In Pittsburgh, it would not be necessary to adopt such a name. Headline writers soon will change that into "Cop-ess."



What policewomen in the new bureau would be expected to do is not totally outlined, but it is probable they would deal mainly with female delinquents. At present the average policeman would rather engage in four running gun fights with bank robbers than to be called upon to put a lady, so to speak, into the hoosegow.

PERHAPS the story is apocryphal, but it sounds realistic at that. A reporter was covering the services of a local evangelist fervidly intent on delivering a lasting blow against that veritable rubber-man, Satan. The evangelist asked the reporter if he would hit the sawdust trail. "No," said the benighted one, "you see, I'm just covering this for my paper." "But doesn't," boomed the evangelist, "your salvation come before everything else." "Mebbe so," said the reporter, dubiously, "but I guess you don't know our Mr. Sprigle."

This is the same reporter who fell into the water while attending the christening of a new ship. Presently he was missed and somebody called up the reporter's city editor. "Your man down here at the christening has fallen into the water. I fear he may be drowned." "All right, all right," said the busy city editor, "I'll send another reporter down at once."

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.

You let the Democrats not be looking for just a minute and one of them Republicans will grab that Washington's Monument and light out with it.

I hated to see Al passing the hat for the rich Democrats. He is too big a man to be handed a tin cup and sent out on the highways.

Vic Becomes Jealous Again As Nancy Tells Him About Westcott

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Nancy Dean, golden-haired, dark-eyed, who has lived her 18 years with David and Margaret O'Day, foster parents, in Washington, learns she is the granddaughter of the wealthy and aristocratic Montgomery Deanes in Pittsburgh, who disinherited her father and do not even know of her existence. Through John Blair, an upstanding young man, she has learned to admire, she secures a letter to Howard Wescott, manager of the Wear Ever Mills in Pittsburgh. On the train she meets Ginger Varden, a style model who takes her to her boarding house and introduces her to her friends. One of these, Vic Flemming, makes love to her and asks her to marry him. She finally secures a job in the Wescott knitting mill.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XI.

ALL morning long Nancy sorted stockings. She got the knack of the job in 15 minutes, and within an hour she could detect a flaw in the weaving as well as the rest of the girls who sat near her, but how monotonous it seemed.

All about her Nancy could see hundreds of girls, most of them about her own age, all intent on their tasks.

Most of them were doing piece work and under that system words cost money, so that scarcely anyone spoke. It was all so different from what Nancy was used to. At home she had a word and a greeting for everyone she waited on.

Here there was no kidding. Just work, work, work. Nancy was reminded of the old poem she had read long ago—"The Song of the Shirt."

"Work, work, work, 'till the brain begins to swim,
Work, work, work, 'till the eyes are heavy and dim."

By noontime her eyes were heavy and dim, and her brain was swimming. But what else could she expect, she thought. She had spent half of last night dancing at a roadhouse and nearly all the night before at Collette's studio party.

The afternoon dragged, minute by minute. Nancy thought the hands on her plain, leather-strapped wrist watch would never get around to 5 o'clock, the quitting hour. Just before that time Howard Wescott came into the sorting room. As he passed from table to table Nancy watched him out of the corner of her eye.

Howard Wescott was very handsome, about 30. His hair was black and curly, his eyes as dark as his hair. Nancy thought he resembled Ramon Navarro, only he was bigger than the motion picture actor. He looked an aristocrat from the part of his hair to the heels of his trim looking black shoes.

He was the youngest son of William Wescott (Old Bill, he was called), president of the Wear-Ever Knitting Mills, and he had recently been made general manager.

Even during her first morning at the mills, Nancy had heard the girls gossiping about him.

She heard he was immensely rich, and a prodigal son, recently returned from South America, where he had an affair with a beautiful Brazilian. The gossip was that "Old Bill" had turned over half of the business to him, now that he had decided to settle down. She heard he was a graduate of Yale, that the society girls were "mad" about him, but that he didn't care much for them—all this, and a lot more. Gossip, gossip, gossip.

He walked past her a few steps, then turned as though he had forgotten something, so suddenly that the eyes of every girl in the room fastened on him. He came up to Nancy.

"Oh, by the way, Miss O'Day, will you stop in my office before you leave tonight. I would like to talk to you."

Nancy answered "yes, sir," and knew that the glance of every girl had shifted to her. When Howard Westcott had gone out of the room all the girls at Nancy's table were filled with curiosity. One girl called Toots, for no apparent reason that Nancy could see, the cut-up of table No. 3, was the first to speak.

"Lucky girl," she said, "bet he's fallen in love with your golden hair and wants to get you into his office when everyone's gone to show you how he made love to that Brazilian woman."

"Or maybe he wants you to go to the theater with him tonight," another girl said, affecting a society girl's voice.

"You're both wrong, he wants her to come up to his home tonight so she can meet his dear old snooty mother, and 'Old Bill' himself," a third girl laughed.

"S'pose you won't be looking at any of us poor sorters tomorrow," still another said. "well, a girl must live, and far be it from me to prevent a working girl from getting wealthy—and wise. I just wish it was me he was taking a look at. I'm mighty sick of this stuff, slaving away day after day, just a worm. That's all we are. Worms. Slaving worms for just such people as the Wescotts."

The girl became more and more excited as her tongue wagged. Her tirade grew fiercer and fiercer. She said some ugly things about Howard Wescott and the people he associated with.

Nancy turned to her work. She saw it would be poor policy for her to discuss Howard Wescott. The mere fact that he had asked her to stop in his office after work seemed to have set the girls on fire. Her first day in the Wear-Ever Knitting Mills was getting interesting. She began to forget her fatigue.

She approached Wescott's office half with curiosity, half with fear, and entered to see a plain girl, evidently a secretary, pounding away at a typewriter.

The furnishings were rich. Nancy noticed that the girl's desk was walnut. She thought it must be wonderful to work in a place like this. She envied the secretary's efficient manner. She wore heavy, horn-rimmed glasses. Her hair was nondescript, without the least suggestion of wave or curl.

"Yes?" she said, looking up.

"I'm Miss O'Day," Nancy said.

Just then the door of the inner office opened, and Westcott was before them.

"Yes, Miss O'Day, come in," he said.

He smiled at her as though she was someone he knew very well, one of the society girls, even, whom he was charmed to meet. He turned to his secretary.

"You're working overtime, aren't you, Miss Crosby?" he said, "better let the rest of the letters go 'till tomorrow. There's no particular hurry."

And to Nancy, he said, "come in."

He bowed and held open the door wide so that she might pass him into his velvet-carpeted office. After they were seated he started to sort some papers on his desk. He appeared rather nervous. Nancy watched him closely. When he turned from her she couldn't help notice how well set-up he was. His dark blue suit looked as though he had been poured into it. His hair at the back of his neck was cropped close, leaving a very decided line between his skin and his hair.

"I've just re-read John Blair's letter," he began, "he says you intend to take up business and secretarial work in the evenings. Now you know it's quite a strain for a girl to work all day long in a knitting factory and to study at night, too.

"The fact is, I need someone in my office to help out Miss Crosby. That is, to do the filing and smaller tasks that keep her from more important work.

"I was thinking that since you are a friend of John Blair's, and John is an old college chum, I might place you in the office. It wouldn't be so tiring as the factory and will give you more energy for your school work at night. Of course as soon as you get to a point where you can take dictation I'll see what else I can do for you.

"Now if you want to do this, the pay will be just the same, with advancements as you get more accustomed to the work."

Nancy could hardly believe what she was hearing. Here she was, at the end of her first day's work in Pittsburgh, and Howard Westcott, son of a millionaire, one of the most gossiped about bachelors in the city, was asking her if she wanted to work in his office—for him?

"Oh, Mr. Westcott, I've never worked in an office before. I wouldn't know the first thing about it."

"That doesn't matter," he said, "the work is very simple. You look like a very bright young person and under Miss Crosby's tutelage I am sure you'll be a first-class secretary in no time."

If ever there were golden glints in Nancy's eyes, they surely were there now.

As she sat there, her gold hair twirling and curling from beneath her black felt hat, she was the very picture of eager, happy girlhood.

"A beauty, if she were dressed right," Howard Wescott was thinking, "positively beautiful. Sweet as a flower."

"Very well then," he said aloud, "you can come to work in the morning. I'll tell Miss Crosby what I want you to do."

He held the door open for her to go, followed every line of her slim young body. He dropped his black eyes to her feet and then let them rise slowly, as she walked out.

His eyes rested on the top of her head, where a saucy little felt bow topped her hat.

He smiled. He had a new girl to interest himself in. He was tired of the society flappers with their everlasting gushing. He had had his fill of South American senoritas. He was heartily sick of sophisticated women. He liked "this kid."

Nancy fairly danced up Penn avenue. The 6 o'clock crowds were hurrying home, and the streets were filled with shouting, laughing people.

The shop windows were blazing with beautiful things. Gorgeous gowns, jewels, silverware. The candy and fruit shops were riotous with color.

Nancy's heart sang. Never in her life had so many things happened to her in so short a time.

In front of the Roosevelt Hotel Vic Flemming sat in his shining car. He had been sitting there for a long time now, considering the parking laws, watching the parade go by. He was good looking, well groomed, well dressed, and the owner of a handsome automobile. His occupation—well, his occupation may have been somewhat against him, so far as some girls are concerned, but his philosophy was that girls nowadays don't care where a man gets his money just so he has it. He made no secret of the fact that his "business" often took him to Canada. As a matter of fact he never touched a drop himself to hear his own story.

Vic Flemming saw Nancy gazing into a window. "A country kid, eh?" he thought, "well if she's from the country I'm just off Main street myself."

It wasn't so much what she wore but the way she wore it, that was always giving people the impression that she was expensively dressed.

"That kid's certainly got me going sideways," Vic said, half aloud, and then he sounded his horn, three times.

Nancy turned, a frown on her pretty face. A wave of recognition turned the frown into a smile.

"Vic Flemming, what do you mean, scaring the life out of me like that? And right when I'm imagining I'm going to the debutante's ball in that pale green velvet wrap with the white fox fur."

She got into Vic's car at his bidding.

"I was just having the grandest time imagining I was a wealthy society girl and that I could trail into that shop and say, 'I'll take this—no, I don't care for that—never asking the prices, when you bring me back to earth with a bang. Besides you nearly scared me to death."

"Take me home, Vic," she said, "and I'll tell you some exciting news. Something wonderful has happened to me."

"Oh it has, has it? Has the foreman proposed marriage, the first day on the new job?"

He stepped on the starter, then he said:

"We'll go up to Toy's for a dish of chop suey, first thing," just as casually as though Nancy had consented to eat with him. And he said "first thing," as though he took it for granted that there were other plans for the evening.

Toy's Chinese restaurant was a new thrill for Nancy. She had never eaten chop suey in her life. Vic led her up the broad, marble stairs to the main dining room, and then, to her surprise, started piloting her down a long, rather dim alleyway on each side of which there were little rooms, each with its highly ornate Chinese table, inlaid with mother of pearl. He pushed back the curtains to one of these rooms and motioned for Nancy to step inside.

Nancy sat down, took off the close fitting hat and ran her fingers through her tumble of gold hair. "I must look a sight," she said.

"You look adorable," Vic answered, and before she knew it he had jumped up and come around the table. A Chinese waiter noiselessly parted the curtains as he bent over her.

Nancy jumped up and stamped her foot. She was furious.

"Victor Flemming," she screamed, "you've got to stop kissing me where everybody can see. You've got to stop kissing me anywhere."

She reached for her hat and started struggling into her coat. Vic grabbed the coat and took the hat from her head.

"Little spitfire, not so hasty," he said, "the madder you get the wilder I am about you. And what are you going to do about it?"

He put his heavy hands on her shoulders and forced her back into her place at the table. After the excitement of the day Nancy was too used up to make anything but a mild protest. For some reason which she couldn't explain, it was nice to be dominated.

"I'm ready, Goldie Locks," Vic was saying, "what was that exciting news?"

"Well, it may not sound exciting to you, but it's very exciting to me," Nancy answered.

"Mr. Westcott wants me to come to work for him, starting tomorrow, instead of staying in the factory. He says that it won't be so hard on me if I go to school nights. You see he's a friend of Mr. Blair, who—"

Only one glance at Vic's face warned Nancy that something was wrong. Awfully wrong. A shadow had passed over his face and there was an ugly look in his eyes.

"So he's going to put the little golden headed girl in his own office, eh?" he half snarled. "The big bum's going to play around with the pretty little innocent from up-state, is he?

"Like h—— he is! I'll show him he can't take every pretty girl he happens to fancy."

Vic got up and shook his finger in Nancy's face, so enraged at her innocent statement that she was going to work for Mr. Wescott, that he couldn't talk coherently.

Nancy, considering Vic's own hot blooded love making in the last 24 hours, decided he must be one of those unfortunate people consumed with jealousy.

"Stop," she cried as the things he said began to sound too utterly preposterous, "if you don't I'll leave. I'm simply going to work in Mr. Wescott's office and he's not going to make love to me or anything like it. I don't care if he's broken a thousand hearts. What's that to me? All I want from him is a job."

It was Nancy's turn to be angry now. She held the floor and she pounded her small fist on the table, just as Vic Flemming had done. Her eyes blazed, a sure sign that she meant business.

"Another thing, Vic Flemming, I simply will not have you telling me what I can do and what I can't do. You're nothing to me but a man I met two days ago and immediately you presume that you own me body and soul and that you can kiss me any time you want to. I tell you I'm not in the habit of being pawed and kissed—"

Nancy would have continued there's no knowing how long, if Vic, his eyes smoldering with admiration, hadn't jumped up and stopped the flow of words with another kiss.

All the way home he was tender with the little yellow-haired girl whom he had succeeded in making cry so many times. Nancy remained silent. At The Carmondy Vic got out of the car and followed her upstairs as though it were his own home, and when Nancy swung open the door of Ginger's room he was close at her heels. He came in without asking "may I," or "if you please."

Ginger was reading and at a glance Nancy saw that she was dressed as though she were going to a party. With relief she noticed that the room had been somewhat straightened out and the bed made.

Ginger raised her beaded lashes and then threw down the magazine when Nancy opened the door. She started to say something when Vic bounded in right after Nancy.

"Oh, for heaven's sake," was what she did say, "s'pose he's been body guardin' you all day long at the socks factory so nobody would run away with you."

She jerked her thumb in the direction of Vic, who looked a bit sheepish.

"Well, how'd it go?" Ginger wanted to know.

She drew Nancy down beside her and listened as she recited the events of the day ending with the grand surprise that Howard Wescott had asked her to work in his office.

"The big bum!"

Ginger used exactly the words that Vic had used when he heard Nancy's story.

The Treasure -:- By Madge Geyer

Treasure? Not the dross for which men slave
And fight their puny way o'er life's drear span;
Not the jewels for which men die and women give Their hope of all things eternal, not of these I think—
When treasure talk is bandied 'round.

Rather the gold of a tiny head that nestles trustfully
Close to my heart; the jewels that drip with each laughing
Coo that breaks the bow of baby lips:
These are the jewels
And treasure far above compare with earthly things.
The treasure above all price!

How to Keep Well

By Royal S. Copeland, M. D.

Milk Is Nature's Best Food for All Ages

BY all odds the best food for persons of all ages is good, sweet milk. Nature has been kind indeed to make this substance available for the use of the human family.

DR. COPELAND

As cities have grown and suburban life has driven families into the country, the dairy farms, many of them at least, are far removed from the consumers. Modern conditions, then, have made it necessary to care for milk more attentively than was the case when every family had its own cow.

I smile as I write, thinking about conditions in the town where I lived as a boy. In that day everybody kept a cow. The "commons" and nearby pastures were filled with animals belonging to the neighbors. It was the daily task of almost every boy in the community, and an occasional girl, too, to take the cow to and from the pasture.

I recall the "cow-stable," long since torn down to make a place for raspberry bushes. That was the scene of my own daily discontent.

How different it is today! Now the scientifically conducted associations and dairy companies are delivering milk to every family in the great cities as well as the smaller ones. A bottle of the purest and best of milk is to be found on the doorstep every morning. Neither rain, nor snow, nor heat, nor gloom of night interferes with these regular deliveries.

There are many elements entering into the production and distribution of good milk. There are many things that must be guarded against in order to have this chief food of man palatable and wholesome. Unless it is normal in flavor and odor it would not be acceptable.

The first consideration is its sweetness. To begin with, clean receptables are essential. But these are not sufficient. The souring process would take place anyway. To prevent this, pasteurization is practiced. The souring germs, as well as the germs of disease, are destroyed by this treatment.

But there are other matters of importance. The wrong feed stuffs, or feeding the cows at the wrong time, may result in objectionable flavor or odor. It is important to feed the cattle after milking, if this danger is to be avoided.

Certain weeds, as well as the regular feeds, may damage the milk. Garlic-infected pastures, for instance, impair the flavor of the milk.

Milk is easily tainted by contact with tainted air. Unless the barn is sweet and clean and unless the milk is kept cool in a cool place there will be trouble.

The mixture of air with the milk purifies the fluid. If the dairyman uses one of the modern methods for doing this, and then submits the milk immediately to the cooling process, he has done his part.

In every home provision should be made for proper care of the household supply. Without such care the most precious of foods will be destroyed. On the contrary, proper attention to the protection of the milk will render it the palatable, body building substance nature intended it to be.

I hope to live to see a quart of milk per person the daily ration of every man, woman and child in North America. I can think of no one thing that could be better for humanity than the practice of taking a quart of milk every day.

Answer to Health Queries

B. S. Q.—Would eating five bananas daily be responsible for pimples? I am 19 years of age.

A.—Yes, probably too rich for your system. One or two a day should be sufficient.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Consult Clergyman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Some years ago I belonged to a church, was confirmed and married and also had my baby christened from this church. Then I stayed away for a few years and now I wish to go back again and also have my boy confirmed. How should I go about this matter? C. J.

GO to see the clergyman, and he will tell you just what to do—and with an enthusiastic welcome "to the fold."

A Charming Gesture

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My family physician is leaving the city for another state, where he has a scholarship in one of the famous institutes. I would like to know if it will be correct for me to wish him health, happiness and success in his new surroundings. Would it be better to tell him personally if possible as he leaves very soon, or do you think a telephone call would be better? L. M.

IT would be a most charming and friendly gesture for you to write this gentleman the kind of note that you suggest, and I am sure that he will appreciate it. It's just the kind of letter that makes life especially happy and kind. Don't extend your good wishes and congratulations by telephone.

Place of Honor

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am planning a small dinner for a girl friend and her husband, who were recently married. Where should they be placed at the table? M.

THE bride, who is the woman guest of honor, is given the place of honor, at the right of your husband. The groom, who is the man guest of honor, is given the man-guest's place of honor, at your right.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

Polishing Off Marriage

ENGLISHMEN may have the best table-manners in the world and Frenchmen the best drawing-room manners—but the blue ribbon for the best divorce-manners goes to the American man!

When you read all the details of an English divorce, you positively glow with pride at the realization of how much more gracefully and politely almost any American husband would have done it.

Would he have packed his "temperamental" wife out of the house, and thrown her pet dog after her? He would NOT.

HELEN ROWLAND

He would have helped her pack her trunks, ordered the expressman, and rolled up her steamer rug.

He would have carried her Pekingese down to the car, and made it comfortable under the rug on the back seat.

He would have fastened the lid on her beauty cream, found her smelling salts, wrapped her purple satin shoes in tissue-paper, and placed the latest popular novel in her hand-bag.

He would have promised to engage the best lawyers for her, to see that her mail was forwarded, and to keep the thing out of the papers.

He would have provided her with all the new magazines, bought her railway ticket for her, seen that she had her favorite brand of cigarets, tipped the porter and told him to "look after the lady in lower seven."

He might have telegraphed ahead to order the florist to have her favorite flowers in her room when she arrived, or telephoned long-distance to engage her a suite with Southern exposure and a good view.

THAT'S the American man for you!

Whatever he does, he does it thoroughly, whether it's closing a business deal or a matrimonial deal. He doesn't allow his emotions and inhibitions to interfere with his common sense or spoil his good nature.

His love-making may be lacking in thrills and dramatic fervor—but his divorce-manners are postively flawless!

And, after all, the ultimate proof of a gentleman is his ability to divorce his wife as gracefully and tenderly as he courted her.

Many a woman never sees her husband at his best, until they have promised to part forever. Perhaps that is why so many American women rush back from Paris to re-marry their divorced husbands!

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

What Does Mary Intend to Do With Her Money?

AT Mary's abrupt declaration that she was not buying a leather jacket similar to the one Marion just had selected, Lillian's eyes flashed a glance of warning to me. Indeed, I found myself more disturbed by the girl's refusal than her decision concerning the garment appeared to warrant. But I had caught the longing, amounting to hunger, in her eyes, as she laid the brown jacket down, and remembering that Dicky had just given her $100 to spend on clothes, there crept into my mind the suspicion that she meant to convert some of the money to the mysterious purpose which had swallowed up her generous dress allowance from the Braithwaites.

Marion came unsuspectingly to my aid.

"You crazy thing!" she exploded. "Every girl has to have a leather jacket, and your old one's worse than mine. I'm glad mine's worn out though, for these new styles are the tiger's left chin whiskers. Here! get into this, anyway! It just matches your hair and eyes. Couldn't be better if they'd designed it especially for you."

She snatched up the jacket and crammed Mary's reluctant arms into it. Then she buttoned it to the chin and swung the girl around facing us.

"There! Isn't she a picture in it?" she demanded.

"Indeed she is," I agreed heartily and Lillian nodded a vigorous assent. And indeed, I thought, few pictures were better worth looking at than Mary with her brown eyes, her curly brown hair with the glint of auburn in it, and her gypsy coloring, all set off by the warm tints of the jacket.

"Come and look at yourself," Mary said, and dragged her off to the mirror.

"I'd pin her down and make her give you a reason for not buying it," Lillian whispered.

"I think Marion will save me the trouble," I whispered back. Marion was volubly protesting Mary's attempt to take off the coat.

"Wait till you see if the buttons have to be moved over," she was saying, and the saleswoman interposed with the assertion that the fit was perfect, an assertion to which Lillian and I agreed silently, and Marion in vehement speech.

"You'll never get another like it, you sap," she said. "Why don't you take it?"

"Because it costs $20," Mary said quietly.

"What if it does?" Marion retorted. "Didn't Uncle Dicky give you $100 just to spend on clothes?"

"Yes," Mary replied, and her face suddenly crimsoned, "but—I've got a lot of things to buy, and I can't spend a whole fifth of it on a sport jacket."

She unbuttoned the jacket determinedly and took it off. But I saw that the slender fingers undoing the buttons were trembling, and my throat muscles tightened so that I could hardly get out the query I wished to make.

"But if you were going to buy a jacket, Mary," I asked at last, "is this the one you'd like, or would you prefer another color?"

"Oh! no. This one—is perfect," she said, and there was a wistful note in her voice which strengthened a decision I suddenly had made.

"Then, will you let me make a suggestion?" I asked, trying to make my voice brisk and matter of fact. "I've been racking my brain for weeks trying to think of something to buy for your birthday next week. If you'd like this jacket, it would solve my problem, and save me a shopping trip in the bargain. What do you say? No, don't protest that it is too much, I meant to spend that much for your gift anyway. Just tell me whether or not you'd like it."

"Like it!" she repeated breathlessly. "Like it! Oh-h, Auntie Madge!"

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, January 19.

SOME signs of conflicting conditions are shown in the astrological map of this day. While personal affairs may thrive and bring happiness as well as find social, domestic or affectional satisfactions, yet other affairs are fraught with setback, annoyance and disappointment. Withal there may be beneficial change or a welcome journey.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of conflicting conditions. Home and heart affairs, social contacts and kindred activities may bring satisfaction, but otherwise there may be delays and obstructions to the plans and wishes. A journey or change of benefit is possible.

A child born on this day may have many talents and social graces, may be original and ingenious, but may have many obstacles to surmount in life.

IF RHEUMATIC BEGIN ON SALTS

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat no sweets of any kind for a while, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of Jad Salts occasionally to help keep down uric and toxic acids.

Rheumatism is caused by poison toxins, called acids, which are generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this poison, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to neutralize acidity, remove body waste, also to stimulate the kidneys, thus helping to rid the blood of these rheumatic poisons.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

Your Sunday Dinner

By PRUDENCE PENNY.

Roast Loin of Pork.
Honey Sweet Potatoes
Beets, Sour Sauce.
Cranberry Jelly.
Lettuce Salad, Rocquefort Dressing
Date Torte. Coffee.

HOW many people do you expect to dinner this Sunday? If you plan on six or seven to grace the family board, then allow for at least five pounds of the loin of pork.

Wipe the meat with a damp cloth, sprinkle it with flour, salt and pepper, and stand it on the rack in a roasting pan; put it into a hot oven, 450 degrees Fahrenheit. Bake until the meat is tender and loosens easily from the bone, it will require, in all about two hours. Baste occasionally with the fat and juice which cook out from the meat. One hour before the pork is done, put six apples—or allow one for each person—in the pan; quarter and core the apples, but do not peel them. Baste them with the juice several times, and serve them on the same platter with the pork.

Beets, served with sour sauce, go exceedingly well with roast pork. Wash the beets and cook in boiling salted water until they are soft. Drain and reserve one-half cup of the water in which they were cooked.

Plunge the beets into cold water, just rub off the skins, and cut them into cubes. Reheat them in the sour sauce, which you make after this fashion: Melt two tablespoons of butter, add two tablespoons of flour, and pour on the beet water. Add one-fourth cup each of vinegar and cream, one teaspoon of sugar, one-half teaspoon of salt, and a few grains of pepper.

DATE TORTE is perhaps one of the most popular desserts with the sweet-toothed family. Sift together ½ cup flour, ⅛ teaspoon of salt, 1 teaspoon of baking powder; beat 2 eggs and beat into them a cup and a half of sugar gradually; add ½ teaspoon of vanilla, a cup of chopped nut meats and a package of sliced, pitted dates. Now stir in the dry ingredients. Bake in a shallow pan which has been lined with paper and oiled, in a moderate oven. It will take about one hour. When cool, cut into squares, and serve with whipped cream or a small ball of vanilla ice cream.

By PRUDENCE PENNY

particularly hard to arouse her family, she need only purchase a waffle iron and make the round of the bedrooms announcing, "Waffles for breakfast today!"

If there is sour cream in the icebox, have sour cream waffles. Mix a cup of sour cream or half sour cream and half sour milk, three-quarter teaspoon soda dissolved in milk, one cup flour, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one egg yolk, one tablespoon melted fat and an egg white. Beat the egg white stiff and fold in last, making batter the consistency of whipped cream. Bake three minutes.

WAFFLEIZED French Toast is a delicious morning dish. Mix a well-beaten egg with two tablespoons of milk and a tablespoon of melted fat. Dip slices of bread, a quarter of an inch thick, into this mixture and saturate on both sides. Place on waffle iron and bake three minutes.

What about rice waffles? They're easy to make. Mix and sift one and three-quarters cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder, two tablespoons sugar, one-quarter teaspoon salt. Work in three-quarters cup cold cooked rice, add one and one-half cups sweet milk, the yolk of an egg, two teaspoons of butter. Beat well. Now fold in egg whites beaten stiff.

THE word "honeymoon" goes back many centuries to the Saxon period. It was the custom in those days for newly-married couples to drink mead—which was a kind of wine made of honey—for 30 days after the wedding ceremony. And this period came to be known as honey-month, or honeymoon.

Honey was popular, you see, way back in medieval times—and justly so. The breakfasts served in those romantic days were fearful and wonderful—just reading about the dozen or so prodigious courses makes you wonder how on earth the breakfasters had the strength left to leave the table and get to their daily chores!

Breakfasts today are more reasonable affairs. And since honey not only improves the value of the breakfast dish, but provides the body with the natural mineral elements so necessary to it, let's make honey an integral part of the daily breakfast.

Here are some honey toast recipes, bound to find immediate favor in your family's sight:

PLAIN HONEY TOAST—Trim slices of bread, having the slices about three-eighths of an inch thick. Toast to a golden brown, then butter and brush with honey. Reheat enough to have the toast absorb the honey and serve piping hot.

HONEY NUT TOAST—Follow exactly the same recipe as given above for honey toast, only sprinkle a teaspoonful of chopped walnuts over each slice of toast that has been brushed with honey. Then reheat.

HONEY NUT BREAD TOAST—Place thin slices of nut brown bread on a thin pan, oven-toast both sides, spread with butter and honey. Cut in triangles, and serve open face. Honey nut bread toast is particularly delicious when spread with orange marmalade immediately when removed from the oven.

BUTTERSCOTCH DESSERT—Make a batter of three well-beaten eggs, 2 cups of brown sugar, 1 1-3 tablespoons cornstarch, ¼ teaspoon of salt. Allow ¾ of a quart of milk to come to a boil and stir in the batter quickly. Cook for five minutes. When cool, serve with whipped cream, either sweetened or unsweetened, and sprinkle with chopped nuts.

* * *

STUFFED PEARS—Fill the halves of canned pears with preserved ginger, cut very fine. Then place the pear on crisp lettuce leaves, surround with whipped cream, and garnish with slices of the preserved ginger. This makes a very dainty appetizer.

ROYAL LADYFINGER WHIP—Set a box of ladyfingers up in a spring-form pan. Moisten the bottom of the pan with a little milk. Put a layer of chocolate snaps on the bottom of the pan and fill in the open spaces with broken snaps, then cover with whipped cream, alternating four times. You will need about three boxes of chocolate snaps, all told. Place on the ice for 24 hours. The snaps will melt right into the cream and make it very creamy and delicious.

* * *

CLUB SANDWICHES—Cut bread into slices about ¼ inch thick, then cut each slice diagonally across to form triangular pieces. Trim the crusts, and toast the bread to a golden brown on both sides, buttering slightly. Slice chicken into thin slices; broil strips of bacon until they are crisp. Now, on each slice of toast place a lettuce leaf and then a layer of sliced chicken. Spread with mayonnaise dressing; on top of this place strips of broiled bacon and a layer of cold slaw. Then another slice of toast, repeating the entire procedure if you like. Add a layer of sliced tomatoes, if you like.

JUMBLES—One-half cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, ½ cup orange juice, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, 3 cups flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, ¼ cup sour milk.

Cream shortening and sugar slowly; add beaten egg, orange and lemon juice and rind and beat thoroughly. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk. Drop by spoonfuls on greased tins or cookie sheet. Bake in a moderate over (375 degrees) 15 minutes.

SALAD—Peel choice ripe tomatoes. Scoop out inside. Sprinkle inside of shell with salt. Invert and let stand in ice box until ready to use. Mix diced pineapple with mayonnaise dressing and refill shell. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves. Garnish with stiff mayonnaise.

* * *

HONEY CAULIFLOWER PICKLES—Remove all the outside leaves and the stalks, then wash cauliflower thoroughly. Break into small flowerets. Cook in boiling salted water for 12 minutes. Rinse in cold water. Then pack the pieces in hot sterilized jars. Fill the jars with honey-spiced vinegar prepared as follows: One quart of honey vinegar, ½ cupful honey, 1 teaspoonful whole cloves, 1 teaspoon mustard seed, 1 teaspoon whole allspice, 1 teaspoon broken stick cinnamon, 1 teaspoon celery seed, 2 smal onions, sliced. Boil 15 to 20 minutes, strain and pour over sterilized jars filled with cauliflower. Seal while hot.

SWEET BUTTER COOKIES

HERE is a recipe for sweet butter cookies, which I think will please everyone. Soften ½ pound sweet butter, add a cream cheese; sift 2 cups of flour and add to the mixture. Now add 4 tablespoons sugar and knead well. Put on the ice over night. In the morning, flour board and rolling pin and roll the dough very thin. Use a fancy cutter to cut them out. Butter and flour the cookie tin. When the cookies are in the tin, brush with a beaten egg, thinned by a tablespoon of milk. Sprinkle with chopped almonds and a little granulated sugar. Watch carefully while in a hot oven. This recipe will make 100 dainty wafers.

FLAKY PASTRY (For Shells)—One cup shortening, 3 cups flour, 1 teaspoon salt, cold water. Cut the shortening into the flour which has been previously sifted with salt. Don't blend it too finely, but have the fat in small lumps distributed through the flour. Divide the mixture into two parts. To half, add enough water to make a stiff paste. Roll out on a floured board to about a quarter of an inch thickness. In the center spread the other half of the flour mixture.

Fold over the floured edges to meet the center, and roll out gently to about one-half inch thickness. Fold over again and roll again, repeating several times. Then chill the dough in the refrigerator before shaping it into shells, and bake in a hot oven.

For shells that are to be baked without filling, prick the surface with a fork to prevent blistering in the oven.

"Pepper Pot, smoking hot!"

There must be some good reason why Philadelphia Pepper Pot has kept its popularity since Colonial days. Once you taste the hearty savor of Campbell's Pepper Pot you know why. No other soup is like it!

Steaming hot in WINTER
Frosty cold in SUMMER

TETLEY TEA

is a delightful year-round drink

IN SAVORY, steaming cups of dainty porcelain, when winter winds blow chill . . . in tall, tinkling glasses, amber-clear, when summer suns are scorching down. . . . Tetley Tea lends itself gracefully to any occasion—to any season. It is refreshing, invigorating—always.

Try Tetley hot. You'll find that that fagged feeling begins to fade away with the first cheering, stimulating sip. Try Tetley with crushed ice and the tarty tang of lemon. Cooling comfort and complete contentment will meet you at the rim of the glass. And, hot or cold, you'll know for all time that it is genuinely good tea.

Tetley Tea is economical too. It goes farther because it brews stronger, but it costs no more than ordinary teas. You can get it at your grocer's in pound, ½-pound and ¼-pound packets or in tea bags for individual service.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

PICKING THE WINNER

By EFFIE DELNORD

"I CAN never explain a fur coat like this to father. I'll put it back in the box and send it straight back to Garett. Maybe that'll wake him up." Instead she slipped into the exquisite coat and hurried to the nearest mirror. She leaned her cheek against the soft, caressing fox collar and thought with a shudder how the cold always went right through the back of her old rough sport coat. A blast of icy wind against the window emphasized her need of a warm coat like this and her chin sank deeper into the soft fur. "I think," she said very softly, "I'll keep it."

She laid the coat across the bed and stared at it with hungry but dissatisfied blue eyes. "Garett knew that I've been crazy for dyed ermine. He carefully reckons that I will not be able to resist it. With the fur coat he loads the responsibility of telling father upon me. In other words, Garett's a coward. I could, of course, tell father the truth, bear the scene and, forever afterwards, having established a precedent, take the brunt of unpleasant duties. Since Garett prefers deceit rather than face one big storm, I'll give him a taste of his own medicine. It may work."

Elva chuckled as she heard her father's latch-key. "Poor thing, he's such a dreamer. It's a shame, but if he hadn't such a volcanic temper and Garett wasn't so spineless I wouldn't need to say Aunt Mary gave me the coat." Aunt Mary never came East, nor was she given to generosity, but Elva decided she would do very nicely for a short while. Garett, she was sure, would be so furious he'd throw deception in the street.

Father, it seemed, was not in a particularly good humor, so Elva waited well toward the end of the dinner before she began. "You'll never guess what happened today," she said brightly, "you know Aunt Mary out in Des Moines—"

"I know all about it," Mr. Ferbis interrupted with a bitter laugh. "Serves her right, never would loosen up. Now she's lost every cent."

Elva's blue eyes opened wide. Since Aunt Mary had lost her money she must think of somebody else, because she wanted to wear that fur coat this very evening. Her thoughts raced madly from one relative to another, and finally settled on Uncle Jerry. It was unfortunate that he lived right in the city, but since he was not popular with his relatives, being somewhat of a black sheep, and Elva and her father had not seen him for years, she decided he must do. "Too bad about Aunt Mary, but what I wanted to tell you is that I had the most wonderful surprise today. Uncle Jerry, you remember dear old Uncle Jerry—well, he sent me the loveliest fur coat!" She finished rather lamely, for her father had pushed back his chair and, standing up, with both fists on the table, he looked as if he might have a fit or something.

"What!" he wheezed, suffocating with anger, "that scoundrel, he dared to send you a fur coat! It's a bribe, that's what it is! He's the one who told me about Aunt Mary losing her money. He cheated her out of every last dollar and now he tries to bribe us to keep our mouths shut! Where is it?" he shouted.

Elva sighed. What a miserable idea it had been to have Uncle Jerry give her that coat. "Where is what?" she asked to gain time.

"Get that coat, young lady. It's going back to your Uncle Jerry. I'm going to take it back this minute."

Something like terror struck Elva's heart. Take it to Uncle Jerry! Why, that old reprobate would keep it. Her lovely fur coat, that Garett had saved and saved to give her! "Now, father, I'll get the coat, only do be reasonable. I need a fur coat and this is a beauty."

"A cheap bribe!" He was actually struggling into his overcoat. "I'll get you a fur coat myself, something good and heavy. There's no weight to that catskin." The apartment door buzzer sounded. "If that's your Uncle Jerry—" he almost choked—"Oh, it's only Garett Smith. Hello, Garett. Come here. What do you think of this? Elva's Uncle Jerry cheated us out of an inheritance and now he tries to bribe us with a fur coat. I'm taking it back to him this minute."

Elva's eyes shone. This was the moment she had been waiting for. Now Garett could show her that he was not afraid of her father, now he could come forward like a man. She waited at high tension while Garett examined the coat. Finally he said mildly, "Awful night, Mr. Ferbis, regular lumbago weather. Give me this Uncle Jerry's address and I'll take the coat."

Her father patted her shoulder. "Wait till tomorrow and I'll get you a real fur coat." Elva shuddered at the thought of a heavy, shaggy raccoon burden on her shoulders. "Stocks may go up tomorrow and I'll pick you a winner."

She raised an outraged face. "Did you ever pick a winner?" She saw him wince. "So long as I can remember you've hunted winners and bargains and you always got stung! Look at the worthless stock certificates you've got. The dining room furniture you bought as a bargain, with the veneer all coming off! The radio set that won't work! That sport coat you bought me that isn't warm! I could tell you hundreds of things. You never let me choose a thing because you're always hunting winners and bargains! But now—" she hesitated and was lost, rushing to her room and banging the door.

All the next morning she was troubled. Poor father, imagine never picking a winner! It had been cruel to rub it in. No wonder he was always so volcanic.

When the box came which evidently contained the fur coat she was almost afraid to open it.

The telephone rang and she hurried, baffled and incredulous to answer. Perhaps it was Garett who could explain. A strange voice asked "Elva?" A voice bubbling with good-nature, ringing with triumph that she finally recognized as her father's. "How do you like the coat?" Like a bomb of joy exploding. "Did I pick a winner or not?" he gloated. "Listen, it was a bargain, too. I'll never tell you what I paid for it!" He was as happy as a little boy at a circus. "Garett Smith got it for me from a wholesale house."

Elva went back to her room and looked at the coat through smarting eyes. Garett, he would go to no end of trouble for the sake of deception, rather than face a scene. In the fury of her unhappiness she grabbed the coat and flung it across the room. It fell in a crumpled heap, revealing its peach-colored lining. From the shirred pocket peeped a white envelope.

"I'm not even interested in the bill," Elva sobbed, but after a moment or two curiosity got the better of her. She bent over the luckless coat and plucked the envelope from the shirred pocket.

Garett's handwriting. Hastily she read the scribbled lines. "Elva, dear, I came last night purposely to tell your father the truth, but when I saw what a mess you had made of things with that ridiculous story of Uncle Jerry I decided it was an inopportune moment. You know how I despise scenes. It occurred to me that it might be wise to put your father in a good humor by letting him get a bargain. I really had no idea it would make him that happy. He's simply beaming, so sometime this afternoon I'll stop in his office and tell him the truth without a scene—that we were married last August. Love and kisses, your Garett. P. S. Set another plate on the dinner table, I'm coming home with your father and I'm bringing my suitcase along."

Milk Cocoa like our famous Milk Chocolate Bar

Taste a little as it comes from the tin. How creamy it is! The milk's already in it!

The purest, freshest full-cream milk is blended with the cocoa and sugar by the same secret process Daniel Peter used to make the original milk chocolate.

Blended so finely, so perfectly that no cooking is needed. You just add hot water to replace the moisture that has been removed from the milk.

So there is no flat "cooked taste" of boiled or heated milk—no unpleasant scum—no scorching.

You make Peter's Milk Cocoa right in the cup—just by adding hot water. Nothing could be easier. Yet you have a delicious, highly nutritious drink—made of the choicest, rich cocoa, fine table sugar, and the purest, freshest, full-cream milk, blended by the makers of Peter's—the original milk chocolate bar.

WITH ORDINARY COCOA YOU MUST BUY THREE THINGS SUGAR COCOA MILK

WITH PETER'S YOU NEED ONLY HOT WATER

Fresh full-cream milk and fine table sugar are already in it. No bothersome cooking, no scum, no scorching, no pans to wash.

FIRE DESTROYS OLD BOXING CENTER

ONE prediction that Manager Donie Bush, of the Pirates, does not hesitate to make in looking forward to the 1929 baseball season, is that in Ralston Hemsley the Pittsburgh club is going to have one of the best young catchers in the major leagues. The Buccaneer skipper's original opinion that Hemsley was destined to make a name for himself in fast company was strengthened by the gradual improvement shown by the recruit in the 49 games that he caught for the locals last year. "I'll be greatly surprised if Hemsley doesn't make them all sit up the coming season," says Bush. "He has everything needed to assure his success behind the bat and ought to make a whale of a catcher. I don't see how he can miss."

Ralston Hemsley

And the promise shown by Hemsley is all the more pleasing to Donie for the reason that young catchers of ability are mighty scarce in baseball at present. Minor league managers say that youthful receivers of ability are more difficult to find than men for any other positions, and they are borne out in that statement by the fact that many aged backstops who long since outlived their usefulness in the majors are still hanging on the smaller circuits. The minors are forced to retain them because they can't find enough younger maskmen to meet their needs.

IN VIEW of this situation, Bush considers himself doubly fortunate in having so good a prospect as Hemsley in his catching department. Only rarely nowadays does a big league club succeed in picking up a recruit backstop combining so much mental and mechanical ability.

In fact, Bush says he finds the Pirate catching outlook as a whole decidedly encouraging. Charley Hargreaves is the only member of the corps who may be termed a veteran, but the remainder of the available material is uncommonly promising. Hemsley isn't the only good bet in the lot, for Roy Spencer comes back to the majors looking like a finished receiver who is likely to give valuable service, and Claude Linton and John O'Connell are two others who hold out considerable promise.

CHARLES A. COMISKEY, owner of the Chicago American League club and one of the oldest baseball men now in the game, sees a need for more prodding and pushing by team managers with a view to making young players correct their faults and bringing out the best that is in them.

"Young ball players do not develop into stars of their own accord," said the White Sox chief. "No star of the past ever got to the top without being pushed along. A manager must be able to see the little faults of young players and urge their correction.

Charles A. Comiskey

"THERE are too many players today willing to string along merrily instead of trying to learn something and advance. They never will advance, and consequently never will be winners, unless they are pushed, and somebody has to do the pushing. We have no better example of what pushing and practice will do than the case of old Ed Walsh. Walsh never would have succeeded in getting anywhere if he hadn't learned how to throw the spitball and then practiced it hours and hours a day for a whole summer. Even then, he found he had another fault. He couldn't hold men on the bases. We worked with him on a balk motion, which he perfected by untiring practice, and then he became one of the greatest pitchers of all time."

ANNOUNCEMENT of the completion of training arrangements by all of the major league baseball clubs shows that, as was the case last spring, 10 of the 16 teams will do their conditioning work in Florida this year. Two will go to California, two to Texas, one to Louisiana and one to Arizona. Following is the complete list of practice sites.

KNUTE ROCKNE, Notre Dame football coach, admits that picking an all-American team is a tough job, in which the final selections always are open to argument, but says that, in his opinion, singling out the best individual player of 1928 is not at all difficult. He awarded the honor to Christy Cagle, sensational halfback of the Army.

"There were a lot of good ones, but I'd have to rate Cagle above all the rest," he said. "He could run, he could cut sharply, sway nicely, topple tacklers, change his pace, and anticipate plays better than any other man I saw during 1928. He could pass, and he could kick, if called upon.

Christy Cagle

"BESIDES, Cagle had that indefinable thing that coaches look for in a man but find only a few times in a lifetime—football sense. He knew what to do almost before a situation opened up for him. And when he started to put a play into motion, he was all speed, all vim and action. He was the hardest man to bring down and hold down that my team tackled all season, and we were all set for him, too. He was a great player, no mistake." Rockne, incidentally, denies reports that he may leave Notre Dame. He says there is not a chance, for three more years, at least, as he is signed to a four-year contract, only one year of which has been served.

ONE of Pittsburgh's old boxing centers passed out when fire destroyed Cyclorama Hall, at Beech and Irwin avenues, on the North Side. That was one of the spots to which the fight fans of the city and vicinity often hied more than a quarter of a century ago to witness both amateur and professional bouts.

It was in Cyclorama hall that the first of the A. A. U. National championship boxing and wrestling tournaments held in this city was staged. That was in 1895, when Louden Campbell, in the 125-pound class, won the first national amateur title ever brought to Pittsburgh. The tournament was held by the Western University of Pennsylvania Athletic Association. In later years Tim Kearns fought Eddie Kennedy in that building, and Tim Callahan and other top-notch Eastern fighters also appeared there. The place was also used as a roller rink and for other athletic events.

JAMES J. BRADDOCK, Jersey City light-heavyweight, won a place in the fistic spotlight by first smearing Pete Latzo and then

By the simple expedient of beating downtrodden Ralston High this afternoon, Peabody can step back into the Section One leadership of the City League. The fly in the ointment arises in the fact that Ralston is about ready to step out and win a ball game, and may do so today at Peabody's expense.

In Section Two, South Hills and Allegheny have fine opportunities to break up the tie that exists between Perry and Oliver for the sectional lead. South Hills can step right out in front by beating Perry, provided Aldegheny topples Oliver. Both Perry and Oliver are undefeated, while South Hills has won three games and lost one. So you can see the possibilities to today's contests in the section.

CARRICK MAY WIN

In a second Section One contest, Westinghouse and Schenley will battle it out at Westinghouse. One of the two will be in fifth place tonight. The chances are that it will be Westinghouse.

In the second division, Vocational and Carrick, both sans victory, will clash at Carrick. It appears as though Carrick is due for its first win, for Vocational has failed to show any hint of strength enough to warrant being picked to beat the Lyons passers.

In the W. P. I. A. L., sectional leaders in divisions five, seven and 10 will meet more or less serious opposition. In Section Five, Monongahela will strive mightily to bump off Earl Zook's crack undefeated Waynesburg High team. In Section Seven, Elizabeth is primed to give Homestead a tough evening and West Newton is looking forward hopefully to the contest with Scottdale.

Braves, Red Sox Offered Sunday Ball Grounds

REVERE, Mass., Jan. 18.—(INS.)—Invitation to the Boston Braves and Boston Red Sox to play week day as well as Sunday baseball here has been sent by Mayor Andrew A. Cassassa to President Robert Quinn, of the Red Sox, and Vice President Charles F. Adams, of the Braves.

Mayor Cassassa said the city would remodel Wonderland Park and would give the unemployed work in the erection of stands to accommodate 50,000 spectators.

P. I. A. L. rules, Howe of Beaver Falls High. The decision automatically expelled New Castle for one year. A plea for re-hearing was denied.

GENERALS SIGN COLLINS

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 18.—Frank Collins, 21, of Richmond, Va., a rookie shortstop sought by several Southern clubs for the coming season, has signed with the Clarksburg Generals, of the Mid-Atlantic Baseball League, it was announced today by Chappie Marable, manager.

PANTHERS HOLD EDGE OVER MOUNTAINEERS

By JESS CARVER.

THE basketball teams of Pitt and West Virginia will attempt to prove tonight that 50,000 Mountaineers and 50,000 Pittsburghers can't be wrong. Inasmuch as both can't be right, someone is going to be made out a fibber before the evening is o'er.

"Little Sleepy" Glenn.

Pittsburghers, familiar with Panther fives emerging on the long end of the count here in the city for the past two years, are hard to convince that a Pitt team can lose. They were astounded, to put it mildly, when the Panthers took three on the chin out West. Since the Golden Cats have returned home they've re-established the confidence of the local folk by trimming Iowa, Indiana, Carnegie Tech and Waynesburg.

West Virginians are all hopped up over the impressive five-game winning streak the Mountaineers have set up so far and over the far from shabby showing of the Men of Stadsvold last season. Pitt took the Mountaineers twice last winter, but at Morgantown were able to win only after a terrific struggle.

W. VA. SQUAD STRONG

The Mountaineer five of this year is heralded as being the best that has ever represented the Morgantown institution. Marshall (Little Sleepy) Glenn, an all-America scholastic forward, along with Charley Hyatt, of Pitt, during his high school days; Truehart Taylor, Jim Black, the perennial guard; Swede Hagberg, Ratcliffe, Lepera, Eddie Stumpp, Fox and Sharp compose a formidable squad.

And lest you forget, there are few smarter coaches in the country than his honor, Francis Stadsvold, scholar, coach and gentleman.

Tonight's ball game will start at 8 o'clock with a preliminary beginning at 7. The Pitt freshmen will meet Jakie Bohren's Bellefonte Academy passers in the prelim.

HYATT TO START

From a Pitt angle, tonight's game is extremely important. Pitt must win both games from West Virginia

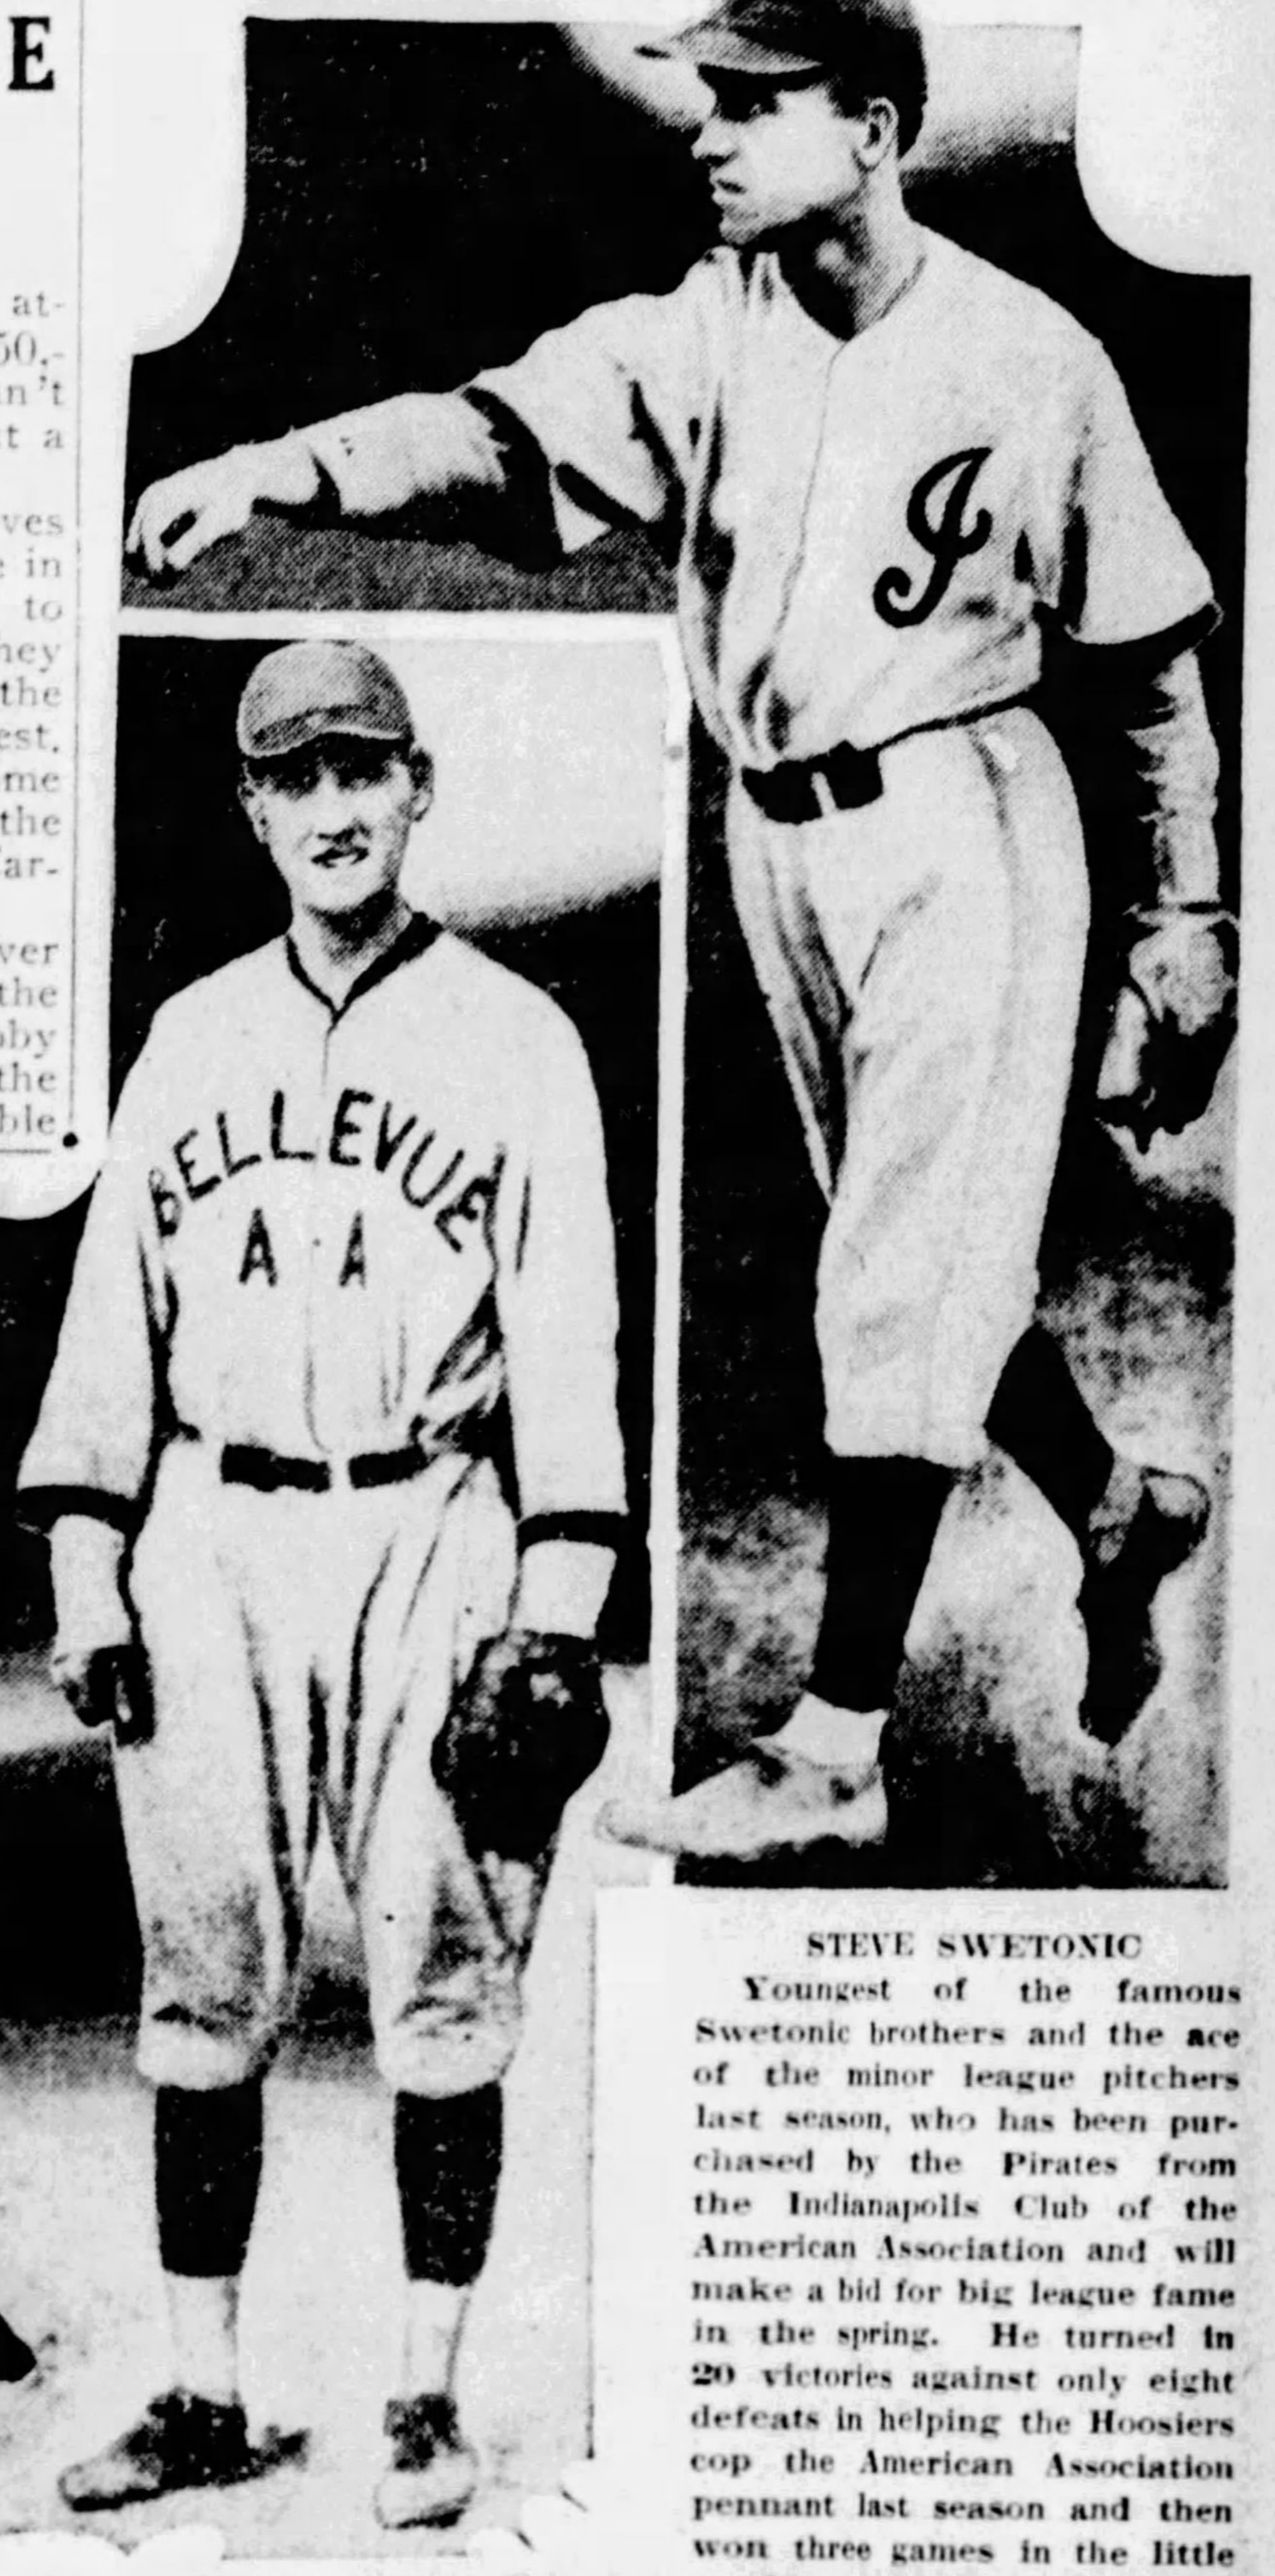
BROTHERS ALL



STEVE SWETONIC

Youngest of the famous Swetonic brothers and the ace of the minor league pitchers last season, who has been purchased by the Pirates from the Indianapolis Club of the American Association and will make a bid for big league fame in the spring. He turned in 20 victories against only eight defeats in helping the Hoosiers cop the American Association pennant last season and then won three games in the little world series with Rochester of the International League. He formerly pitched for Allegheny High School, the University of Pittsburgh and Bellevue in the County League.

ANDY SWETONIC

Third of the Swetonic brothers to make good in baseball. He is a second baseman and played in the New England League last season.

JOE SWETONIC

Oldest of the four baseball-playing Swetonics. He was one of the best shortstops in the Pittsburgh district, but preferred to remain in the semi-pro ranks and work on the side. He starred for Ambridge and Bellevue, both of which clubs went over big with the Swetonics in their lineups. Joe has been in poor health recently.

JIM SWETONIC

Eight years ago, the Pirates picked up Jim Swetonic, of Ambridge, for a trial at third base. After the training trip he was sent to Columbus in the American Association, but later decided to give up league baseball to return to his job with the American Bridge Company at Ambridge.

PITT BANQUET TOMORROW

Approximately 500 students, alumni and friends of the University of Pittsburgh will do honor to Pitt gridders of 1928 at the annual football banquet of the university at the Schenley Hotel tomorrow night. Members of the varsity and freshman squads will be honor guests, and a concert by the Pitt band will be a feature of the entertainment program.

The election of the 1929 Panther captain will be one of the high lights of the evening's activities.

Mayor Charles H. Kline and members of City Council will attend.

SWETONIC HAS HIGHEST A. A. PITCHING AVERAGE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

THE unassuming Steve Swetonic is finding it impossible to stay out of the headlines these mid-winter days. The star sharpshooter just purchased by the Pirates from Indianapolis stands out pre-eminently in the official pitching averages of the American Association which were made known today.

Winning 20 and losing eight games, Steve had .714 for the highest percentage of all the regular pitchers of the circuit and he was fourth in the point of earned runs permitted. The North Side youth allowed only three tallies per game.

BRAME LEADER

Ervin Brame, of the Pirates, was the nominal leader, both in percentage of victories and earned-run efficiency, but Ervin pitched in only six games. He won four and lost one.

Heimach, of St. Paul, who was purchased by the Yanks in mid-season, was the real leader of the league as computed from earned-run methods. In winning 18 and losing 10 games, the lefthander yielded only 2.72 runs per game. Ash, of Columbus, and Hopkins, of St. Paul, were the only others to surpass Swetonic along earned-run lines.

Emil Yde, erstwhile Pirate lefthander, just missed the 20-victory mark by winning 19 and losing 12 for Indianapolis.

Jimmy Zinn, another hurler of Pirate lore, was the real strong man of the league with 22 triumphs and 13 setbacks. The Kansas City ace pitched more innings than any of his contemporaries.

Rosy Ryan, former Giant star, who also was acquired by the Yankees in the progress of the last race, enjoyed a big season for Toledo. Rosy was high among the pitchers with 11 victories and five defeats. The Yanks, however, decided to send Rosy back.

BURWELL NEAR TOP

Bill Burwell, of Indianapolis, who had a short try with the Pirates last summer, also finished near the top. Bill was effective as he won 13 and lost 10 for the Hoosiers.

Claude (Bubber) Jonnard, one of the famous twins, was among the honor pitchers who won as many as 20 games. Bubber copped 20 while losing 11 for Milwaukee.

Heinie Meine, bought by the Buccos from Kansas City, won 15 and lost seven games.

Johnny Morrison, an ace with the Buccos, not so long ago, could registered but one victory in seven games for Kansas City. Big Tom Sheehan won 16 and lost the same number of games.

BIG TEN BREAKS WITH A. A. U.

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—The Western Conference has broken off relations with the Amateur Athletic Union of America and henceforth will conduct its own athletic meets independently, Maj. John L. Griffith, Conference athletic commissioner, revealed today.

The action, which Maj. Griffith said was agreed to by every member of the Conference, culminates a quarrel between the two organizations, which has been simmering for years, but which reached its breaking point this past week when Northwestern University and Ohio State rebelled at A. A. U. policies.

AMERICAN SECTION GAINS IN HOCKEY LEAGUE

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

THE balance of power in the National Professional Hockey League is swinging from the International Group to the American Group, and this season, for the first time in the history of the organization, American teams are defeating Canadian teams more often than they are being downed by the skaters from the Dominion. When the league was reorganized to include American cities, the International, or Canadian Group, made up of the Montreal Maroons and Les Canadiens, Ottawa Senators, Toronto Leafs and New York Americans, was the stronger of the two divisions by a wide margin.

The Canadians withstood the assault of the American dollars for several seasons and until the present campaign maintained their margin of superiority.

In 49 games with American Group rivals this season up to last night, International Group teams have scored 21 victories, shared in 10 ties and bowed in defeat 18 times. The record, obviously, would indicate that the Canadian teams still are superior, but the record is misleading in that the New York Americans are the International Group's biggest winner. The Americans are setting the pace in the International Group, and when their victories are listed in the American column the Yankees enjoy a comfortable edge.

MOREOVER, American Group teams did not register a single victory over a Canadian team until December 2. The New York Rangers, the Boston Bruins and the Detroit Cougars are growing stronger as the season progresses, and they have overwhelmed Canadian opposition in recent weeks. Indications are that the American Group will be well out in front at the finish.

Pittsburgh's Pirates have gained three victories and three ties in 10 meetings with International Group teams. Chicago, losing eight and winning only two, has been a setup for Canadian foemen.

Dollars dominate any pro sport, and Uncle Sam's iron men are wasting no time in moving the hockey capitol across the border.

Fred Hayner, the Chicago boxing writer, who was found burned to death in the cellar of his home the other day, was a real veteran in the business. He was familiar with the days of Sullivan, Corbett, Fitzsimmons, Jeffries, et al., and still was active at the time of his death. He was a familiar figure around the training camps prior to the big heavyweight fights. He was a former football star and prominent as an official in addition to being a sports writer and editor.

FROM Charley Rohleder, local sandlot pitcher who has been in Detroit since last September, comes some interesting data on the recent lightweight ring battles in the automobile city. Rohleder, who was a good amateur boxer, knows something about the racket and his sizeup of Ray Miller, the Chicago left hook artist, who has been a sensation in Detroit, therefore, is interesting. He says Jimmy McLarnin was not in shape when he met Miller and was knocked out recently and that Tommy Grogan, the Omaha puncher, who was stopped by Miller last week, does not rate among the leaders.

"Grogan is simply a right-hand swinger," Rohleder writes, "and Miller is of a similar type, except that his left hand packs his best punch. Grogan dropped Miller six times before Ray came back and knocked him out. Miller does not strike me as a championship prospect, despite his impressive record. He is neither clever nor shifty and lacks the polish of a real contender."

INSTITUTIONAL CIRCUIT FACES BUSY WEEK-END

By JULIUS LEVIN.

MEMBERS of the Greater Pittsburgh Institutional League, Western Pennsylvania's only first-class amateur loop operating this season, face a busy week-end when no less than three second-round games will be presented.

The first-half schedule was brought to a close Wednesday night when Kingsley House succeeded in defeating North Side Community House in a playoff game, enabling the Yettermen to tie the Young Men's Hebrew Association for first place. The deadlock will be broken on Thursday, January 31, when the two teams meet on a neutral floor, yet to be selected. According to present plans, East Liberty Y. M. C. A. will be the scene of the contest.

HEINZ AT HILL TOP

Tonight Coach Francis will take his Heinz House aggregation to Hill Top Y. M. C. A. where the Mount Oliver passers are met in a league encounter. Heinz House dropped some tough decisions in the first half of the race and is determined to make up for lost ground in the second half.

Tomorrow night will find the remaining four contenders in action in league contests. Kingsley House will renew a feud of long standing when it clashes with Coach Scher's Y. M. H. A. team. Inasmuch as these two clubs finished in a tie for the first half title tomorrow's game will give the fans a good chance to compare them. In the two games played between the clubs so far, Kingsley copped the first one and the Bellefielders the second.

In the other game scheduled tomorrow Coach Dalton Williams' East Liberty Y. M. C. A. passers will oppose North Side Community House. Community got off to a great start in the first half of the race, but its victories went for naught when it was discovered that several ineligible players were in the lineup. The North Siders, however, possess one of the best teams in the loop and it would not surprise followers of the circuit to see them win the second half title.

Undisputed possession of first place in the Commercial-Industrial League will be at stake tonight when Kaufmanns clashes with Peoples Trust in one of the two league games on the program. The Robertsons meet Carnegie Steel in the first battle. Both games are carded for the South Side Market House.

The Morrys, of Braddock, invade Scottdale tomorrow night where they play the Buick five.

Uniontown Promoter Plans Suit, New Show

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Injunction proceedings to determine the right of the Pennsylvania Boxing Commission to interfere with amateur boxing matches will be instituted today or tomorrow by E. J. McDaniel, engaged as counsel by the Al Sands Athletic Club, whose show was stopped Wednesday night by state police after a complaint had been made by M. J. Canavan, representing Commissioner Havey Boyle, Pittsburgh.

Al Sandorfy, president of the athletic club, said a damage suit also will be instituted, but that the injunction proceedings will be started in order to protect a show he plans to hold here January 30 in defiance of the commission.

BAGSHAW 'FIRED' BY STUDENTS

SEATTLE, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Enoch Bagshaw, head football coach at the University of Washington for the last eight years, was ousted early today by the student board of control, which voted to relieve him of his duties and assign him to other work until his contract, which has three years to run, expires. The finality of the decision was questioned by members of the faculty athletic committee, which hires coaches.

Bagshaw's contract calls for the payment of approximately $25,000 in the next three years. Under the action taken he will receive this money.

Charges leveled at the little coach were that he was unpopular, lacked drawing power at the gate, failed to draw football material from high schools and would have to be removed at some time.

SHARON MEETS OLD RIVAL

SHARON, Pa., Jan. 18.—Sharon and Sharpsville Highs will resume their basketball relationships tonight, when the two cage teams meet on the local court. AMATEURS CLASH

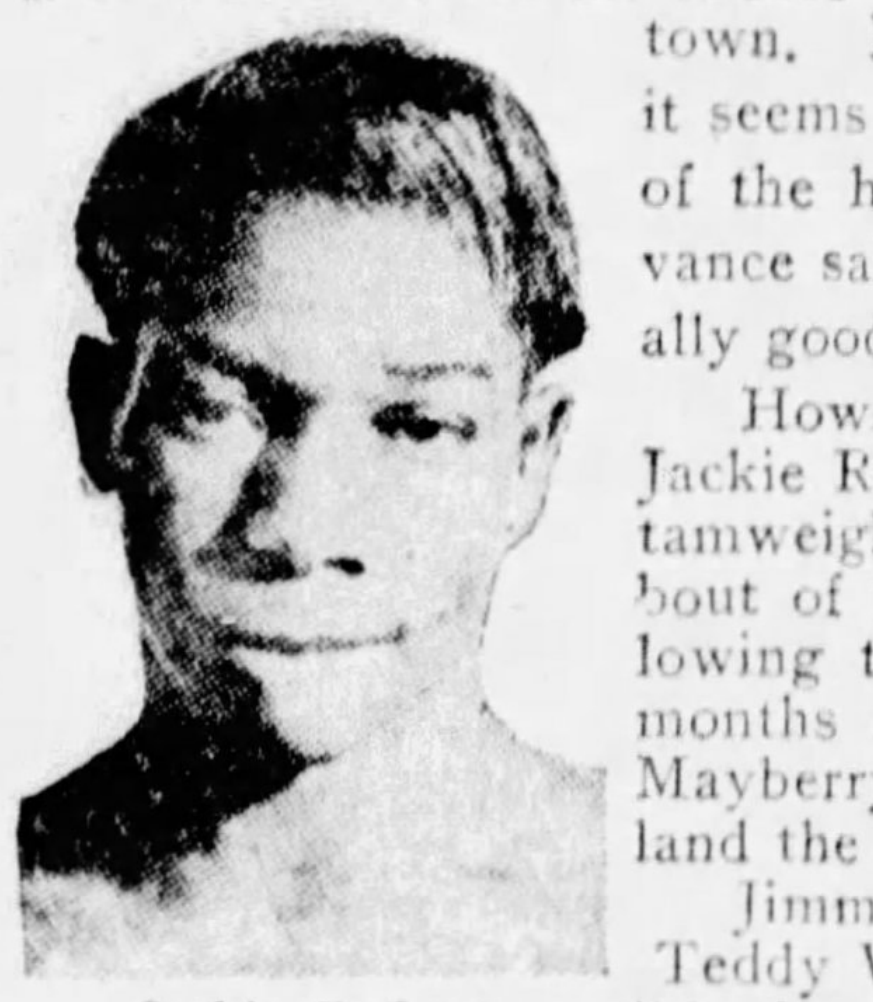
THE DeMolay and Shady Side Academy teams of the West Penn Amateur Hockey League clash on the Duquesne Garden ice tonight. Neither has yet won a game in the circuit.

MAYBERRY, RODGERS CLASH AT NEW CLUB TONIGHT



Jackie Rodgers.

PITTSBURGH'S new boxing club formally makes it bow to the public tonight, when Promoter Francis Flynn offers a card of bouts in the Moose Temple, in Penn avenue, downtown. Popular prices will prevail and it seems assured that the small capacity of the hall will be sold out. The advance sale of tickets has been exceptionally good.

Howard Mayberry, of Donora, and Jackie Rodgers, of the North Side, bantamweight rivals, will vie in the main bout of 10 rounds, a return match following their sensational mill of a few months ago in McKeesport, in which Mayberry came strong at the finish to land the decision.

Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, and Teddy Welch, of McKeesport, will collide in the six-round semi-final; Mike Hogan, of the North Side, will battle Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg, in the second event, and George Tomosky, of Wilmerding, and Sammy Paris, of the Hill, will be the principals in the six-round opener, which will get under way at 8:30 o'clock. The doors will open at 7, and the boxers will weigh in at Flynn's gymnasium at 3.

BRADDOCK VS. LOMSKI

Jimmy Braddock and Leo Lomski blast knockout wallops at each other in a light heavyweight elimination bout in Madison Square Garden, New York, tonight. Phil Kaplan boxes Babe McGorgary and Nando Tassi meets Charley Beanger in other 10-round bouts on the card.

Dan Billick, Duquesne bantamweight, and Andy Seable box a six-round bout at Ossining, N. Y., tonight.

Johnny Risko is to be the next to test Max Schmeling, the German heavyweight. They will clash in Madison Square Garden, New York, February 1. Otto Von Porat will be one of the principals in the semi-final.

Louis (Kid) Kaplan, former featherweight champion, boxes Phil McGraw, at Waterbury, Conn., February 1.

GRACE TO BOX LAWLESS

Myer Grace and Bucky Lawless have been signed to box the 10-round semi-final to the Jimmy Slattery-Jimmy Mahoney bout in Buffalo next Monday night. Mahoney gave Slats a hard fight in Chicago a month ago.

Jimmy Jones, of Youngstown, returns to the fistic wars tonight in a 10-round bout with Eddie Dempsey, of Philadelphia, at Youngstown.

Frankie Genaro and Tommy Paul, flyweights, battle in Buffalo tonight.

Dominick Proflo, of Cecil, and Young Rudy, of Charleroi, have been matched for the 10-round main bout at McKeesport next Thursday night. An eight-round semi-final and two six-round preliminaries will complete the bill.

Tony Canzoneri, former featherweight champion, meets Armando Santiago in Chicago tonight, with Loue Bloom and Eddie Shea boxing the semi-final. Santiago recently knocked out Joey Sangor in two rounds.

GAMES TOMORROW NIGHT.

Pirates vs. Detroit at Duquesne Garden (8:30).
Montreal at Ottawa.
Rangers at Canadiens.

By CARL W. SHATTO.

A little less than three weeks ago it was Happy New Year. Today it is just another year to most people, but to Benny Leonard's ice Pirates, who favor extremes, it is Gloomy New Year—with accent on the gloom.

The Pirates, fighting for a place in the money and the title play-offs in the National Hockey League, have been waging a lone battle since Papa Time tossed 1928 into the ash can; no "outside" club has defeated Detroit, Boston or the New York Rangers, the three teams in front of the Bucs, this year. The Cougars, Bruins and Rangers have done a little throat-cutting among themselves, but as for outsiders—they have downed them with monotonous regularity.

BUCS GET NO HELP

In most pennant races a flag contender can look to an "also ran" for a little assistance, but the Pirates are getting no aid whatsoever. The Bostonians, Detroiters and New Yorkers have not lost a decision to an International Group team this year, and the Chicago Hawks, American Group tailenders, have been a total loss from a Pittsburgh standpoint. Trying to gain on a club that won't lose is a tough proposition, and the only way that the Bucs can solve the problem is to defeat Detroit and Boston in their every meeting from now until the finish.

And the mystery has been solved none too soon, for the Cougars from Michigan invade Duquesne Garden tomorrow night. If the Bucs succeed in downing Detroit they will be in a fairly comfortable position, but if the Pirates lose—well, they might just as well prepare to take the long count. True, Leonard's skaters still would have a mathematical chance, but a mathematical chance is a poor substitute for a victory tonic.

READY FOR FIGHT

The records would indicate that Detroit will rule a heavy favorite in tomorrow night's battle, for the Bucs have not defeated the Cougars in three meetings this season, but the locals are in better condition than they have been since the season inaugural and they are certain to give the invaders plenty of opposition. Idle from league competition since Sunday, the Pirates have spent this week in drilling for the Detroit encounter; the importance of the fight is fully realized, and if Cleghorn's men fail in the big test there can be no alibi.

Fight Results

At McKeesport—Henry Firpo defeated Young Saylor, 10 rounds; Young Gizzy defeated Ken Hargraves, 10 rounds; Tommy Heilman defeated Frankie Moran, 6 rounds; Johnny Russell knocked out (technical) Frank De Angelo, 3 rounds.

At Davenport, Ia.—Otto Van Porat knocked out Tom Sayers, 3 rounds; K. O. White defeated Benny (Kid) Stanley, 8 rounds.

At Minneapolis—Armand Emanuel defeated Harry Dillon, 10 rounds.

At Jersey City—Ossie Bobkins knocked out (technical) Mickey Marchietta, 1 round.

At Waterville, Me.—Art Giroux and Johnny Ross drew, 6 rounds.

MOUNTAINEERS PLAY PITT

this year to insure the capturing of the Tri-State title, for the Panthers do not play as many district rivals as do the Mountaineers. An even split in the two-game series and with each team winning the remainder of its contests will give the title to West Virginia on a percentage basis.

Charley Hyatt is fit to start tonight, his injured leg having responded to treatment. That announcement is as welcome as money from home to the Pitt folk.

The probable lineup:

Pitt.		West Virginia.
Hyatt	F.	M. Glenn
Zehfuss	F.	Lepera
L. Cohen	C.	Hagberg
Baker	G.	Plaster
Wunderlich	G.	Bartrug

Officials—Daugherty and Bolster.

GENEVA-TITANS CLASH

The most important out-of-the-city contest of the night and the second most important in the section is the Geneva-Westminster Conference clash at Beaver Falls.

Westminster, by winning tonight, will not only regain the undisputed lead in the Conference, but should Pitt defeat West Virginia, will step to the fore in the entire section with a record of four games won and none lost. If Pitt wins and Westminster loses, the Panthers will lead the parade.

Geneva would rather beat Westminster than any other club in the district, with the possible exception of Duquesne. So you can imagine the sort of a contest on the books for Beaver Falls tonight.

HANSEN HAS FLU

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Knute Hansen has been stricken with influenza and will be unable to match punches with Emmett Rocco, of Akron, O., in the semi-final match to the K. O. Christner-Jack Sharkey battle in Madison Square Garden next Friday night. Jack Gross, Camden, N. J., heavyweight, has been picked as a substitute.

stopping Tuffy Griffiths, in two rounds, but he cannot be said to have passed his real test until after an engagement that is on his schedule for tonight.

Braddock is to meet Leo Lomski for 10 rounds in New York, and his later possibilities will depend largely upon the showing he makes against his Aberdeen opponent.

Leo Lomski

IF Braddock meets with a reverse his championship chances will suffer, but if he can repeat against Lomski the victory he scored at the expense of Griffiths he will be first in line for a title match with Tommy Loughran. Lomski had a shot at the champion, but lost out after flooring Loughran in the first round. Leo has been idle for four months, which may affect his form tonight, but even at that his greater experience and aggressive style will make him a tough hurdle for Braddock to clear. Tonight's outside fight card offers some other numbers of interest. Tony Canzoneri meets Armando Santiago in Chicago, Benny Bass hooks up with Joey Rivers in St. Louis, and Armand Emanuel faces Harry Dillon in Minneapolis.

RICKARD and the RING

By JACK DEMPSEY,
World's Greatest Ring Idol

Tex Had Faith in Outdoor Fights

BEING up to my neck in the details of promoting the Sharkey-Stribling fight in Miami Beach, I'm beginning to understand just what Tex Rickard had to go through every time he promoted a big bout. A boxer has plenty on his mind after a battle is arranged. It is solid, thumping work getting into shape, but after the work is over you can go to bed and sleep dreamlessly. There is no dreamless sleep for the businessman back of the affair, though.

Jack Dempsey.

Tex used to say:

"The outdoor fight in a specially built arena is the ideal background for a championship fight. It adds a sort of glamor to it—the atmosphere that I suppose they had in the old Roman gladiatorial shows.

"That means a lot, you know. People take more to a thing like that when they have to arrange for trips and parties, and go to some trouble to get there. Say, if the Army-Navy game was staged in Madison Square Garden—supposing it was big enough—it would soon die as an attraction. You must have the right surroundings to get the crowd, and you can't get football atmosphere indoors. In the same way there's no place like the outdoors for a big fight.

"Look at the trouble folks went to getting to Goldfield, when I put on Gans and Nelson. There was adventure and excitement to that—something 'way out of the ordinary for the general run of fellows.

Sport Appeals

"Of course, I had a great attraction. That's the most necessary thing. The attraction's got to be on both sides, too. That's why the Shelby thing flopped. You're the greatest drawing card that ever lived, Jack, but putting you on there with Gibbons was bad psychology. Besides, they had a $300,000 purse to handle, while I had a $30,000 one. That was the difference between Goldfield and Shelby, and the reason why I made money and they went broke.

"Some promoters boost a grudge fight. They think that if the fans get an idea there's bad blood between a couple of fighters they'll flock to see the fight. I don't think that's so. Americans want to see a hard battle, but they want to think that it's all in the game—just sport. Maybe people not brought up to our ideas think differently.

Somebody told me that a famous opera singer went to see a fight—the first one she had ever seen. She became very excited and partisan. Afterward she said, 'I can understand how they will punch and strike each other, and bring blood; but why do they shake hands afterward?'

"That isn't the idea of most fans."

Many Details

Rickard was right about that, beyond any question. In so-called grudge fights the men usually become rough and fouls result. The crowd boos its disapproval. They want to see a clean bout, and they admire the touch of sportsmanship that goes with the handshake afterward. There is no sense in grudges.

But, getting back to the difficulties of the promoter. There are a thousand details to be looked after, aside from the task of signing up the principals. That is usually the least difficult part of the job. Building the arena not only costs money, but takes time and continued effort and attention to get in shape.

Tex always reveled in these details. The greater the difficulties that confronted him, the more interested he was in the problem. That was the biggest part of the game to him—overlooking difficulties.

I feel certain that the Stribling-Sharkey fight will be a success. We will make it a success for Tex's sake. He was so tremendously interested in putting it over—the first big bout that has ever been staged in Florida.

Here are two outstanding contenders for the heavyweight championship. I've fought Sharkey and know his possibilities. I never have been in the ring with Stribling, but I have seen him in action. He is a good man—a very good man. Miami Beach is steamed up over this bout. All Florida is talking about it, and Florida is full of wealthy people from the North, all of whom are sportsmen and consequently interested in boxing.

It is going over. Watch our smoke. We can't fail with the inspiration of doing this for Tex Rickard's sake.

Dempsey Calls Off Strib's Go With McAuliffe

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Jack Dempsey, handling the promoting end of the Stribling-Sharkey fight at Miami Beach, February 27, has refused to permit Young Stribling to engage in any matches after January 25.

A fight scheduled for Stribling with Jack McAuliffe, of Detroit, in Atlanta, January 29, has been called off by the promoters, following word from "Pa" Stribling that Dempsey has put his foot down on any matches after Stribling's fight with Ralph Smith in New Orleans, January 25.

SWIM MEETS CARDED

A triple aquatic attraction has been announced for the Pittsburgh Athletic Association pool tomorrow evening by Gordon Mullen, Winged Head athletic director. The three-fold water feature includes two dual swimming meets, one between the P. A. A. team and Carnegie Tech and the others involving Pitt with Allegheny College, and a water-polo contest bringing together the Red and Gray natators and the crack Homestead Library aggregation.

FIRPO, YOUNG GIZZY WIN M'KEESPORT FIGHTS

TWO sets of fireworks, 10 rounds each, marked the double windup of the Majestic Club at McKeesport last night. Henry Firpo, scrapper from Louisville, traded wallops with Young Saylor, of Charleroi, and came out of the melee with the decision. Saylor was on the receiving end of most of the punching.

In the other half of the main show, Young Gizzy, of Donora, was rendered the verdict over Ken Hargraves, of New Kensington, in a bout chock full of action.

A pair of substitutions marked the preliminary contests. Tommy Heilman, of Monongahela, went in the ring in place of Johnny Michaels, who showed up with a broken rib, and delivered a six-round beating to Frankie Moran. The scheduled heavyweight opener was shifted to a middleweight fracas when Johnny Russell was substituted for Al Walker. He proceeded to knock out Frank De Angelo in the third round, the referee stopping the bout after De Angelo had hit the canvas twice.

The first of the two 10-rounders was so close that it was not decided until the last stanza. Gizzy sent Hargraves to the mat for a count of nine with a terrific wallop, and it was upon this punch that the verdict revolved.

Until that time each fighter had been sent to the floor. Gizzy was sent plunging through the ropes at the edge of the ring with Hargraves' first punch in the opening round. The New Kensington fighter held this edge until the fourth round, when Gizzy dropped him for an eight count with a straight right to the chin.

Gizzy was off-balance in the fifth when Hargraves sent over a neat right, flooring the Donora pug, who was back on his feet before the referee could start his count. In the tenth Gizzy put across the punch that won him the bout.

GROVERS LOSE TO ALLEGHENY

GROVE CITY, Pa., Jan. 18.—The foul shooting average of Allegheny and the spurt of Dennison at forward for the Methodists in the second half contributed to the defeat of Grove City, 30-27, here last night.

Grove City came from behind in the first half and finished one point behind the visitors, 15-14. In the five-minute spurt of the Crimson in this period they played their best of the game. The lineup:

Grove City—27.		Allegheny—30.
Angelo	F.	Mills
Waleski	F.	Dennison
Burke	C.	Conn
Elliott	G.	Garback
Ryan	G.	Berger

Substitutions—Baker for Elliott, Reeves for Waleski, Dekosta for Baker, Lone for Mills, Moon for Conn, Massing for Lone, Allison for Berger, Montgomery for Burke. Field goals—Mills, Berger 2, Dekosta 4, Angelo, Burke, Ryan, Waleski, Reeves, Dennison 4, Garback 2. Foul goals—Grove City, 9 out of 14; Allegheny, 12 out of 18. Halves—20 minutes. Official—Fitting.

How to Win Men's Loyalty; Armour Workers' Response

By B. C. FORBES

NINETY-SIX out of every hundred Armour & Co. workers have just voted at a primary election for employe representatives on the company's conference board.

That fact should interest many executives who are still struggling with the problem of cultivating employe loyalty and mutually satisfactory relationships.

SAYS the employes' publication:

"This, in the opinion of all, is an indication that employe representation is popular and effective.

"The mechanical division made a remarkable record, 99 per cent of its eligible voters cast their ballots. This is one of the best records ever made in a plant division. The beef division, with 97 per cent, was second, and the production division, with 95 per cent, was third."

RALPH D. MACMANUS of Armour & Co., sending these facts, presents the following extremely illuminating information concerning beneficial results upon labor turnover since the starting of vacations, with pay, for all classes of workers:

"I read with considerable interest your recent article relative to the International Harvester Company's vacation plan. I thought you might be interested in our experiment along that line.

"Back in 1923, Armour & Co. decided to give vacations, with pay, to plant workers who were on an hourly wage basis and who up to that time had not been eligible for vacations.

"Obviously, the rules governing such vacations have to be different from those governing vacations among the salaried workers. These latter have a much lower rate of turnover and their work is of such a nature that it can be split up among their co-workers, so that the vacation pay is not really an added expense to the business. But in the plant, where the men work on an hourly basis and where the work cannot be held over from day to day, the problem is different.

"We have worked it out, however, on what we regard as an equitable basis, and Armour & Co. employes who have been with us for five years are granted a week's vacation with pay. If they have been with us for 15 years, they are eligible for two weeks' vacation with pay.

"That vacations are a factor in lessening labor turnover is evidenced by the increasing number of our employes who have become eligible each succeeding year for these vacations. In 1923 we gave vacations, with pay, to 3,805 plant employes. In 1924, the number was 4,066; in 1925, 4,447; in 1926, 4,614; in 1927, 5,540, and in 1928, 6,483."

T. S. DUKES, general manager of the Star Sprinkler Corporation, Philadelphia, writes:

"Your various items concerning the treatment of employes is of never failing interest. In our little business, which is only about 5½ years old, we have attempted to have a consistent 5-day week in the shop and we have the 5-day week in both the shop and office from June 1 until after Labor Day, no matter how busy we are.

"We have thought for some years that the 5-day week was a certainty. However, in order to forestall argument concerning wages, we allow the men to make enough in five days so that they are not penalized for the day off.

"Aside from this, we give them a present of money at Christmas and also pay for Christmas Day. In our experience we have been unable to find where this has harmed our production, and we are also happy to say that we have found very few cases of lack of appreciation among the men.

"The trouble with most of us who have have to do with the running of business is that in our dealings with our employes we forget our own humble beginning and struggles. Assuredly the old-fashioned day has passed in which it was said that sentiment had no part in business. To our mind it has a very great part in business, and we know that fair treatment has paid us the greatest of all dividends, which is loyalty."

HERE is a letter of a very different order, from a Long Island railwayman:

"Will you please become a Lincoln by freeing the slaves in the tower department of the Long Island Railway? They have to work seven days a week, 365 days a year, at low wages. I know one man who has worked 20 months without a day off. Great God! Is this justice?"

THE first two pictures inspire thought. The last inspires comment—This comment: Great God! It is not justice!

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Steel Holds Leadership.

Easier condition in the call money market and a resumption of the powerful buying in Steel common served to offset the influence of a $71,000,000 increase in brokers' loans today and imparted a strong tone to the list generally. Copper stocks were in demand again and new current highs were registered in several of the leading issues. Selected oil stocks went ahead determinedly, giving the impression that developments of more than ordinary importance are pending in the industry. Despite the fact that production of petroleum is at record levels, the feeling persists in some quarters that a raise in mid-continent crude prices is not far off. Standard of New York was in heavy demand, as was Vacuum on the curb. The latter company has contracted for purchase of the Sinclair Company's holdings in French oil properties, the Street heard today. Rails gave further reflection of the accumulation of carrier shares over the past two months. Pennsylvania opened at a new high record and there was strong buying of Canadian Pacific. Throughout the market the gains were fairly well held. Selling made its appearance here and there in stocks that had advanced earlier, but as a rule all offerings were well absorbed.

Plate Glass Outlook Promising.

The National Glass Budget says: "Practically the same conditions surround the plate, window, rolled and wired glass industries as have existed in the past few weeks. Each one of them is anticipating increased business as the approach of spring weather draws near. Market conditions and production continue with but slight changes. It is likely that the plate glass industry will be first to notice decided improvement, as the automobile show in New York is over and the manufacturers anticipate another good year. As a result they are getting interested in covering their plate glass requirements. Indications for the plate industry are very promising at present. Window glass factory output continues to exceed present demand. Jobbers appear to be specifying only for immediate requirements. With the other branches of the flat glass industry affairs, both as to production and marketing, continue as in the recent past."

Canadian Pacific.

Earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railroad for year 1928 will exceed $14 a share, according to E. W. Beatty, president. "January business is running ahead of a year ago. We expect first quarter and first half gross and net earnings will about equal these periods a year ago," he said.

Gasoline Consumption Expands.

Domestic gasoline consumption in 35 states in November totaled 14,734,071 barrels, an increase of 8.7 per cent over November, 1927. Total consumption for 11 months was 167,026,428 barrels, against 150,403,381 barrels in 1927 period, an increase of 11 per cent.

Sinclair-Vacuum Agreement.

The Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation and the Vacuum Oil Company have entered an agreement whereby the Sinclair Company will exchange for shares of the Vacuum Company its stock holdings in French companies. These Sinclair holdings are mainly represented by its interest in Compagnie Industrielle des Petroleum.

The French government since the war has been encouraging development of French companies and home production. The Vacuum Company, its officials said, are planning to construct a new refinery on French territory to care for the sales increase expected as result of its new French interests. Its chief products are lubricants. It owns a fleet of tankers and does a large export business.

Street Divided on Oils.

Several attempts to get the oils forward recently have shown that the public is not inclined to follow these stocks yet. This is probably due to the differences of opinion which are heard on these stocks and on the oil industry as a whole. Important market interests, however, consider the announcement of the formation of the oil export organization under the Webb-Pomerene act as the first important definite step in some time in the solution of the unsatisfactory problems which have confronted the industry and are inclined to look with greater favor on the leading oil stocks.

Investment Stocks Strong.

What many view as one of the favorable features of the current market is the amount of buying which has been coming into the investment stocks. Not only has there been a good demand from important interests in these shares, but odd lot houses report public buying for cash to have been rather extensive. This is apparently a continuation of the employment of funds by investors at the beginning of the year. Outsiders also have been using more discrimination than in some time in making their buying selections, because of the advices of various firms, and the natural result has been to bring a better demand into the stocks with merit, while the more speculative specialties have been in liquidation at times.

Plate Glass Duty Raised.

President Coolidge, under authority of the flexible provision act, has issued a proclamation increasing the rate of duty on cast, polished plate glass to 16 cents a square foot from 12½ cents, on sizes not exceeding 384 square inches; to 19 cents a square foot from 15 cents on sizes above 384 square inches and not exceeding 720 square inches, and to 22 cents a square foot from 17½ cents, on sizes above 720 square inches. The rates are effective in 30 days.

United States Steel.

United States Steel reached a new high record on a continuation of the buying wave which developed suddenly on Wednesday. There was considerable short covering in the stock by traders who had put it out as a hedge against long positions in other issues. Most of the demand for Steel has been based on the expectation of an excellent report for the fourth quarter of last year, to be made public on January 29, and to the belief that the results for the current three month will show further improvement, because of the high rate of operations and the greater price stability now existing.

"We anticipate that the earnings for United States Steel in the last quarter of 1928 will show approximately $4 a share," says a New York Stock Exchange firm. "On the basis of current outlook we expect approximately $10 a share to be earned on the stock in first six months of 1929."

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—Reports of increasing drought damage to the corn crop in Argentina pushed all corn prices to new record heights today. Some deliveries of wheat and of oats went also to above any level reached heretofore this season. Opening ½ to 1½c higher, corn subsequently held near to the initial range. Wheat started at ¼ to ½@⅝c advance, and afterward rose a little more. Oats followed other grain. Provisions were easy.

Persistent absence of moisture needed in the Argentine corn belt was shown by dispatches today to leading Chicago houses and resulted in continued large scale buying of corn here. According to advices at hand, Argentine rainfall in the last week is only one fourth of normal, and there has now been five successive weeks of markedly deficient moisture combined with excessive heat, a combination especially disastrous during the start and development of tasseling.

Drought reports came also today from the other chief corn producing country in the southern hemisphere. South Africa meanwhile, detailed reports showed that by far the greater part of Argentine corn acreage was involved seriously in the unfavorable crop situation which has developed, and which follows a heavy shortage of corn production this season in Europe.

EFFECT OF HIGH MONEY RATES DISCOUNTED

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE probable effects of a continued high rate for commercial paper have been somewhat exaggerated, in the opinion of Dr. Benjamin M. Anderson, economist for the Chase National Bank, of New York. Mr. Anderson's analysis shows that, while high money will affect certain lines of activity, its retarding influence will not be nearly as widespread as most people believe.

"There is a theory rather widely current that low money rates make good business, and high money rates make bad business, through their influence upon the borrowings of merchants and manufacturers for carrying and for producing goods," said Dr. Anderson.

"High rates are supposed to discourage such borrowing and low rates to encourage it. This view has very limited justification, whether in theory or in practice.

"GERMANY, despite high interest rates, has had a great deal of business activity in recent years, while some other European countries, whose rates have been so low that they have been large lenders to Germany, have had less business activity.

"In our own country, we have just witnessed a period of declining business in 1927, when rates were very low, with rapid business improvement in 1928, accompanied by rising rates of interest.

"Rates of interest for commercial purposes have not, to be sure, risen nearly so high as rates for stock market purposes, but the rise in commercial paper from 3¾ to 4 per cent at the beginning of 1928 to 5¼ to 5½ per cent at the end of 1928, with corresponding increases in counter rates to borrowing commercial customers has been none the less substantial," continued Dr. Anderson.

"THE point is that for short term operations, as when a merchant borrows money to buy goods for his ordinary turnover, or when a manufacturer borrows to finance his work in process, the rate of interest is only one of the elements of cost, and often a minor element in cost, and the state of markets is far more important in guiding the borrower's policy than a reasonable difference in the rate of interest could be. Ordinary business is often very good with firm money and is often quite unsatisfactory with cheap money.

"On the other hand, long time construction, which involves borrowing for a long period of time, is much affected by money rates. The period from early 1922 to early 1928 was characterized by very low money rates and a great expansion of bank credit, which undoubtedly stimulated business in several directions. It was easy to float mortgage bonds for new construction, and the volume of such flotations was large. It was easy to float foreign securities in great and growing volume, which maintained the export trade. It was easy to finance a large volume of installment finance transactions.

"Finally, rising values of real estate and securities, which went along with this easy money and rapid bank expansion, created speculative profits, the expenditure and re-investment of which also served as a business stimulant.

"FOR the long pull American business will need to make certain re-adjustments, if we assume that the period of very cheap money and rapid bank expansion is definitely over. But this may come a good deal more slowly than we anticipate," in the opinion of Dr. Anderson.

"Foreign countries have, as a result of borrowings which they have already made, a large fund of liquid dollar credits which they can use, if they wish, in buying goods here.

"A great many corporations have obtained from security flotations funds in excess of their present needs, which they can use for capital purposes without having to do additional financing.

"THE end of 1928 shows evidence of a decline in building activity, but the figures are not yet impressive. Business will need to take account of the change in the money market, but business will probably have time enough in which to do it.

"The policy, which American business in general has been pursuing for a number of years, of limited commitments, moderate inventory, and hand-to-mouth buying, will make it relatively easy for the business world to put through such re-adjustment as may prove necessary," concluded Dr. Anderson.

STEEL RESUMES LEAD IN STOCK ADVANCE

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—The stock market gave an impressive demonstration of strength today in the face of a further increase in brokers' loans to around record high levels. Weakness developed in a few high priced specialties, but the general list moved upward with scores of issues lifted 2 to 13 points above yesterday's final quotations. Trading was fairly heavy in volume, several blocks of 5,000 to 35,000 shares changing hands, indicating strong pool support.

A flood of new money appeared in the market and the call money renewal rate was marked down to 6 per cent. While New York banks, as shown by the Federal Reserve statement, are putting little new money into the market, the recent high rates have attracted a large influx of funds from out-of-town banks and large corporations. New bond offerings this week totaled $32,600,000, as against about $18,000,000 last week and $123,000,000 in the corresponding week last year.

Business news continued generally favorable. The Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation announced that it had acquired a block of Vacuum Oil in exchange for some French oil securities. Prospects of stock split-ups stimulated bullish activity in several high priced specialties, Johns Manville scoring an extreme gain of 13 points to a new high record at 213.

Internationalp Nickel new stock was a spectacular feature, opening 5⅝ points higher and then extending its gain to 7⅝ by touching a new high record at 64⅞. National Cash Register ran up more than 5 points to a new high at 107⅝ on reports of business expansion and increased earnings. Spiegel, May Stern, Greene Cananea Copper, Radio and Electric Auto Lite sold 5 to 7 points higher.

U. S. Steel common returned to the leadership of the market in the early afternoon by climbing 2 points to 175, a new high price for the present stock. Standard Plate Glass advanced 3 points to 8 in response to the announcement of an increased tariff on glass. Public utilities were in brisk demand, with Peoples Gas, American Water Works and American Power and Light in the forefront of the advance.

Canadian Pacific, with a gain of nearly 6 points, was the leader in the railroad group.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 4 points on near months, which were influenced by relatively steady cables, to a decline of 9 points on the later deliveries, which were depressed by overnight selling orders.

The general list eased off right after the call under liquidation attributed to disappointed holders, with March declining to 20.10c and July to 19.73c, or about 7 to 9 points net lower, but there was some trade and local buying and the market steadied up a few points from the lowest by the end of the first half hour. A moderate volume of business was reported at the start, but trading became very quiet later.

Private cables said that trade calling and local buying had absorbed hedging and some Bombay liquidation in Liverpool, that there was further cloth buying by China, but a disappointing demand from India.

Trading was quiet later in the morning. Prices held fairly steady on bullish features in southern spot advices and the encouraging reports from the Lancashire cloth market. Early losses were just about recovered, with the market selling up to or a shade above yesterday's closing quotations. The bulges met some further realizing and at midday was dull, with the active months showing net losses of 3 to 5 points.

PLATE GLASS SPURTS ON RAISE IN TARIFF

Pittsburgh Plate Glass monopolized attention on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange in today's session when it shot up four points at the opening in response to the announcement that President Coolidge had increased the import duty on polished plate glass.

Buying of Pittsburgh Plate came from many sources and it was thought a good portion of the demand was for trading account, getting the jump on the market in anticipation of an increase in demand for investment purposes as a result of the higher tariff. The increase ranges from 3¼ to 4½ cents a square foot, depending upon size.

McKinney Manufacturing Company made new high ground again today on a continuance of the cautious buying which has been coming into the market for the past week or so. McKinney, it is reported, has developed a new lock and spring which are expected to meet high favor in the hardware trade. While the company's earnings are reported to be at a satisfactory rate, it is not expected that dividends will be inaugurated for some time.

Standard Steel Spring, a newcomer to the local unlisted department, scored a further wide gain today. First trading in the issue took place yesterday when the stock sold at 79 as against the offering price under 60 at which the stock was brought out by a Detroit brokerage concern. The company manufactures automobile springs and other accessories. The plants are at Coraopolis. Earnings for 1928 on the outstanding stock averaged $10.80 a share. It is rumored in the street that a stock dividend is under consideration.

The fuel issues were firm. Lone Star sold up slightly and the Arkansas stocks were handled at or near yesterday's final prices. Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt continued to sell around 74, the price at which it has been resting since the recent run-up to above 79.

During the afternoon session, Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt developed sudden strength and moved again toward the previous high. All available stocks around the 74-level apparently had been cleaned up. There was a report in the street that the company might clinch its deal for the new airplane propeller at a meeting this afternoon.

San Toy Mining, one of the penny stocks, popped into the picture today and scored a new high of 9 cents a share, with several thousand shares changing hands. San Toy paid a dividend of 1 cent a share last year, and it is thought possible a larger payment may be made by the company on the next disbursement. There was a sale of the stock about two weeks ago at 5 cents.

Lone Star Gas displayed further improvement as the session progressed and by early afternoon had reached a new top price of 71. This was a gain of 1½ points over the morning's low.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

The demand for fruit and vegetables at the local wholesale produce district was good today. But little change was made in the quotations.

The poultry market was rather weak, with the demand fair, supplies liberal and quotations unchanged.

The butter, egg and cheese markets were about steady and the quotations were unchanged.

Car lot supplies were liberal, a total of 495 cars being on track. Included in the arrivals were 15 cars of apples, 8 cabbage, 5 celery, 1 grapefruit, 2 grapes, 1 lemons, 9 lettuce, 2 onions, 20 oranges, 1 peas, 2 spinach, 2 turnips, 1 pears, 4 cauliflower, 10 potatoes, 6 sweet potatoes, 2 tomatoes, 2 chicory, 1 kale and 2 carrots.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The recent upturn in the raw sugar market attracted increased offerings today. As the demand appeared to be fairly well satisfied for the time being, prices reacted 1-32c to the basis of 3.80c for spots duty paid. At this level sales were confirmed of 50,000 bags of Cuban for prompt shipment to a local refiner, with more available at the same price.

Raw sugar futures opened 1 point higher to 1 point lower, but eased off later under increased liquidation and selling by houses with Cuban connections. The list at midday was 1 to 2 points net lower. The volume of business was not large, and the setback apparently was promoted by the easier trend in the spot market and a less active demand.

The announced advance of 10 points to the basis of 5.10c for fine granulated was not put into effect by local refiners who were still willing to take business up to the close at 5.00c. Yesterday's demand seemed to have supplied the immediate requirements of the trade and very little new inquiry was reported.

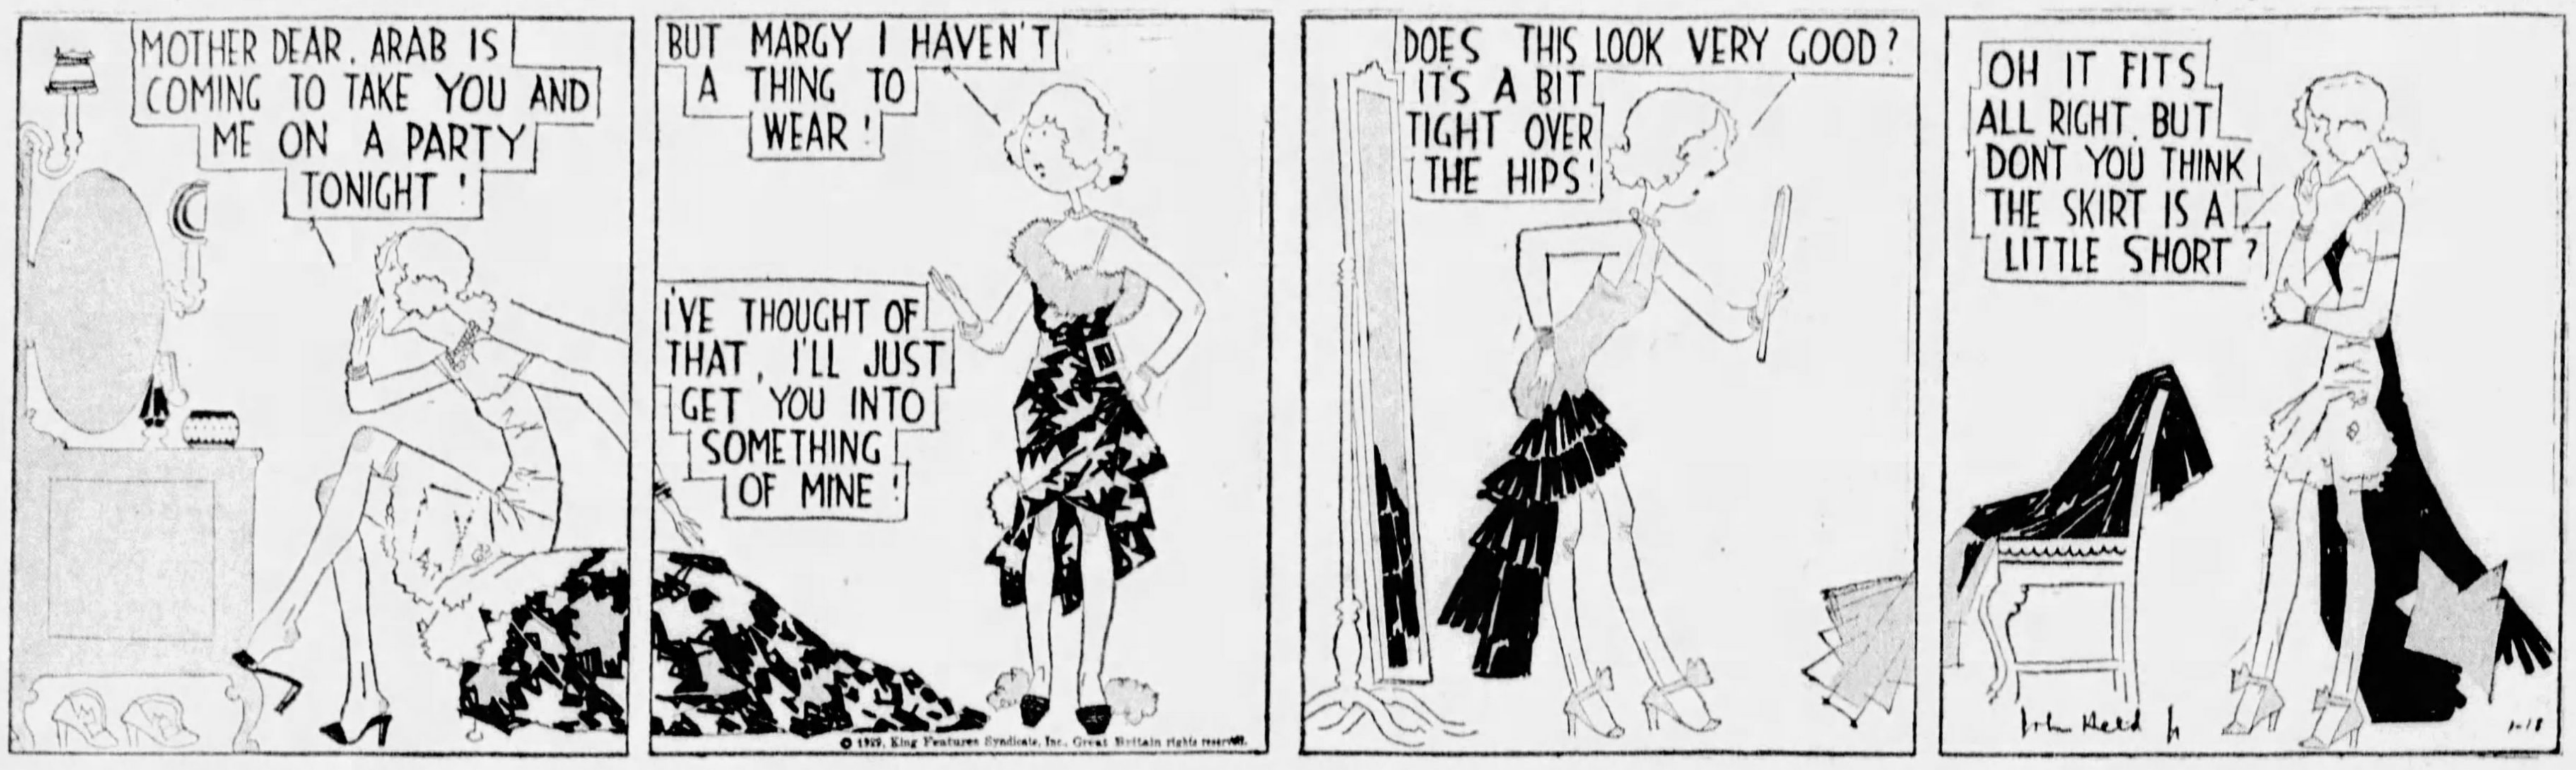
Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl :: Story by Lloyd Mayer :: By John Held, Jr.



MOTHER DEAR, ARAB IS COMING TO TAKE YOU AND ME ON A PARTY TONIGHT!
BUT MARGY I HAVEN'T A THING TO WEAR!
I'VE THOUGHT OF THAT, I'LL JUST GET YOU INTO SOMETHING OF MINE!
DOES THIS LOOK VERY GOOD? IT'S A BIT TIGHT OVER THE HIPS!
OH IT FITS ALL RIGHT, BUT DON'T YOU THINK THE SKIRT IS A LITTLE SHORT?

"My dear, I'm having MORE innocent FUN rejuvenating MOTHer! REALly, you've no IDEA how simply THRILLED I am about the situation at this point! Well, ANYways, last NIGHT I told her ARab was taking her and I on a PARty, and, my dear, she was too imPRESSED and said she'd simply ADORE it, but added DOLEfully that she had NOTHing to WEAR, so I said I'd THOUGHT of that and she could wear one of my gowns—can you COPE with it? HONestly, my dear, I NEVer thought she'd DO it but she was simply MAD about the idea and after some VI'lent EFfort I managed to SQUEEZE her feverishly into one of my things, and, my dear, I NEARly had hysTERics because she ACtually looked like NOTHing HUman only she thought she looked simply RAVishing so I simply didn't have the HEART to disalLUsion her and I said she looked GREAT, only p'rhaps the SKIRT was just a TRIfle too SHORT, which I considered was a PERfectly justifiable CRITicism, my dear, because I mean she's ALways razzing ME about my short skirts, do you know what I mean? Well, my dear, she was THOroughly anNOYED because I mean I KNOW she's ALways thought her LEGS were PRICEless and I give you my WORD I think she aDORED the idea of a little HIGH visiBILity at this point—can you COPE with it? I mean I'm HONestly all fussed and ruffled because I HONestly think she's going to be more of a PROBlem than DADdy, my dear—I mean I ACtually DO!"

BUGS BAER Says

One Washington man, Bertram Snooper, is in bad shape again.

Mr. Snooper went to an oculist with a badly inflamed eye under the impression that he had contracted snooping astigmatism through an executive keyhole.

Arthur "Bugs" Baer

After an examination, the optician said, "Mr. Snooper, you don't want an oculist. You want to let a manicurist work on that eye. There's a finger-nail in it."

Instead of being abashed, or anything in that vicinity, Mr. Snooper was very much elated, although he is not certain whether the finger belonged to Mr. Hoover or Mr. Coolidge.

Even though he got poked in the glim, he claims to have the true rumors on the now famous meeting between Mr. Coolidge and the next man in the barber chair.

Mr. Hoover has to pick his Cabinet before the ground-hog selects his shadow, and Mr. Coolidge is an expert on cabinets and other forms of traffic congestion.

His most intricate problem in party mathematics is how to divide 100,000 politicians into eight chairs.

Mr. Coolidge put Mr. Hoover right at ease about the business. He said:

"Herbert, you do not have to select a Cabinet. The Cabinet will select you."

Mr. Hoover replied, with ease born of long dexterity:

"Mr. Coolidge, do you mean to say that when the office chooses the man, I will be choosing up sides with the office boy?"

Mr. Coolidge looked at the calendar in surprise. He was astonished that Herbert should so far forget his electoral college as to speak in the first person, elect.

Mr. Coolidge then took Mr. Hoover to the door of the Cabinet room and said:

"Herbert, I do not want to discourage you. But, there is the Cabinet Room. How many chairs are there in that room?"

Mr. Hoover replied, "Nine."

Mr. Coolidge answered with presidential dignity, good until March Fourth!

"That's right. Nine chairs. And you will only be in ONE of them."

Mr. Hoover is smart. He knows that when a majority grows on your neck they call it a goitre.

The outlook is dark at present, but Mr. Snooper states that Mr. Hoover has fixed things for March Fourth.

He has asked for a five-minute running start on the Inaugural Parade which will enable him to beat the rest of the Republicans to the White House.

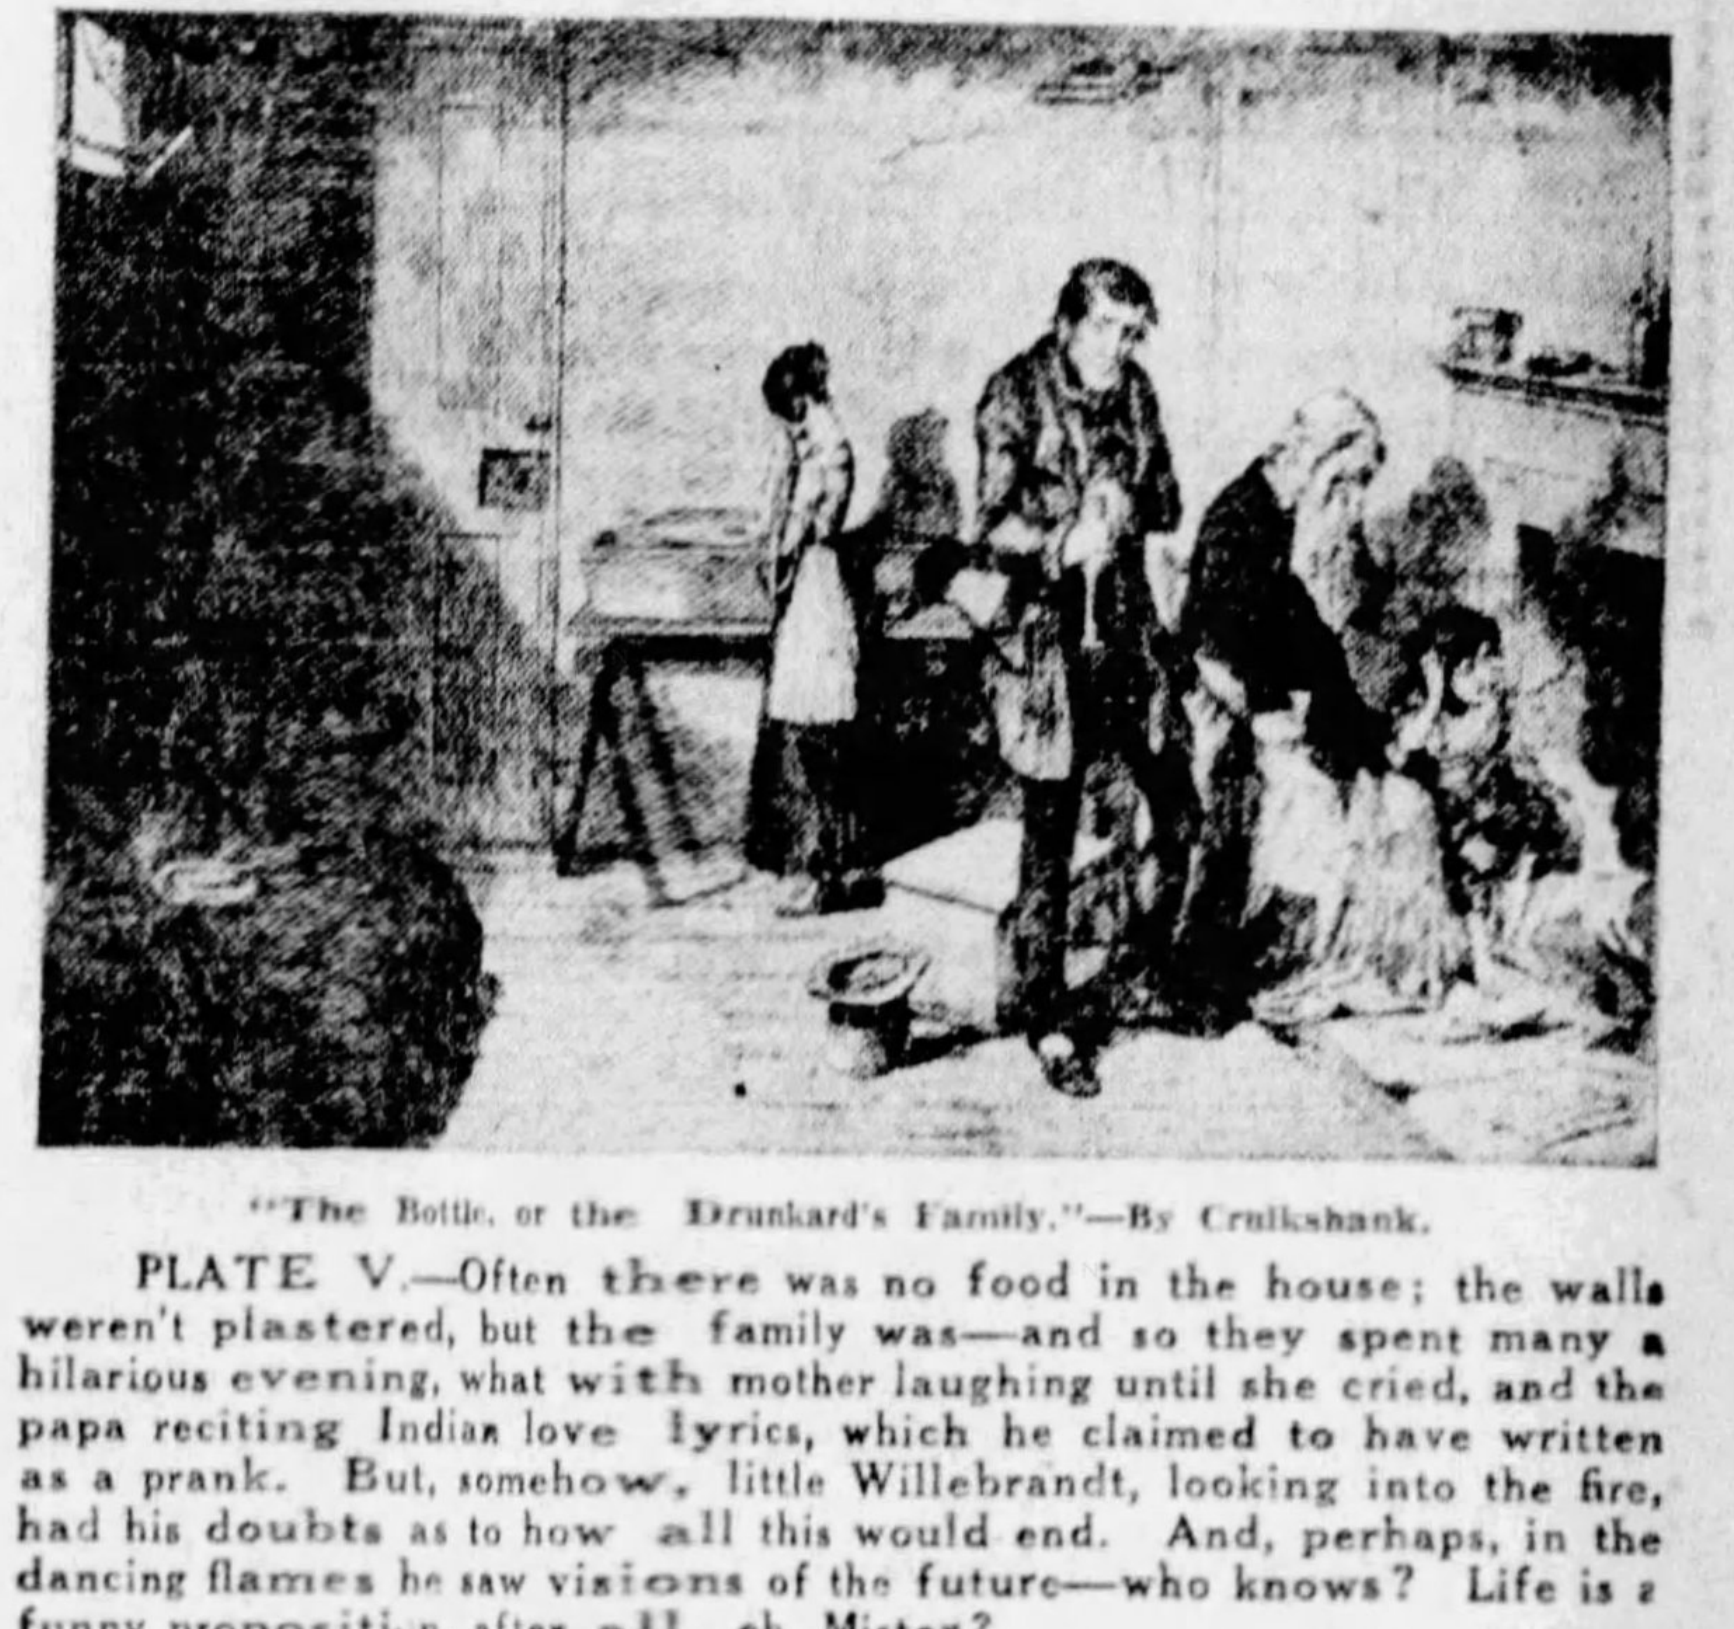
Happiness Is Just Around the Corner



"The Bottle, or the Drunkard's Family."—By Cruikshank.

PLATE V.—Often there was no food in the house; the walls weren't plastered, but the family was—and so they spent many a hilarious evening, what with mother laughing until she cried, and the papa reciting Indian love lyrics, which he claimed to have written as a prank. But, somehow, little Willebrandt, looking into the fire, had his doubts as to how all this would end. And, perhaps, in the dancing flames he saw visions of the future—who knows? Life is a funny proposition, after all, eh, Mister?

Unified Park Plan Urged For Metropolitan Charter

The Metropolitan Plan Commission, which is receiving suggestions as to what should be included in the Metropolitan charter, received more than a mere suggestion when representatives of the Citizens' Committee on Metropolitan and Recreation appeared. The committee, the head of which is E. T. Whiter, presented the tentative text of an entire division of the charter, covering government and maintenance of parks, as well as sections of the first article of the charter, relating to the acquisition of property in and for parks, recreation centers and playgrounds.

The gist of the proposals is that there be a department of parks and recreation, administered by a trained and experienced executive, with a non-salaried board, the duties of which would be to determine policies. The board would take over all responsibilities of agencies now existing for the maintenance and conducting of parks throughout the county. Provision is made that the board be guided by local committees, which would have the power of decision in specialized service, such as design, landscaping, architecture and like factors in park development.

The Citizens' Committee expressed opinion that the proposals made, which are extensively detailed, and cover all foreseen matters relating to parks and recreation, will give the consolidated city much better scope for the expansion of its breathing spots than now prevails. In fact it is felt that this important matter will thrive better than it does now under separate control of cities, counties and boroughs. It is pointed out that aside from Pittsburgh, cities and boroughs last year paid a total of $42,000 for park and recreation service. Pittsburgh spent $850,000 and the county $240,000.

The plan outlined, of course, will have close scrutiny by members of Pittsburgh Council and the County Commissioners, as well as officials of other cities, boroughs and townships. Yet, as it is a complete plan, and appears comprehensive in all details, it should receive special consideration.

Were we to suggest any change it would be in the section covering the director and board of managers. It provides that the director, who, presumably is to be appointed by the executive branch, shall have power of appointment of five of seven members of the park board that is to serve without pay. One each of the remaining two members are to be appointed by the superintendents of city and county schools. To us that seems like putting the cart before the horse, giving control of the board to the man who names it. There might be grief in that.

Citizen's Gift for Prize Is Encouragement to Art

Substantial encouragement to the art of painting is contained in the empowering of the Carnegie Institute to offer $12,000 annually for competition in the International Exhibition for a period of five years. Of this amount $2,000 is a prize, the remainder being for the purchase of the picture at its list price up to $10,000.

The prize is not to be awarded to a picture that is not purchasable. There is no bar to awarding it to the picture that may be selected for the Carnegie Institute's first prize of $1,500, which would make that award worth $3,500, providing the picture be purchasable.

This arrangement, made possible through the generosity of Albert C. Lehman, of Pittsburgh, is a fine expression of the appreciation in which art is held here. It is to become effective at the next International Exhibition, opening in October.

No One Worth Much, Dead

But Alive, It All DEPENDS.

Learn from the science that the value of a 150-pound man "on the hoof" as farmers say, assuming that decency would prevent using the fat, on the side, is about 98 cents. His body contains enough lime to wash a small chicken coop, a little sugar, enough iron to make a 10-penny nail.

Nearly all the 90 odd elements are in man, but in small quantities.

Croesus, once richest man on earth, then very poor when Cyrus caught him, was only worth, as he stood "on the hoof" as much as any other man.

In our day, with science knowing how to get out of all "by products" everything that is in them, the average American weighing 150 pounds, whether he be worth $150,000,000, or less than 150 cents, is only worth when DEAD, as far as commerce and business are concerned, 98 CENTS.

When we are older, there is perhaps a little more lime in the bones. When we are younger a little more iron in the body.

But on the average all we amount to is 98 cents worth of by-products.

Living, the difference between man and man, success and failure, may mean ALL the difference between nothing and a thousand million dollars.

Also there is the REAL human value, which cannot be figured in money. It exists in men that have done nothing more important than set a good example.

It exists in men that have supplied ideas from which other men have made tens of millions.

It exists especially in mothers that create the human race, taking care of it, raising it and improving it.

But "on the hoof" a man's value is exactly 98 CENTS and that ought to make some of us feel humble.

Tales That Are Told

So Soon!

SUDDENLY a cloud seemed to overcast the bride's features, and with an anxious note in his voice the groom asked, what was wrong.

"Oh-h-h!" Great sobs began to shake her frame.

"What is it?" he cried. "Why are you sobbing?"

"B-b-because you are growing cold towards me. You don't love me any more!"

"Oh, my dear," he complained, "how could you say that?"

The girl looked up at him.

"Well," she said, "I saw you look out of the window twice."

The Only Girl

JACK had just asked Jill to marry him, and she had murmured, "Yes."

"Jack, dear," she ventured, after a long silence, "am I the only girl——"

The young man's arms tightened about her.

"Jill," he interrupted fiercely, "don't ask me whether you are the only girl I ever loved. You know it as well as I do."

"That wasn't what I was going to say at all, Jack," she answered. "I was going to ask you if I was the only girl who would have you."

Used to the Game

A WEALTHY widow, contemplating a holiday abroad, advertised for a caretaker during her absence.

After interviewing several applicants, she found one she thought would give complete satisfaction.

"Thanks for givin' me the job, ma'am," said the successful one. "And may I ask a question? You stated in your advertisement that you required a married man. Does that mean there is work for my wife, too?"

"Oh, no," replied his prospective employer; "I wanted to make sure of getting someone used to taking orders from a woman, that's all."

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

EVERY once in a while, they tell me, the kind of nutty painters have an exhibition of their pictures in New York. They ain't exactly pictures, you know, but just impressions. The free souls just smear on the color, and make designs of lightning opening tomato cans and a half-moon on a tear, and such stuff like that.

"Well, the people actually go to see the exhibitions. One time there was an artist looking around at the place, and he heard a girl that was exhibiting her stuff telling a newspaper reporter all about herself.

"Yes," she says, "ever since I can remember I always wanted to paint so badly!"

"Well," says the artist, "I guess you got what you wanted, all right."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

DON'T be a rabbit this year.

Buck up and face life like a man.

A rabbit always has a hole handy.

When things get too strenuous for him he escapes through that hole.

Life is just one escape after another for a rabbit.

Also for certain humans.

Some people duck into holes to escape reality—strange and peculiar holes which they call by various names.

One of the favorite escapes for cowardly, lazy humans is sickness.

They may dread meeting strange people—or resent their inability to shine at social gatherings—or want to avoid the tiresome routine of domestic or business duties—

So they duck into the hole of "sick headaches"—"indigestion attacks"—"sinking spells"—and thus make their getaway.

They are not consciously dishonest in doing this.

They think they are sick, and they ARE sick. They have such a great desire to avoid unpleasant responsibilities that they have actually manufactured a condition of sickness as an escape.

If suddenly some attractive opportunity presented itself they would speedily cast off their sickness and come out of their holes, just as a rabbit comes out of his hole when danger has passed.

This, of course, does not apply to all forms of sickness, but it does cover many forms of escape-sickness which we are beginning to recognize.

Other rabbit-people find different means of escape.

"I love Joe but I can't marry him," says Marion, "for it would just break mother's heart if I left her."

Marion thinks this is an honest statement and many people applaud her for her devotion. But the truth is that Marion is afraid of marriage. She has been a "mother's girl" for so long that she dreads to go out into life and assume normal adult responsibilities. So she makes her escape through a sentimental alibi.

"I'd sure like to take that job and go out on the road," says Bill, "but you know how it is with the wife. She can't bear to be left alone."

Bill also is making an escape. He's a lazy customer and the thought of long, uncomfortable trips to strange territories does not appeal to his sluggish nature. So he uses the wife as an excuse.

Excuses generally work—if you want to escape life it isn't hard to do so. But one pays a heavy price for such immunity. If you pass life up, life will pass you up.

Marion is going to be a soured old maid 10 years from now. Bill is going to wonder peevishly why he never had a chance like other fellows.

Life doesn't stop to coax those who wish to avoid her. She wastes no time dragging rabbits out of their holes. Her gifts are only for those who face her in the open.

Don't be a rabbit!

Don't keep an escape handy.

Force yourself to accept new experiences, dare strange adventures, meet difficult challenges. Face life!

THE FOSSILS

By Garrett P. Serviss

THIS fine little old celestial lady, Mother Earth, how her very wrinkles deepen into smiles as she indulgently allows her curious children to explore rocky cupboards filled with fascinating mementoes of her teens! What a life story it is! It is a wonder that everybody does not become a geologist.

There has just died a man who, perhaps, was more familiar than any other of his day with the old-time secrets of the earth. He was Thomas Chrowder Chamberlin, inventor of the "planetesimal hypothesis," which undertakes to explain how the planets were conceived through the meeting of two suns—a fortuitious encounter, but fruitful since it gave rise to our whole system of planetary worlds.

But I am not going to speak of that now. I wish merely to refer to the book which Chamberlin finished a little while before his death, his "Two Solar Families," published by the University of Chicago Press. That book tells (hypothetically, but not with improbability) the story of the origin and strange growth of the earth. What I want more particularly to talk of here is some of the contents of the old mother's closets, which amateurs may take out, handle and admire. Prof. Bradford Willard has recently spoken of the importance to the student of biology of learning "the lore of the fossils."

It is that lore that fired the imagination of young Hugh Miller, the Scottish quarry boy, and made him afterward the author of a delightful classic of popular science, "The Old Red Sandstone." And it is that lore which, in our day, has made biology historic and stretched the tale of evolution backward to the dawn of time.

People think little of what they tread under foot when they are out in the open, unasphalted country. I am not a geologist or a paleontologist, yet I can recall hours of unmixed delight not so long ago, when I was digging Devonian fossils of most curious and beautiful shapes, filled with fascinating suggestions of their former life millions of years ago — digging them with a jack-knife out of the middle of a country road in Central New York, not without fear of automobiles.

One no more needs to be a professional geologist to find and understand the meaning of these buried landmarks of real "world-history" than he needs to be a professional astronomer to see and comprehend the significance of the stars. A few years ago, sitting on a rock in a field at a popular resort, a rock which had been worn smooth by sitters, I saw on the face of the stone the spiral figure of an ammonite, cut like a huge cameo. If anybody had noticed it at all, it had been taken for a mere freak of nature. But when its true character had been explained it became a cynosure for hundreds.

Bible Passages

"Love One Another"

(John 15: 9-17.)

AS the Father hath loved me, so have I loved you: continue ye in my love.

If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love; even as I have kept my father's commandments, and abide in his love.

These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full.

This is my commandment, That ye love one another, as I have loved you.

Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends.

Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you.

Henceforth I call you not servants; for the servant knoweth not what his lord doeth: but I have called you friends; for all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you.

Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain: that whatsoever ye shall ask of the Father in my name, he may give it you.

These things I command you, that ye love one another.

That Little Gate

THAT little gate I glimpsed today,
Why did it lead my thoughts astray
By winding lanes I used to know,
Down happy ways I used to go?

A moment, as the train sped on,
White palings flashed and then were gone;
A picket gate between square posts
Swung open to admit lost hosts!

Lost hosts of memories trooping through
That little gate like one I knew
So long ago, so far away;
They all came back to me today.

Childhood and youth and sunlit hours,
Beyond a garden gate, gay flowers
That nodded over palings white,
Came back and brought the old delight.

That little gate has swung so wide
Vague memories enter, like a tide
That bears me back, through years and miles,
To where a vanished garden smiles!

Isn't It So?

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Thoughts while strolling: The front of the Hotel Roosevelt is like an old-fashioned marble cake. The new apple juice stands are getting a play. Why do bow-legged men wear derbies? University clubs and their overtone of rah-rah-rah! The white-haired boy who married one of George Gould's daughters.

A tea room with a sign "No Dogs"—and deserted. Don Marquis, a Walnut, Ill., boy, who made good in the city. Man with a banner: "I speak six languages but cannot get work." Sir Joseph Duveen, who knows all about art and makes it pay. And Lady Duveen. What's become of George Kelly, the playwright?

Those flivver limousines with seats for chauffeurs in the open. Maurine Watkins, who writes sophisticated plays and short stories. But wears her hair long and looks school marmish. Something pleasant about those old darkies who talk and smile to themselves along the street.

That Madam something-or-other with flaming red hair. And a millionaire husband. Scarcely a silent movie left. And most of us thought the talkies just dropped in for a chat. Daniel Frohman's scholarly goatee. A Boy Scout carries a lady's packages to her car. And refuses a tip.

DeWolf Hopper's son Jack—a banker. Man named Topp sells hats. And B. Glyde runs a skate shop. Those Cuban plantation owners with massive jewelry and fierce mustachios, who spend heavily along Broadway. The famous old "Dead Man's Curve" at Fourteenth street. But safe for a blind man today.

The Chinese shops on lower Fifth avenue. And one of the proprietors who sports a monocle. The fad for massaging machines must be a blow to hand masseurs. None of the great stars goes on a "farewell tour" anymore. A faded sign of Dr. Munyon and his raised finger.

Snub-nosed debutantes with their wolf hounds aching for a little spotlight. Dance school signs: "We teach the In-and-Out." Neysa McMien's husband—John Baragwanath. The red-faced cabbies who appear at dusk. The bank that photographs every check received and paid.

Noted artists declare one of the most beautiful views in New York is from the southeastern entrance to Central Park at night when the myriad towers around the Plaza fountain burst into their thousand chinks of light. A contrast to the fairyland of staccato confusion is the velvety dark of the park and its tropical hush just a stone's throw away. Painters are coming from everywhere to catch the spirit of the scene on canvas. It's grand.

The stage-struck flapper will not care about some recent chorus girl statistics. They show the average professional life of the chorine is three short years, with many weeks of idleness. Few are heard of after that. Only about 150 chorus girls out of 5,000 yearly crop progress to speaking parts, and most of these are just few-line bits the public never remembers. This season 25,000 eager, wide-eyed maidens stormed theatrical producers. Most came from the mill towns, prairie cottage and Main Street. The chorus and brilliant marriage are linked in an illusive dream. In 10 years only about the same number of girls from the chorus have married actual millionaires. And most of those tie-ups fizzled.

Ten years ago Albert Peyson Terhune had never written a dog story. One week-end he had Ray Long, the magazine editor, as a house guest at his Pompton Lakes home. Under the influence of a great open fire and a well-lighted pipe, Terhune told of a gallant battle in the clearing between his dog Lad and a wolf one moonlight night. It was a hair-raiser. "Write that for me," said Long, enthusiastically, at the conclusion. Since then Terhune has written several thousand dog stores and is the most famous of all in this line. It is literary history that mose writers in launching careers ignore the subjects they know most about. Mr. Terhune was no exception.

RIGHT ANGLES

By Alexander Cairns

RECENTLY I walked the streets of a certain city where once upon a time a great man enacted a drama of conquest at Christmas time.

Suddenly a man bumped into me like a ferryboat bumping its way into a slip and I turned to see a one-legged man plus a crutch and a drunk.

Immediately he bumped the man and woman coming behind me and was threatened with a face-lifting by the irate husband.

If the map holds a bigger fool than that tanglefoot derelict I am not honored with his address.
